ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

This company is formed to acquire and develop the freehold property known as the Wolverine Silver Mine, situate in the New Silver Region in the district of Thunder Bay, province of Ontario, Dominion of Canada, containing 80 acres or thereabouts of valuable mineral land, lying three-quarters of a mile north of White Fish Lake and in the very heart of the extraordinarily rich silver-bearing district where to-day are working the celebrated Rabbit, Beaver, Porcupine, Badger, Queen, Silver Mountain, and other mines, the richness of whose products is now believed to be surpassing that of all other silver mines, even those of the rich silver Region of Nevada.

The Wolverine adjoins the Queen Silver Mine, which is turning out ore at 120ft. from surface of a high grade, stated to be yielding up to as much as 4,000oz. of silver to the ton. The same fissure veins run through the Wolverine, and are known and proved mother lodes.

A remarkable feature attending the silver veins of Ontario is their extraordinary well-defined bearing, combined with increased richness in depth, thereby rendering their development free from the uncertainties which affect mines in other districts.

Mr. J. Gray, the well-known American civil and mining engineer, says: "The Port Arthur or Thunder Bay section has developed more than double the wealth in the shortest time, and for the least outlay of any silver region in the world. This is an accomplished fact. It is to-day the richest known silver region on this continent. A remarkable feature attends the silver deposits of this north shore of Lake Superior, viz., the tendency in most cases to metallic and massive form."

Extract from the report of Mr. F. J. S. Williams, Mining Superintendent to the now famous Beaver Mine:

"The location is traversed by two strongly defined veins."

Mr. Henry De Q. Sewell, A.M.I.C.E., Dominion Land Surveyor, says:

"I have no doubt but that the 'Wolverine' is equally as rich as the 'Queen,' and I consider it a very valuable property."

Capt. Thos. Roberts, of the Caribou Silver Mine, reports:

"The outcrop of the veins is similar to those of the Queen, Badger, Beaver, Rabbit, Porcupine, and Silver Mountain Mines.

"I am further of opinion that as the mine is developed the veins will yield an increase in silver as depth is attained, this being the case in all the famous silver mines in this new silver region, where the indications were identical."

The directors refrain from giving any elaborate estimate as to dividends, but it will be seen that, even taking Mr. Roland's figures of 150oz. to the ton at 40ft. from surface, the returns should be very large, and that with the increased value in depth very gratifying returns should be forthcoming.

Recent news from the Beaver Silver Mine, as taken from extracts from the "Duluth Evening Journal" of 7th July, 1888, says: "Mr. L. H. Greiser of this city has returned from surveying the now famous Beaver Silver Mine; there is a vein 6ft. wide running about 400 dollars to the ton, and through this is a pay streak 18in. in width, which is a pay streak indeed, being a mass of almost pure silver—so pure that it cannot be stamped, and can hardly be blasted out, and valued at from 10,000 dollars to 22,000 dollars to the ton of rock. The stamp mill on the premises is turning out twenty tons of the poorer quality of rock daily, and enough richer matter is at times taken from the shafts to make a daily output of 30,000 dollars, or nearly 1,000,000 dollars a month."

The purchase money for the whole freehold property is £3,000 in cash and £37,000 in fully paid shares, or partly in cash and partly in shares, as the directors determine. The balance of authorised capital, viz., £40,000, remains for working purposes, but this sum is considerably over the amount deemed necessary, so that the directors propose at present to issue only £20,000, reserving £20,000 for future issue.

The only contracts entered into are: See full prospectus.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

This company has been formed to acquire and further develop several valuable Copper Concessions of remarkable richness and considerable magnitude, and situated in the provinces of Alemtejo and Algarve, in Portugal.

The property consists of five concessions, known respectively as (1) "Seicêra," (2) "Val de Rozas," (3) "Marco Geodesico" (these three concessions adjoin each other), and (4 and 5) "Malhada."

The properties cover an area of about 850 acres, and a considerable sum has been expended in proving their mineral value.

A full report has been made on the Seicêra Concessions by Mr. Henry Cock, M.E., which is of a most favourable character; but it was deemed desirable to have an independent opinion on all the properties, so the well-known firm of Messrs. John Taylor and Sons were instructed to inspect and report thereon in March of this year.

A full copy of their representative's (Mr. Garland) report is sent out with this prospectus, and will also be furnished on application to the secretary.

The Seicêra Mines (Concessions 1, 2, and 3)

This property is remarkable for its large number of lodes, their definite and well-marked character, and the rich quality of the ores. Mr. Henry Cock, M.E., in his report of this concession, remarks: "I can confidently state that, in my experience of 16 years in Portugal (on and off), officially employed, I have never seen such indications of mineral wealth. . . . Let us take the other old well-known mines of Portugal, and not one of them can boast of such a network of lodes as this concession."

Mr. Garland, in his report, says of one of the lodes: "A finer and more productive outcrop is rarely seen; this is a lode which would probably yield ore in paying quantities at starting, and is likely to prove richly productive in depth."

The mineral in these lodes is a rich oxide of copper.

Assays made by Mr. F. Claudet have given 15.28, 16.28, and 21.69 per cent. of metallic copper, and Mr. Garland states that "The character of the ore in the Nos. 1 and 3 lodes is such that it can be dressed with suitable machinery up to 20 to 25 per cent. of copper."

THE PORTUGUESE CONSOLIDATED COPPER MINES (Limited).

Malhada Mines (Concessions 4 and 5).

Three well-marked lodes and two or three others of less definite character have been discovered on this property, and at points where the lodes have been tested below the surface they have developed into rich veins of copper pyrites, containing little other material to depreciate its value.

A sample taken from this mine and assayed by Mr. F. Claudet gives the high percentage of 35.10 of copper.

The output is a question of development, but as the mineral can be attacked at once in all the concessions it is estimated that an output of 20 tons per day can be obtained, when the requisite machinery and plant are in operation, and sufficient stoping-ground has been opened out; this should be a work of comparatively short time, as the Malhada Mine can be developed in a shorter time than the Seicêra.

As stated in the foregoing, assays from the Seicêra Mine show 15.28, 16.28, and 21.69 per cent. of copper (which Mr. Garland states in his report can be worked up with machinery from 20 to 25 per cent.), and from the Malhada Mine up to 35.10 per cent.

The directors consider they are well within the mark in taking an average of 20 per cent.

Taking a production of 15 tons per day and 300 working days per annum, the following calculations show the profit which would be made at the above-mentioned prices:

15 tons per day and 300 days equals 4,500 tons at, say, £14 per ton, Chili Bars being at £80 per ton, gives	£63,000
Less working expenses and freight to Swansea, £4 10s. per ton	20,250
	£42,750

Or equal to a dividend of over 40 per cent. upon the nominal capital.

Taking the same output at the low price of £40 per ton for Chili Bars, yields in the same proportion the following result:

4,500 tons at £7 per ton gives	£31,500
Less working expenses, &c., as above	20,250
	£11,250

Equal to a dividend of 11 per cent.

The profitable character of good copper mines is indicated by the market price on the 15th of October, 1888, of the shares of the following mines:

Name of Mine.	Share Capital.	Amount paid per Share.	Market Price.	Premium.
Cape Copper	£300,000	£2	8¼	325 p.c.
Rio Tinto	3,250,000	10	23½	135½ p.c.
Mason and Barry	1,551,440	10	11½	15 p.c.
Namaqua	100,000	2	7¾	275 p.c.
Copiapo	150,000	2	3½	87½ p.c.
Tharsis	1,174,680	2	6¼	212½ p.c.

Purchase Price.

The vendors, who are also the promoters, have fixed the purchase price for the several concessions at £80,000, and are willing to take this amount all in shares, or in cash and shares, at the option of the directors, and undertake to pay all expenses connected with the formation of the company (with the exception of the usual brokerage) up to allotment; this will leave a working capital which the directors consider amply sufficient for the successful working of the mines.

The only agreement entered into is dated the 17th day of October, 1888, and is between James Henry Hoyle and Jonathan Ireland of the one part, and Herbert Rushworth, as trustee, on behalf of the company, of the other part.

Applications to be made on the form accompanying the prospectus, or by letter addressed to the secretary, briefly stating the number of shares required, and accompanied by a remittance of 10s. per share.

Prospectuses can be had, and copies of the agreement, memorandum, and articles of association, and all reports mentioned, can be seen at the company's office.

THE ADVANTAGES I OFFER to COUNTRY CUSTOMERS are: No brokerage, immediate settlements, liability strictly limited to amount deposited, unless otherwise arranged. Close prices. Telegrams free on opening stock and on every necessary inquiry. Prices sent by telegram at any time free, whether business is done or not. Exhaustive list of prices weekly free.

LONDON CUSTOMERS.

ADVANTAGES TO.

They can open up any Stock, however speculative, at close prices, and there are more facilities for dealing by telephones and other recording instruments than any other office in London. The rooms for operators are much more commodious, and there is a larger staff to attend upon customers.

No matter the state of the market, or whether immediate dividends or traffics are imminent, John Shaw deals there and then.

SPECULATIVE INVESTMENTS.

ARGENTINE HARD DOLLARS.

My latest issued advice for speculative investment was Argentine Hard Dollars. These I recommended when they stood at 69. A purchaser would have since received a quarter's dividend of £9 5s. 9d. on 5,000 dollars, the equivalent of £1,000 stock. They have since been 73½, so that, allowing for the accrued increase in value, a purchaser would have received interest at the rate of over 21 per cent. per annum on the amount invested, and had they been purchased with a cover of 2 per cent., the profit secured would have been at the rate of 462 per cent. on amount invested.

I again repeat I have been invariably right in my speculative investments. I only recommend good dividend paying stocks, and I think this system of making money well worth your attention. See below.

SPECIAL.

WOLVERINE.

AS a rule, I hardly ever recommend the purchase of Mining Shares, but in the case of the "SILVER WOLVERINE (Limited)," the prospectus of which was issued yesterday, I have every reason to believe that this is a very valuable property, situate as it is in the New Silver Region, tributary to Port Arthur, Canada, where numerous mines are now working and yielding ore of the phenomenal richness of 10,000 to 22,000 ounces of silver to the ton, the adjoining property to the "Wolverine" giving 3,000 to 4,000 ounces to the ton. This district being almost unknown in England at present, it is only a matter of time before similar properties will be placed on our markets, and with the usual rush of investors and speculators the shares of such companies will in all probability reach high premiums, and the first in the field is everything. The prospectus contains an extraordinary amount of information from authoritative sources.

HIGHEST and LOWEST.

OWING to the ENORMOUS DEMAND for Mr. JOHN SHAW'S HIGHEST and LOWEST, his STOCK is NEARLY EXHAUSTED, and applicants must not be disappointed if he cannot supply them, as this year's Edition is now out of print.

JOHN SHAW, STOCK and SHARE DEALER,

IMPORTANT TELEGRAPHIC ARRANGEMENTS.

I WISH to call close attention to a new departure in my business, which is of the utmost importance to country dealers. I have made arrangements with the Post Office for a direct wire into my own offices, thus saving some ten to twenty minutes on messages. I need hardly point out the advantages to customers dealing at a distance, who are thus put in actual contact with my offices from every part of the United Kingdom. Thus a MESSAGE SENT from

MY CITY OFFICES to

MANCHESTER

IS DELIVERED in FIVE MINUTES.

JOHN SHAW'S SYSTEM of BUSINESS.—He offers more liberal terms for dealing than any dealer in London or elsewhere. Get advice where you choose, but deal where you get the best terms, and possible losses will result in positive profits.

JOHN SHAW, London, will be sufficient address for Telegrams for City Office.

SPECULATIVE INVESTMENTS.

This is one of the best methods of making money on the Stock Exchange, and for any one who has spare capital it presents most favourable opportunities of making certain profits. Thus:

URUGUAY.

I have continuously advised the purchase of Uruguay since they were 44½, at which price they paid interest at the rate of 11¼ per cent. They have since been 76. An investor would have thus received a dividend of 11¼ per cent., and increased every £100 capital invested to £174 16s. 9d.

CANADIAN PACIFICS.

I followed Canadian Pacifics from 38 to 75. At the former price they paid interest at the rate of 7¾ per cent., showing an increase in value on every £100 capital invested of £97 12s. 6d., so that an investor would have received 7¾ per cent. on the capital invested, and could also have sold the shares at nearly double their cost.

EGYPT. UNIFIED.

I have also advised Egypt. Unified since they were 66, at which price they would pay 6¼ per cent. They have since been 83¾, so that for every £100 invested the investor would have been enabled to realise £125 11s. 10d.

PORTUGUESE.

I recommended Portuguese when they were 44½, paying 6¾ per cent.; they have been 64½, or an increase of 44 per cent. on the capital invested.

MEXICAN BONDS.

Prior to the recent rearrangements in the Mexican Government Stocks, I advised Mexican Bonds as a good deferred investment; they could have been purchased at 23½; they were afterwards 41, showing an improvement on the capital invested of 81 per cent.

PRESENT ADVICES for INVESTMENT SENT FREE by POST.

IN OPERATING I GIVE YOU THIS ADVICE, whether you deal with me or elsewhere.

1. Let your profits run.
2. Do not follow a loss more than two per cent.; all heavy losses are invariably made with unlimited cover. Run profits and cut losses.
3. Remember, you know your risk when you limit your cover.
4. Do not deal with firms of whom you know nothing, however specious their representations, or you will lose both your cover and profits. Make due inquiries.

FOR the USE and INFORMATION of SPECULATORS and INVESTORS, JOHN SHAW has COMPILED and ISSUES FREE the following WORKS:

MONTHLY POCKET LIST of INVESTMENTS, showing the amount of capital, latest prices, when dividend payable, yield per cent. at current prices, and highest and lowest prices of previous year, and railway traffics up to current date. Sent free on application.

RAILWAY WEEKLY TRAFFICS RETURN BOOK for the current half-year, with corresponding figures for the two previous years.

Also gives the dividends declared for the three previous years.

Date of announcement of dividend, and interest table, showing the rate per cent. per annum interest paid by stocks.

JOHN SHAW.

MONEY MARKET.

TUESDAY EVENING.

Under the influence of a superabundance of money, discount rates are still very easy, and exceptional transactions have occurred in three months' bills at a shade below 3 per cent. The Indian banks also placed three, four, and six months' drafts together, to arrive about Nov. 19, at 2¾. Short advances were obtainable at 1½, 2 per cent., in spite of the payment of about £500,000 on the Queensland loan. It is understood, however, that a large sum now being lent from day to day will be required for the Stock Exchange settlement on Friday. No bullion operations occurred at the Bank, though rumours prevailed of further probable shipments to South America. The amount in course of transmission from Australia is £217,000, the bulk of which is due in about a fortnight. A fresh decline occurred in the foreign exchanges. On the German Bourses there is now an important speculative account for the rise, and a good deal of stock is likely to be sold here upon any indication of firmness in prices. These operations would, of course, accelerate the downward tendency of the Berlin exchange. At Paris the outside rate of discount is firm at 4 per cent., or 1 per cent. higher than here, and an advance is expected early next week, when preparations will begin for the Bourse liquidation.

Dealings on the Stock Exchange consisted chiefly of speculative realisations, and the markets gave way, though closing above the worst. Prices opened lower on reported Russian military movements, and sales were subsequently made in view of the settlement, although, as previously stated, money is likely to be much more plentiful than on the last occasion. But the new account will extend over nineteen days—a period much too long for the nerves of many operators for the rise. Consols (Goschens) slightly receded, while old Three per Cents. rose ⅛ per cent. for cash. Indian Government Three and Three and a Half per Cents., Board of Works Stocks, and Colonial Debentures were in request, the latter being bought in anticipation of a large absorption of stock by trustees under the General Order of the Supreme Court, which will come into operation to-morrow (Wednesday). Nearly all Foreign bonds declined, in response to a relapse on the Bourses. The final quotations, however, were not the worst, some recovery being reported in Vienna, compared with the morning. Here the fall in Hungarian Four per Cents. on the day was nearly ⅝ per cent. Argentine, Buenos Ayres Cedulas, Ecuador, Egyptian, Entre Rios, Italian, Santa Fé, Spanish, Turkish, Guatemala, and Honduras shared in the depression, but Peruvian Five and Six per Cents. were in demand, and rose about ½ each, owing to a rumour that the Grace contract has been signed at Lima. The original proposals included, it will be remembered, the concession to the bondholders of 763 miles of railways in Peru and all the guano for a period of sixty-six years, besides 4,000,000 acres of land. The establishment of a bank was also part of the scheme, while the bondholders were to cancel half the debt, say, from £32,000,000 to £16,000,000, and to advance £400,000 to the Government. But these details have probably been considerably modified, and full particulars on the subject are, therefore, awaited with much interest.

Except Metropolitan Consolidated, which improved 1¼ per cent., English railways were rather flatter. Great Eastern was a little lower, despite the issue of a favourable traffic return. American lines receded ⅛ to ⅝, the adverse movement being chiefly in Milwaukee, New York Central, Northern Pacific, and Norfolk and Western Preferred. The latter fluctuated between 53⅞ and 54½, and left off at 54⅛, or ⅝ down on the day. Grand Trunks relapsed with "Americans," and Canadian Pacifics further declined in consequence of the dispute with the Red River Railway Company. A fall occurred in Mexican (Vera Cruz) stocks, the effect of the issue of a good traffic statement being more than neutralised by adverse rumours as to the condition of some of the company's bridges. On the whole, miscellaneous securities showed firmness. Diamond mines were in demand, and De Beers rose nearly ⅜, due to the official announcement referred to below. Kimberley Central were somewhat better, as well as some of the South African gold shares. Copper undertakings, however, exhibited dulness.

The Cathay has brought £12,965 in gold, chiefly from Hong Kong.

A fresh rise of ⅛d, to 43⅛d per ounce, took place in bar silver, partly in response to the firmer exchanges from the East and partly on satisfactory Council allotments. Indian Transfers advanced 1-32d, to 1s 4⅛d; bills in Hong Kong, ⅛d, to 3s 1⅜d, and in Shanghai, ⅛d, to 4s 3⅝d. There was a good demand for Rupee Paper, which rose ⅛. The Four and a Half per Cents. were quoted 71⅞, 72, and the Four per Cts. 67⅞, 68. The India Council has made a special allotment of bills on Bombay to the amount of £30,000 at 1s 4 9-16d, being a further 1-16d higher.

Heaviness was reported on the Continental Bourses, the Vienna market being at one time especially weak. At Berlin, Prussian Three and a Half and Four per Cents., Egyptian Unified, Russian, Italian, Hungarian, Austrian Crédit, Mexican, Deutsche Bank, and Lombardo receded, but Turkish were better. In Paris, Suez Canal, Rio Tinto, Ottoman Bank, Crédit Foncier, Greek, and Portuguese declined. Panama, however, improved. Three per Cent. Rentes were 7½c lower, at 82f 42½c, and the Four and a Half per Cents. unaltered, at 105f 70c. The exchange on London (cheques) rose ½c, to 25f 32c.

On 'Change a decline occurred in the rates for bills on Holland, Belgium, France, and Germany. The latter quotation is nearly down to the point at which gold could be sent hence at a profit. Russian and Spanish exchanges also showed movements against this country.

With reference to the offer, dated Oct. 12, made to shareholders of the Kimberley Central Diamond Mining Company (Limited) to exchange their shares for those of the De Beers Consolidated Mines (Limited) before the 29th idem, it is notified that the time for such exchange has been extended to Nov. 7 next, and that shareholders of the Kimberley Central Company who exchange their shares in terms of such offer before the 7th prox. will receive a brokerage of 3s per share. In regard to the latter undertaking, a circular signed by Mr. Porter Rhodes and Mr. F. Baring-Gould states that all points being now settled with the directors of the De Beers Consolidated Mines, the committee and their friends are prepared to make the exchange of shares, and recommend shareholders to do so also. The exchange will be made as follows: Every ten £10 Central shares will receive twenty-two £5 Ordinary shares fully paid-up of the De Beers Consolidated Mines, and, in addition, each Central share will receive £2 8s and a brokerage of 3s per share, equal to £2 11s in cash. The governors, under the provisions of the original trust deed of the De Beers Consolidated Mines, will only participate in the profits of that company after the shareholders have received dividends to the extent of 36 per ct. per annum.

Application has been made to the Stock Exchange Committee to appoint a settling day in and to grant a quotation to the following securities: Alabama Great Southern Railway Company (Limited), £81,935 Four per Ct. Funded Certificates; City of Hobart Loan, £50,000 Five per Ct. Debentures; Entre Rios Central Railway Extensions, scrip and paid-up scrip of £735,600 (balance of £1,745,600) Six per Ct. Mortgage Bonds; Greenwood and Batley (Limited), Ordinary shares, Seven per Ct. Cumulative Preference shares, and Five per Ct. Debentures; and Rhondda and Swansea Bay Railway Company, Ordinary shares. Application has also been made to appoint a special settling day in the shares of the Wingalio Coal Company (Limited), and to allow the annexed securities to be quoted in the Official List: Denver and Rio Grande Railroad Company, $3,000,000 Improvement Mortgage Five per Ct. Gold Bonds, Nos. 1 to 6,000; United Telephone Company (Limited), 978 additional shares, Nos. 99,023 to 100,000; West Australian Land Company (Limited), shares, £200,000 Five per Ct. Convertible Debentures, and £250,000 First Mortgage Debentures.

The Great Eastern Railway traffic return for the past week exhibits an increase of £2,794, the Metropolitan District an increase of £71, and the Lancashire and Yorkshire a decrease of £1,190.

With £156 brought down, the half-yearly report of the Bombay Gas Company (Limited) shows an available sum of £9,016, out of which the directors have added £500 to the reserve fund for depreciation of plant, &c., and declared an interim dividend of 5½ per ct. The sum left to be carried forward is £116.

After setting aside an adequate sum for the redemption of leaseholds, the report of the Metropolitan Industrial Dwellings Company (Limited) shows a net profit for the year of £1,469, out of which an interim dividend at the rate of 5 per ct. per annum has already been paid. It is now proposed to make a further distribution at the same rate, leaving £129 to be carried forward.

The numbers are published of bonds of the City of Montreal Loans of 1874 and 1879, which were drawn yesterday at the Bank of Montreal, Abchurch-lane, for repayment at par on Nov. 1, when interest thereon will cease.

It is notified that the interest to Nov. 1 on the Five per Ct. Debenture Stock of the Cordoba Central Railway Company (Limited) will be payable, on and after that date, by Messrs. Martin and Co., Lombard-street.

Subject to audit, the directors of Robert Boyle and Son (Limited) have resolved to recommend a dividend of 12 per ct., free of income-tax, on the Ordinary shares of the company, for year ending September last, after placing to reserve fund one-sixth of the profits earned, and carrying forward £1,241.

The Mexican Railway traffic receipts for the week ended Oct. 20 were £23,000, against £17,400 last year, showing an increase of £5,600.

Messrs. I. Thomson, T. Bonar, and Co. notify that the coupons of the Lehigh and Wilkes Barre Coal Company's First Mortgage Six per Ct. Sterling Bonds, due Nov. 1 next, will be paid by them on and after that date.

At an extraordinary general meeting of the Roburite Explosives Company (Limited), held yesterday, it was stated that arrangements have been made for manufacturing Roburite in many important colonies, and that the directors are in treaty with other colonies. The annual financial statement will be submitted to the shareholders at the usual time.

Notice is given that the fully-paid scrip certificates of the Temiscouata Railway Company can be exchanged for the definite Five per Ct. Guaranteed Sterling First Mortgage Bonds, on and after Oct. 25, at the offices of Messrs. Armstrong and Co., Old Broad-street, E.C.

Subjoined is a copy of a cablegram which has been received by the Viola Company (Limited) from their mine, for the week ending Oct. 20: "Ore smelted, 217 tons; lead produced, 76 tons; silver produced, 1,497 oz.; approximate gross value, $7,506."

Tin—Highest, £102 15s; lowest, £102 12s 6d; fine foreign, cash, Straits, £102 12s 6d to £103 2s 6d; Australian, £102 17s 6d to £103 7s 6d; three months, Straits, £103 10s to £104; English ingots, £105 to £106.

GLASGOW IRON.—Market easier. Fair business done at 41s 9d, 41s 7½d cash; 41s, 41s 11d month; buyers, 41s 7½d cash, 41s 11d month; sellers near. Middlesbrough buyers 34s 4½d cash, 34s 8d month; sellers, 34s 6d cash, 34s 9d month. Hematite—Done at 44s 9½d cash; buyers, 44s 7½d and 44s 9d cash; 44s 11d and 45s 1d month; sellers, 1d more.

LIVERPOOL COTTON.—Sales of the day, 8,000 bales; on speculation and for export, 500. American quieter, but unchanged. East Indian steady. Egyptian quiet, but firm. Middling Upland, 5 15-16d; ditto Orleans, 5 15-16d; fair Dhollerah, 4⅝d; good ditto, 4 13-16d; fair Pernam, 5 15-16d; ditto brown Egyptian, 6⅝d; fair Oomra, 4 1-16d; good ditto, 4 11-16d. Futures steady.

MIDDLESBROUGH IRON.—The iron market has been firmer, and prices have been well maintained. There is also a little more demand, especially for warrants. The shipments of pig iron are 49,800 tons, 7,000 tons less than last month. Connal's warrant stocks have declined 2,142 tons on the week. The manufactured iron trade has been very steady, and prices firm. Common bars, £5 2s 6d; angles, £5 2s 6d to £5 5s; ship plates, £5 10s (less 2½ per cent.); puddled bars, £3 17s 6d net. Shipbuilding and engineering very active. Steel trade busy, prices unchanged. The quotation for No. 3 by merchants for prompt delivery was 34s 6d, and 35s is asked by makers. Warrants were about 34s 6d. The market closed firm. Coal and coke steady.

CORK CORN.—46cwt white wheat, 7s 9d; 1,140cwt barley, 6s to 7s 6d; 1,804cwt black oats, 5s 6d to 6s 10d; 40cwt white oats, 5s 6d to 6s 6d.

DUBLIN CORN.—Foreign wheat a quiet but steady trade. Maize in limited request, without change in value. Irish wheat, condition of most samples soft, prices about same as last day. Oats no alteration in former quotations, inferior descriptions slow. Barley firm for best malting, slow for second-class malting, as well as grinding flour not much doing. Oatmeal quite as dear. Bran unaltered.

HULL CORN.—Little English wheat offered to-day; but prices quoted 1s to 1s 6d per quarter less than last week. Foreign is in buyers' favour especially, and Reds. Large supply of new barley, mostly common quality, at low prices; grinding sorts made rather better prices. Oats unchanged; but beans a little better. Maize of all kinds 6d per quarter cheaper.

LEEDS CORN.—There has been very little activity in the wheat trade during the week, with an easier tendency in prices. The demand is limited, but sellers of foreign wheat do not press for business at reduced rates. English samples generally in poor condition and is lower on the week. Malting barley very slow at 2s decline from last Tuesday's prices. Oats, beans, peas, and maize quiet and rather easier. Prices: English reds, 30s to 34s; whites, 32s to 36s; barley, 28s to 40s; peas, 35s to 36s; oats, 16s to 25s; maize, 28s to 27s.

LIVERPOOL CORN.—Wheat closes quiet, only moderate business done, generally at Friday's prices, except Indian, which are rather dearer. Flour quiet trade. Oats and meal steady, but unchanged. Maize easier, mixed America, 4s 6½d, to 7d; Odessa, 5s 3d; Cinquantina, 5s 6d; peas, 5s 2d, 5s 3d. Beans hardly any offering, Saidis, 5s 6d.

NEWCASTLE CORN.—Only a small inquiry for wheat. Holders steady, at Saturday's prices. Oats and maize slow; other articles unchanged from Saturday. Flour a quiet sale, at late rates.

MANCHESTER (SALFORD) CATTLE.—Supply of stock was less than last week. Slow trade for cattle, only a few prime heifers making previous market's quotations; all other sorts lower. Sheep were quiet, at late rates. Calves worse to sell, with a downward tendency in values. Cattle, 5d to 6½d; sheep, 6d to 9d; calves, 5d to 7½d per lb.

NEWCASTLE CATTLE.—Smaller arrivals of cattle and sheep. Trade steady, at about late rates. Pigs in good demand. Beef, 5s 6d to 8s; and pigs, 4s 6d to 5s 6d per stone; sheep, 5d to 8½d; lambs, 7d to 8d per lb. At market: Cattle, 2,060; sheep and lambs, 6,700.

CORK BUTTER.—Ordinary: Firsts, 101s; seconds, 95s; thirds, 89s, fourths, 81s. Mild-cured firkins: Superfine, 111s; fine, 104s; mild, 100s. In market, 1,240 firkins, 5 kegs (182 mild).

PRODUCE MARKETS—TUESDAY.

SUGAR.—The market was again quiet to-day for cane kinds, and the moderate quantities of crystallised offered at auction were only partly sold, though at steady prices generally, to extreme rates for fine sorts, while beetroot opened quietly at about yesterday's closing rates, viz., 13s 3d for German 88 per cent., Oct., and 12s 10½d, plus ¼ per cent., for Nov.-Dec., the closing quotations being Oct. 13s 3d, Nov.-Dec. 12s 10½d, and Jan. 13s, plus ¼, f. o. b. At auction a small part of 668 bags crystallised Demerara sold at 18s for fine yellow; the greater part of 1,858 bags crystallised Trinidad at 17s 6d to 18s 9d, with one lot at 19s; while 1,515 bags damaged Mauritius syrups were bought in at 11s to 13s, but since sold at an average price of 11s, and 500 bags crystallised Surinam were bought in at 18s. In the refined market there was a good steady demand for pieces, &c., at firm prices, while stoved goods were without change.

COFFEE.—At public sales to-day the prices for East India kinds were barely maintained, while Jamaica and foreign kinds were fully 1s easier. 1,166 bags Coorg and other East India kinds sold at 61s 6d to 80s for small grey and medium greenish, 81s to 94s for good colour, and 96s 6d to 99s for bold. Futures are again easier, 7,000 bags fair Channel Rio being sold at 64s 9d to 65s 9d March and May, while the official closing quotations were 67s Oct., 66s 3d Nov., 65s 3d Dec.-Feb., 65s 9d March-April, 65s 3d May, and 65s June-Sept.

COCOA.—At auction to-day good and fine Trinidad fetched rather higher prices, but other kinds were unaltered. Part 546 bags Trinidad sold 68s to 70s 6d for middling, 71s to 76s 6d for good, and a few lots at 77s to 81s 6d, and 85s to 91s for fine bold; 39 bags Grenada sold at 64s to 68s, and 60 bags good grey African sold at 58s to 60s 6d, part defective.

RICE.—Market remains steady, but with little business.

JUTE.—Firm market. 200 bales M diamond 4, £17 15s Oct.-Dec., and 200 M double triangle, £18 12s 6d Sept.-Nov. Cape, London.

COTTON.—Steady market, with little doing.

OILS.—Linseed flat, at £19 15s for pipes landed, and £18 15s for Hull. Rape quiet, at £29 10s for brown on spot, and £31 for refined. Cotton quiet, at £20 5s to £20 15s for crude on spot, £22 10s to £25 refined in ordinary casks, and £22 10s Hull on spot. Turpentine easier, at 35s 9d to 34s American on spot, 34s 3d Nov.-Dec., and 34s 9d Jan.-April. Petroleum quiet for American on spot, at 6⅜d to 6⅝d Nov.-Dec., 6⅝d to 6¾d Jan.-Feb., and 6⅜d to 6½d Russian on spot.

TEA.—Messrs. Gow, Wilson, and Stanton report that the sales yesterday comprised 1,865 packages Indian, 3,342 Ceylon, and 935 Java, making a total of 6,142. Indian teas were well competed for. Ceylon—A good assortment was offered, many well-known marks being represented by desirable invoices. The sales passed off with spirit, at firm rates. Java—These were mostly teas "for price," and sold at rates establishing the recent advance.

THROAT AFFECTIONS AND HOARSENESS.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of "Brown's Bronchial Troches." These famous "lozenges" are sold everywhere at 1s 1½d per box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections, cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious pulmonary and asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box.—[ADVERTISEMENT.]

NO MORE MEDICINE.—Perfect health restored by Du Barry's delicious Revalenta Arabica Food for invalids, children, and infants, which cures the most disordered stomach and bowels, the blood, the nerves, lungs, liver, brain, voice, and breath. In tins at 2s, 3s 6d, 6s, 32s, 14s—Du Barry and Co. (Limited), 77, Regent-street, W., London, and of all Grocers and Chemists.—(ADVT.)

THE PARNELL COMMISSION.

Yesterday the learned Commissioners held their third sitting, the Court opening at half-past ten o'clock, which will, henceforward, be the normal hour for commencing business. Throughout the day there was a crowd of spectators outside the Strand entrance to the Royal Courts of Justice, but they saw little to reward their patience, very few celebrities putting in an appearance. When the three judges took their seats on the bench there was, apart from those actively engaged in the conduct of the inquiry, only a small attendance, but as the morning wore on the number of visitors gradually increased, among them being Lord Colville of Culross, Mr. Cobb, M.P., Mr. Channing, M.P., Mr. J. Rowlands, M.P., and Mr. Labouchere, M.P. Of the Irish members who are implicated in the charges of the Times there were present Mr. Biggar, M.P., who occupied a seat at the solicitors' table, Mr. Justin M'Carthy, M.P. (vice-chairman of the Irish Parliamentary party), Mr. H. Campbell, M.P. (Mr. Parnell's private secretary), Mr. Arthur O'Connor, M.P., and Mr. T. Harrington, M.P. (both engaged as counsel in the case), Mr. Michael Davitt, and, last but not least, Mr. Parnell himself, who did not arrive until late in the afternoon, just in time, however, to hear what the Attorney-General had to say upon the subject of the letters alleged to have been written by the "uncrowned king." In the course of the morning Mr. Justice Kay paid a short visit to the court, and was accommodated with a seat on the bench. At the outset of the proceedings the Attorney-General, referring to the application of the other side for an order for the production of further particulars and documents, asked that the matter might stand over, so as to give his clients time to swear an answering affidavit on the subject. Sir Charles Russell protested that sufficient time had already been afforded. The Court, however, decided that it would be better to postpone the matter for one more day. Then came a somewhat startling announcement by Mr. Lockwood, Q.C., that he had been mistaken in supposing Mr. Biggar, M.P., to be one of his clients, and the hon. member in question instantly confirmed this declaration by making in person an application to the Court. He desired to be supplied by the Times with copies of such reports of his speech as they proposed to rely on to sustain their allegations against him. With characteristic dryness he observed that he was "not a person of sufficient importance" to get fully reported in the papers, and as only summaries of his speeches had appeared, it was essential that he should have the opportunity of seeing how far they were accurate. The hon. member's application was at once acceded to, and, after some minor preliminaries had been disposed of, the Attorney-General again took up the burden of the argument on which he had been engaged when the Court rose on Monday. He first drew attention to the circumstances of the agrarian agitation so far as it concerned the county of Kerry from 1879 to 1882, reciting quotations from speeches delivered at Land League meetings and then referring to the statistics of crime to show that the language of incitement used at such meetings had invariably been followed by acts of violence and intimidation towards those who dared to disobey the behests of the League. Whilst the Attorney-General was reading a quotation from one of the speeches Sir Charles Russell made some observation sotto voce to the effect that the extract was not complete. This led to a retort, which caused the President, Sir James Hannen, to intervene, with a recommendation that "Mr. Attorney should confine himself to those observations only of Sir Charles Russell or anybody else which were addressed formally to the Court." His lordship added, "I wish to keep things orderly in all respects, and I thought I would remind you of what is orderly." Upon this hint Sir Richard Webster at once resumed his narrative of the state of things that had prevailed in Kerry under the reign of the agitators; and he maintained, among other things, that the Moonlighters, even though not members of the Land League, were defended by Land League money. The learned counsel next reviewed in the same sense the operations of the League in counties Mayo, Cork, and Clare, seeking to establish in each case the responsibility of the leaders of the organisation for the crimes and outrages which he asserted to be the direct outcome of movements and methods which they openly or tacitly sanctioned. In dealing with the case of County Cork the Attorney-General expressed great anxiety to get at the books of the Land League, which, he believed, would throw a flood of light on the question of the guilt or innocence of that organisation. Assuming them to be innocent and to relate only to a constitutional movement, for what purpose, he asked, had they been spirited away? However, everything had not been destroyed. There were two batches of documents which had come into the possession of the Times through a Land League clerk, and which would be very material for the purpose of showing the system that was carried on and the connection there was between the local branches of the Land League and the central office in Dublin. These papers proved that the Land League was in 1881 paying for the work that was being done by the branches, paying persons who refused to work for boycotted families or who otherwise carried out the decrees of the Land League, and, most important of all, paying for outrages. The Attorney-General read a few specimen letters, and these produced the first flutter of excitement that had been witnessed since the proceedings commenced. The next most interesting portion of the learned gentleman's address was that in which he reverted to the subject of the alleged Parnell letters, in connection with which he repudiated the idea that Mr. Parnell, whilst imprisoned at Kilmainham, had any difficulty in getting letters conveyed to persons outside, though in the case of Mr. Davitt, who was in Portland Prison, he admitted that there was no possibility of his having information of what was going on, and he attributed no personal responsibility to that gentleman in regard to the promotion of outrage and intimidation. As to the letters which the Times alleged to be Mr. Parnell's, especially the one in which he spoke of "making it hot for old Forster and Co.," he had never considered it necessary to suppose that that expression was intended as an incitement to commit an outrage on the then Secretary for Ireland; it would probably refer rather to what might be called general outrages which would embarrass Mr. Forster and impede the work of the Government. As to whether the letters were forgeries, the learned counsel mentioned that before they were printed in the Times they were submitted to the most careful examination by impartial experts, and subjected to comparisons with several undoubtedly genuine signatures of Mr. Parnell. The result was that all the persons who had studied the documents in that way had come to the conclusion that the letters were signed by the member for Cork, and by nobody else. He promised that the fullest particulars should be given to the Court at the proper time, as to the person from whom and the circumstances under which the Times became possessed of the letters, and as to the price they paid for them; and he believed that the Court would have before it full material upon which to decide whether they were genuine or not. The Attorney-General's address will be continued to-day, when the learned gentleman will first devote himself to the task of showing that there existed intimate relations between Mr. Parnell and those who actually organised outrages.

At the sitting of the Commissioners,

The Attorney-General said: With regard to the application of my learned friend, Sir C. Russell, as to some further documents, I must ask that it be not taken this morning, as I am obliged to make some affidavits which could not possibly be made between the rising of the Court and this morning. As to the particulars my learned friend asks for, I am indifferent.

Sir C. Russell: The affidavit was handed in yesterday, at twelve o'clock, and there is no reason why it should not have been answered by this time.

The Attorney-General: As a matter of fact, the affidavit was handed in late yesterday afternoon to my client, when he was sitting in court, and as he had to attend here all day it was not possible for him to answer it.

Sir C. Russell: I am informed that it was delivered before twelve o'clock.

The President: I think it had better stand over till to-morrow morning.

Mr. Lockwood: I wish to correct a misapprehension as to those I represent, after what was said by my learned friend Mr. Reid, as to the members of Parliament for whom he appeared. I said I appeared for the other members, but there is one exception. I do not appear for Mr. Biggar, who, I understand, represents himself.

Mr. Biggar: I should like to ask the representatives of the Times to give me a copy of the speeches on which they rely, and which I am supposed to have made. My position is this. I am not a person of sufficient importance to get fully reported in the papers, and nothing more than summaries appear. I don't suppose the Attorney-General will make any objection to my request.

The President: Undoubtedly whatever is done in favour of Sir C. Russell's clients shall be done in your favour.

Mr. Biggar: Thank you.

The Attorney-General: As Mr. Biggar appears for himself, I may say that I have previously handed all my copies of speeches to Sir Charles Russell; but when a speech happens to be one of Mr. Biggar's no doubt he will see that it is handed to him.

Sir C. Russell: The Attorney-General was good enough to hand me copies of speeches which I find do not appear in the shorthand notes in the same form as the documents handed to me, and the omissions I conceive to be important. There are notes on the documents stating by whom the notes were taken, and showing they were taken in longhand in many instances, and in all instances by police-constables at the instance of the Government. Therefore it seems to me very important that they should bear on the face of them that they were Government reports. That was one reason why I was going to ask whether, as there are Government reports furnished no doubt to my learned friend's clients, it is not reasonable that we should have a copy of the entire number of them.

The Attorney-General: We have nothing whatever to do with the way in which it appears in print. The same documents that were handed to the officers of the court were handed to Sir Charles Russell, and I see they are marked "Uncorrected," it not having been possible to get the whole corrected. But my learned friend is entirely wrong when he calls them Government reports. They are reports of speeches taken by the witnesses obtained by the Times in the ordinary way.

Sir C. Russell: My statement was that these reports were shorthand notes taken by police-constables on the instructions of the Government, and therefore Government reports.

The Attorney-General: My learned friend is in error.

The President: Do you object to the marginal notes appearing?

The Attorney-General: Not in the least; I should have wished them to appear.

The President: Then that, at any rate, is set right. Whatever documents are handed in by the Attorney-General will be printed in their entirety.

The Attorney-General: I was anxious to read to your lordships the document called the "No Rent" manifesto, issued from Kilmainham on Oct. 18, 1881, signed by Mr. Parnell, Mr. Kelly, Mr. Davitt, Mr. Brennan, Mr. Dillon, Mr. Sexton, and Mr. Patrick Egan. Mr. Davitt's signature was not affixed to the document by himself, as he was at the time confined in Portland prison. As far as the evidence I am able to lay before your lordships enables me to say the signature of Mr. Davitt was put to it by some one of those persons in Kilmainham. Whether or not Mr. Davitt was responsible for it, or authorised it in any way, is a matter which will not be without importance for consideration in connection with some later incidents I shall have to refer to. I was anxious to read to your lordships the actual terms of that "No Rent" manifesto, but I have not got by me an actual copy, in order that your lordships might see that this policy of preventing the payment of rents, of punishing tenants who did pay rents, which was continued from the time Mr. Parnell was in prison in Kilmainham—from Oct. 1, 1881, up to May, 1882, with the interval of a few days—was carried on with the approval, as far as we can tell, of those who at the time were not so much in control of matters as they had been previously and as they were afterwards. With reference to this indictment which I am now preferring against a number of gentlemen—not against Mr. Parnell alone, but against a large number of other gentlemen—amongst them Mr. Biggar, Mr. Harrington, Mr. Harris, and a number of others, I shall show that, long after the time when the effect of their speeches was brought prominently to their minds, the same speeches and the same conduct were repeated, and the same results followed. Yesterday, in dealing with Galway, I had, for the purpose of the particular method of telling my story, stopped at the year 1882. In dealing with other counties I shall pursue the same course. I propose to ask your lordships' attention to the county of Kerry, and pursue the same course as I did yesterday by reading from a series of speeches which were made in that and other counties. There were many other similar speeches made of which we have not full notes, but we have references in particular instances to speeches that were made, and I shall also be able to give your lordships evidence as to what was said. I begin with a speech made at Beaufort on May 6, 1880, by Mr. Parnell. Your lordships will find that in many of these counties Mr. Parnell made an opening speech, if I may so call it, which began the initiation of the Land League and its work. He was followed by speakers, many of them directly paid by the central association in Dublin; whilst others, who are now among the persons charged, were rewarded for the part they had taken by being nominated by Mr. Parnell and his party to represent certain constituencies in Ireland. On May 16, 1880, in the speech to which I have referred, Mr. Parnell used language inciting to non-payment of rent, and said that if the Legislature refused to step in the agitation would go on and increase tenfold.

Sir C. Russell: What you are reading purports to be a report, whereas it is only one or two sentences. In the Freeman's Journal is a long report of the speech.

The Attorney-General: If the report is inaccurate, my learned friend will get the advantage of it, but I am afraid I can hardly expect help from Sir C. Russell.

The President: Some observation was made sotto voce. I think, Mr. Attorney, you had better confine yourself to those observations made by Sir C. Russell, or anybody else, which are addressed to the Court.

The Attorney-General: I entirely agree, if I may humbly say so, with that view; but your lordships will understand that it is scarcely possible, when an observation is made audibly, to avoid reference to it.

The President: I wish to keep things orderly in all respects, and I thought I would remind you of what is orderly.

The Attorney-General: On Oct. 10, 1880, at Castleisland, Mr. Arthur O'Connor and Mr. Biggar spoke. Mr. O'Connor deprecated the commission of acts of violence, as public opinion in England might be affected by them. The passage is worthy of consideration, because it condemns violence, not so much because an act of violence is wicked or wrong, but because public opinion in England would be affected. On Oct. 24, at Brosna, Mr. T. Harrington spoke, and referred to the case of John O'Connor, who had taken an evicted farm. O'Connor's crop of flax had been thrown into the river, he had been boycotted, and his house set on fire, and then he had surrendered the farm to the landlord. Mr. Harrington referred to these acts of violence towards O'Connor as the "jeers and scorn by which he was met." On Feb. 27, 1881, at Barraduff, Kerry, a speech was made by Mr. Boyton, organiser of the League in Leinster. At a later date, when it was desirable that he should express his willingness to suppress outrages, Boyton was one of the men whom Mr. Parnell used for the purpose. Boyton said: "I believe landgrabbers are dead in Kerry; if not, it is high time for you to look after them. Put an end to landgrabbers in your midst. Shun the landgrabber like a man with the small-pox." Your lordships will learn presently from whom the advice as to landgrabbers came originally. I submit that even if this speech had been simply delivered with no previous knowledge of what would be the consequences, it would have been interpreted by those who heard it as being a direct instruction to them to get rid of the landgrabber from among them, the landgrabber being the man who had done nothing wrong except taking a piece of land. What is your judgment upon the conduct of men who made such speeches as those when, every day, landgrabbers were being treated as I described yesterday in Galway, and when, after these speeches, outrages followed of a similar kind? It is impossible to exaggerate the wickedness of such speeches. On March 4, 1881, at Killorglin, county Kerry, Mr. Boyton and Mr. T. Harrington again spoke. Mr. Boyton said, "I have always denounced the commission of outrages, but if you must blow a man's brains out do it by daylight." This practical invitation and incitement actually produced the effect intended. To a great extent these outrages were unknown prior to 1880. No doubt in connection with Fenianism and agrarian disturbance in Ireland there have been periods at which similar events have occurred; but, so far as contemporary history is concerned, this system of outrage and intimidation, beginning by boycotting, received not only a fresh start, but a fresh mode of existence, with the foundation of the Land League. As the Land League was powerful the outrages increased, and when it diminished in power they decreased. At this meeting, as I have said, Mr. T. Harrington, who was the editor or proprietor of the Kerry Sentinel, spoke. He said: "The present agitation is something more than a struggle against landlordism—it is a struggle for the independence of the Irish nation. The man who steals in at the back-door of the agent's office to pay his rent is a double-dyed traitor. It is your duty to cut off all communication with a man who takes a farm from which another person has been evicted." Mr. Curtin, of Newmarket, county Cork, speaking on June 5, 1881, at Knocknaboll, said the cottage from which one O'Donohue had been evicted would stand as the memory of "Herbert," the land-agent's perfidy. "Let it stop there," said the speaker, "till Herbert goes down to his grave." Then a voice was interposed with the observation, "Let him go down to hell." Mr. Herbert was afterwards murdered. The speaker went on to say, "I don't want to make use of that ugly word 'boycott,' but there are many ways of killing a dog besides choking him with butter. I presume Herbert will not make his appearance here again, and it will not be a great loss to Castleisland." The Rev. Mr. O'Reilly branded the agent, Mr. Herbert, and his followers as disturbers of the peace of the district. "I am here," said the rev. gentleman, "to tell Mr. Arthur Herbert that if he comes here to disturb our peace we will not injure a hair of his head, but we will make an example of him." It did not want that mystic allusion of this gentleman to let the people know what he meant. On Sept. 11, 1881, Mr. Kelly, whom I mentioned as the organiser of the Land League in Tralee, attended a meeting at Currall, and advised the people to point the finger of scorn at landgrabbers. If more stern work was wanted they could depend on their men. The Rev. A. Murphy, Catholic curate, said: "I should think there are plenty of knife boys about here. One thing, you have cooked the small landgrabber, and he is done brown." That is a reference to the murder of a man named Brown by Poff and Barr. Your lordships will find the names of these men subsequently cheered at Land League meetings. The speaker went on to say, "You have yet to get that big land grabber." As to the connection between moonlighters and the Land League, what is important is that when they were not Land Leaguers they were defended by Land League money. I mention that, not with the view of connecting the Land League with these outrages, for there will be abundant evidence of that by-and-by, but it was stated in a speech by Mr. Biggar that if anybody was charged with shooting a landlord the money of the Land League would be at their disposal for their defence to see that they got a fair trial. That was sufficient to let moonlighters and persons charged with these outrages know that from beginning to end they were under the protection of the Land League. Having read a list of speeches in Kerry, I must make a selection of the outrages I have to bring to your notice. Here, as with reference to Galway, it will be utterly impossible for me, and it would serve no useful purpose, to attempt to describe all the outrages. I wish to show the outrages which had a direct connection with the conduct which was instigated, and with the resistance which was advocated by the speeches to which I have referred. I call attention to the firing of the dwelling-house of Thomas Talbot on March 18, 1880. On March 8, a man named Murphy was evicted from his farm, and Talbot took possession as a caretaker. On the morning of March 18 he was fired at through the window of the house. I think on that occasion, fortunately, he was not injured.

Sir C. Russell: That is earlier than any speech.

The Attorney-General: It is quite true, it is earlier than any speech that I have happened to have read, but Land League meetings took place and the organisation was, to a great extent, at work months before many of the speeches to which I have referred. Of course it is not by any means easy to get evidence of what passed at the earlier meetings, which were not of the same public character. I call your lordships' attention to the firing of the dwelling of Jeremiah Sullivan on Dec. 3, 1880. Sullivan was a tenant of Lord Ventry, and he had paid his rent. On the morning of Dec. 3 shots were fired into his bed-room window, which penetrated the curtains of the bed in which he and his wife were sleeping. The whole of the windows of the house were broken, and a threatening notice posted, stating that it was only because of the large family dependent upon Sullivan that he had not been shot, but that he would be shot if he paid his rent again. I will now give a summary of the outrages which occurred. On June 29, 1881, a house was attacked by an armed party, and its occupant, his brother, and sister, wounded with gunshot wounds. One of the occupier's arms had to be cut off. He had served some eviction notices on tenants who were under Mr. Herbert. On Sept. 6, 1881, William Cottis, of Knockbush, received notice that unless he apologised to the Land League for having paid his rent he would be boycotted, and his house was subsequently fired into. On Nov. 12, 1881, Thomas Galvin had paid his rent at Devereen, and his house was entered by an armed party, Galvin being fired at and wounded. On Dec. 7, 1881, Michael Flynn had his house entered at Cordal by an armed party, and, being charged with paying his rent, was fired at and wounded, his leg having to be cut off. On Feb. 21, 1882, the houses of Daniel M'Carthy and Daniel Lanaghan were fired into, they having paid their rent. On June 8, 1882, Cornelius Hickey, who had taken possession of a farm on Feb. 28, and refused to give it up, was shot, and died of his wounds. On March 6 Daniel Dooling was fired at and wounded in county Kerry. These outrages were occurring in Kerry daily, and I cannot help again noticing that there is not a single speech by a leader of the so-called Irish Constitutional Party restraining the Land Leaguers. If the leaders of the party were not conniving at what was going on, how is it they did not issue a circular pointing out the iniquity of the system that was being pursued? Yet during the whole of 1881-82 there was not a step taken either by Mr. Parnell or his followers to put an end to such a state of things. Daniel Dooling was a farmer suspected of paying his rent, and on March 6 a party of men entered and asked if he had paid his rent. He said he had, and had got a reduction, whereupon they ordered him into the yard and fired at him, wounding him in the thigh. The same party went into the houses of others, and inflicted injuries on some of them because they would not answer the questions put as to whether they had paid their rents. On March 10, at Knockadoon, county Kerry, the house of Timothy Connals was entered, and he was shot in the arms and legs, his wife was shot in the head and thigh, and his daughter was also wounded, his offence being the payment of rent and giving information to the police as to certain outrages. In that particular district, Miss Reynolds, the most violent of the lady organisers of the Land League, had previously been agitating; and it will be shown that she went there having her expenses paid with Land League money. On March 30, 1882, Mr. Arthur Herbert was murdered near Castleisland, he having been denounced in a speech I have already read. On April 17, 1882, John Cullifield was fired at and wounded in the leg, so that the limb had to be cut off, his offence being that he had given information to some officer of the law who had come into the neighbourhood. There were various other outrages of the same nature during 1882 and 1883, where men were shot at, wounded, and in some instances killed, for no other offence than that of taking evicted farms or temporary pasture on such farms; and these outrages could not but have come to the notice of those who were conducting the agitation. I will deal with the later outrages when I deal with the later speeches. I will now call attention to speeches made about the same time in the county of Mayo, and I want to make an observation as to the way in which this organisation was worked. Such men as Mr. Mat Harris, Mr. P. J. Gordon, and Mr. J. W. Nally were sent down to conduct the agitation, and made a series of speeches in various places. Mr. Boyton, the Harringtons, and others made speeches, and Mr. Biggar made some, but not so many. He, being a more important man, and having more duties to attend to, was not able to go to so many places, I suppose. Your lordships will find from the evidence that there were organisers doing the work in a systematic way in the various counties in Ireland, in order to make the power and influence of the Land League universally felt throughout the length and breadth of the land. The first of the speeches in the county of Mayo were delivered at a meeting held on May 2, 1880, when Mr. Boyton, Mr. Davitt, Mr. Parnell, and others were present. These leaders connived and winked at what was being done. They did not personally plan outrages, and of course they could not be connected with them, but they are the men who took advantage of the system. Without this thorough organisation, as they called it, it would have been impossible for Mr. Parnell to be supported by the members who subsequently supported him in Parliament, and the men who were nominated to take those places never would have been nominated at all. On June 13, 1880, Mr. J. W. Nally spoke of the abolition of the Peace Preservation Act, and said they could get a licence for shooting all the year round for 10s. "They could shoot jackdaws, magpies, vermin, and nuisances. (A Voice: The police.) Don't shoot the police. The landlords and landgrabbers were not brought under it. He was not telling them to shoot, but what they could do if they liked. They would have to pay £3 for game, but the other licence applied to vermin. They wanted to get rid of the landgrabbers." If there is anything to qualify language such as I have referred to, of course my learned friend is entitled to take advantage of it. I am not referring to this particular speech, but to a number of speeches, and it will be for your lordships to judge whether the statements that are made by the reporters, particularly having regard to what I have already put before you, do not represent substantially the pith of speeches intended to excite the people to the conduct which followed. At Shrule, on June 20, 1880, P. J. Gordon said, "I do not care if the throats of the enemies of the people are cut before the morning." He asked them to treat the enemies of Ireland with contempt, whereupon a voice said, "Give them what Lord Leitrim got," and J. W. Nally said, "You are too cowardly to do that." Mr. Gordon went on, "Do not forgive them. They have sold their nationality, and away with them." This was a man employed by the Irish Land League to explain the objects of the movement. On July 4, 1880, at Boohla, J. W. Nally and Walsh, both organisers, were present. Nally said, "There has been more good work done this week than long before." Very shortly before this speech an outrage had taken place in the immediate neighbourhood, and there was then dying from a fatal shot a man who had committed no offence, except that he had in some way offended the rules of the Land League. You will find this man Nally practically using the same language and giving the same advice in various parts of Ireland. These organisers were not gifted speakers selected for their eloquence, but selected and paid for organising this kind of work and promoting the views of the Land League. Therefore you find them giving the same advice, almost in the same words, in various parts of Ireland. On July 11, 1880, at Cong, Mayo, P. J. Gordon, Matthew Harris, J. Walsh, and Father O'Malley, parish priest, were present at the meeting. Gordon said "The man who takes an evicted farm, I will point him out as a greater assassin than the man who fires a pistol shot. They say we are promoting assassination; but is it not enough to make an assassin of any man when he sees his family sent forth into the world?" Father O'Malley said, "Talk is cheap, but what we want is action." This man, my lords, is a minister of religion. He went on, "The landlords have murdered the people. A man said to me, 'Is it not a savage thing to take away a man's life;' but what will you say to a man who brings it upon himself?" On Sept. 19, 1880, Nally, speaking at a meeting at Cloonheal, co. Mayo, said: "I have seen some landgrabbers, both this day and the day previously. They had the look of Judas Iscariot. Any man can have a rifle and use it. They are very cheap now. I tell you you can shoot. There is no close season for shooting vermin." Your lordships will not fail to note that the carrying out of that part of the programme would be acceptable in America. Before this case is over you will have no doubt of the effect on the American branch of these speeches day by day and month by month. This meeting was also addressed by J. Sweeney and J. P. Walsh. The latter said he was glad to say the light was spreading, owing to the exertions of Redpath and others like him. With regard to that statement—"the light was spreading"—your lordships will find that there was what was called a Spread-the-light Fund, and that when that expression was used, both on this side and on the other, it had special reference to this. One of the ways of "spreading the light" was the circulation in Ireland, among other papers, of the Irish World—a paper which openly advocates dynamite and assassination. Your lordships will find that some of the men who are implicated actually applied for thousands of copies of the Irish World to be sent over, and Mr. Parnell himself publicly thanked the Irish World more than once for the aid it had given to the Land League. It may be said that this association was perfectly harmless; that they knew Ford, but did not then suspect him to be the man he was; that in like manner they knew Byrne, but did not then think him to be the criminal they now know him to be; but I shall be able to show that these men were only known as the advocates of dynamite and assassination, and, therefore, it will not be difficult for your lordships to come to the conclusion that the Irish section and the American section were banded together in the promotion of a common object. On Oct. 10, 1880, a meeting was held at Ballyholis, at which the speakers were Mr. Mat. Harris and Mr. James Daly. The latter said that Lord Mountmorres was not worth shooting as a landlord; that he was shot because he fined a man 10s for pulling heather and because he was a seducer. Mr. Harris said the liberty and independence of their country could only be gained by fighting, not by talking. If they had any wish for severance from England, let them make up their minds to pay no rent. They had the game in their own hands, and let them beware of him who would tell them to pay rent. On April 3, 1881, at Ballytaffy, Mr. J. P. Quinn, who was connected with one of the branches of the Land League in some official capacity, said, "I would not give one day in the furtherance of the land movement if I did not believe that the day will soon come when the banner of freedom will float over Ireland; when the iniquitous landlord system will be abolished; and the English Government done terrorising over us. Let no man be guilty of treacherous conduct by occupying a farm from which one has been evicted. If any man is so guilty, shun him as the very devil; boycott him." At the same meeting P. J. Gordon spoke of the "bloody British Government," and said the landgrabber should be looked upon in the light of Judas, who dipped his hand in the same dish as our Lord and then betrayed him. "We have met here again to-day to denounce any man who takes a farm. We will make it a hot shop for him. I say the English Government is the most tyrannical, the most despotic, and the most damnable in the whole world. If you had the bold spirit of the Boers you would have had your country free a hundred years ago. (Cheers for the Boers.) Commit no crime, stick to the system of boycotting." Will my learned friend say that that is a denunciation of crime—an earnest appeal by those powerful orators not to be guilty of crime? If not, I will ask your lordships to draw your own conclusions from such a suggestion. On Oct. 31, 1880, at Shrule, in county Mayo, J. W. Nally and R. D. Walsh, Land League representatives, were the speakers. There were banners on which were inscribed, "Down With the Landgrabbers!" Nally said that on one occasion he suggested pills, but he found the pills had got mild; they were nothing but sweets. He would now suggest something stronger—dynamite and guncotton. P. J. Quinn said there was no one present who had done more to advance the cause of nationality than John Nally and himself. He added, "Are we to be told that the National League and the Fenians cannot unite? The case of every farmer who is a Land Leaguer is the case of every man who is a Fenian." I should be surprised if that line of argument were admitted by counsel representing those charged, and should they do so it would be an absolute justification of the charges made in "Parnellism and Crime." On the 10th of the same month, at Roundfort, P. J. Gordon said "they were bound to resist that law which had proscribed their forefathers from land which was theirs." Then he said, "If you see any landgrabbers among you, shun them as if they were the devil; pass them in the chapel, and do not speak to them. The Boers are the boys to face the English soldiers. If the Irish people only held out like the Boers, the landlords and agents would soon be glad to settle with them and give them all they ask. Keep your own arms ready and your firearms safe." On April 13, at Claremorris, P. J. Gordon again spoke. He called for three cheers for Father Corbett, and said, "Keep the flag flying; don't let it go down. Keep your powder dry, and blow Burke to blazes some fine morning—Walter of Curralli." This was the Walter Burke who was afterwards shot—a case I have already mentioned—and I would ask whether this speech was not a direct incitement to the crime. I now come to the particulars of the outrages which took place contemporaneously with these speeches in co. Mayo. For the year and a half between the end of 1880 and the beginning of 1882 there were in that county five murders, fourteen firings at people and wounding them, eighteen firings into houses, and a very large number of other outrages of a less serious character. On March 28, 1880, occurred the case of Michael Nolans. His house was attacked by an armed party about two or three o'clock in the morning. His house was fired into, and both he and his wife were assaulted for having taken evicted land. I will refer to some of the speeches connected with these outrages. The coincidence of the dates is most remarkable. There was the case of Fearig, agent for Mr. George Brown, who had got possession of some land which had been occupied by a woman of the name of Gellatly. The Land League meetings began in the district as early as April 1, 1879. On May 3 speeches were made by Mr. Davitt, Mr. Parnell, and Mr. Boyton. On May 4, the day after the meeting, Fearig was shot at and wounded, but not severely. On June 13 there was a meeting at Ballyglass, at which Mr. Nally spoke of "licences to shoot vermin." On June 14 placards were posted at Ballinrobe stating that the names of landgrabbers would be published. On June 20 violent speeches were made by Walsh and Nally, and on June 29 Fearig was fired at again, receiving the shot from which he died. Afterwards, whilst Fearig was lying at the hospital, Mr. Nally made a speech, in which he said something had been done last night which was better than speechifying. It was impossible to trace these outrages to anything but the agitation. On Jan. 4, 1881, Patrick Kirwin, who had taken care of the crop on an evicted farm for the landlord, was dragged out of his house and kicked, and was "carded" in the face. On Feb. 28, 1881, occurred the case of the attempt to murder John Herne, clerk to the Petty Sessions of Ballinrobe. On May 18, 1880, there having been some proceedings taken for eviction, and the evicted persons having been readmitted as caretakers, John Herne was pointed out by Mr. J. W. Nally, one of the speakers at a meeting of that date, and was mobbed on his return home. They regarded this clerk of the peace as being in some way connected with the enforcement of the law, and a threatening notice was sent him in November by post telling him that as agent of a certain estate he would have to leave the neighbourhood. On Feb. 28 he was walking home from Ballinrobe, and when about 200 yards from his house more than three shots were fired at him. He was wounded, and, I believe, his hearing has been permanently affected. He was obliged to give up his agencies and clerkship. On Nov. 17, 1881, Luke Dillon was murdered. He was bailiff on the estate of Mr. Farrell. The Land League having some idea that pressure ought to be brought to bear upon Mr. Farrell, vengeance was wreaked upon his agent. He was shot about half-past eight in the evening. On Dec. 15, Michael Flynn, Thomas Mooran, and J. Mooran, three tenant farmers, were attacked in their houses. They were dragged from their beds and shots fired at them. Their offence was that they had paid rents, and they were not to pay them so long as Mr. Parnell was in Kilmainham. On March 15, 1882, George Shane Carter was shot in the leg, and on March 25, 1882, Peter M'Greevy, a small farmer at Castlebar, who was supposed to have given some information to the police, was attacked in his house. He fired at his assailants, who went away for a time, but came back and shot at him through the door and inflicted serious injuries upon him. On May 11, 1882, Thomas Burrett was murdered. He had taken a farm which had been occupied by one Ryan, and within a week he and his family were shot in their house. We have these denunciations of persons called landgrabbers, and one cannot help asking oneself what a landgrabber is. To say that a man shall be treated as outcast, criminal, shot at, boycotted, and if necessary killed, because he has taken a piece of land, and that that doctrine should be taught, propagated, and encouraged, is the most infamous and horrible tyranny that can be possibly suggested. For persons to say that this is constitutional agitation is a gross abuse of terms, an outrage on the understanding and the use of language. The charges in "Parnellism and Crime" which we have formulated in our particulars show that this organisation could only exist and get its power by conduct which would result in such outrages becoming the law of the land as distinguished from the proper recognised authority. I have a long list of other firings in Mayo, but, as I have called attention to the murder cases, it may be sufficient to pass from that county for the present. The Attorney-General then read the "No Rent Manifesto," which, he said, purported to be signed by Mr. Parnell from Kilmainham, Mr. Kettle, Mr. Davitt, Mr. Brennan, Mr. Dillon, Mr. Sexton, and Mr. Patrick Egan. M. Davitt was described as "honorary secretary, Portland Prison," Thomas Brennan as hon. secretary, Mr. Dillon and Mr. Sexton as head organisers, and Mr. Patrick Egan as treasurer. The learned gentleman continued: This document was read by Mr. Henry Campbell, now a member of Parliament, at the weekly meeting of the Land League in Dublin, on Oct. 18, 1881, there being present Mr. Biggar, Mr. T. D. Sullivan, Mr. Leamy, and a number of Roman Catholic priests. I do not, at the present moment, stop to mention to your lordships the circumstances under which that manifesto was got out of Kilmainham, and I say nothing, in fact, in connection with it apart from the particular use I am about to make of it. In several of the outrages to which I have referred it will be proved that the offence was that rent had been paid contrary to the manifesto, for after this date it was circulated throughout Ireland and made the text by League speakers, and particularly at the meetings of the Ladies' Land League. Mr. Parnell and others, who had signed this, knew the work which had been going on; and I shall ask your lordships to consider it ridiculous to suggest that Mr. Parnell, Mr. Dillon, Mr. Biggar, Mr. Sexton, Mr. Patrick Egan, Mr. Brennan, Mr. Kettle, and others, who had been active in the management of the League, did not know what it had been doing. Reports were sent in month by month, and week by week, and I shall show that the central office was in direct communication with the branches, and was also constantly paying money that the work of the branches might be carried on. Mr. Egan was the treasurer, and Mr. Brennan was the secretary. These men did know and ought to know what had been the work of the League for two years. If they did not know, which it is almost impossible to conceive, then the manifesto was meaningless in its reference to the magnificent organisation by which landlordism had been brought to its knees. If in 1879 and 1880 the Land League was doing the work it was constituted for, and that Mr. Parnell intended it should do, it is idle after the speeches I have read to suggest that these people did not know that this was the work which the Land League was doing. If the Land League was intended to do other work, and was doing other work, where is the evidence of it? Your lordships will hear some very remarkable evidence in regard to the disappearance of Land League papers and books. If there was any evidence at all of genuine Land League work I would put it before your lordships, because I am here to give your lordships every opportunity of investigating the truth of these charges. The allegations which the Times made, and which it repeats through me, is that the object, purview, and intention of this organisation were to destroy the relation of landlord and tenant, through the tenants to bring the landlords to their knees, and so sweep away the English garrison of landlords. Now, simultaneously with the No Rent Manifesto was posted, apparently by the same people, at any rate, side by side with it, and in no way repudiated by Mr. Biggar or Mr. Campbell, or any of the other acting officials of the Land League, this No Rent Manifesto signed by Patrick Ford, and posted throughout the length and breadth of Ireland: "No Rent. Parnell, Davitt, Dillon, Sexton, Kettle, Brennan, and Egan." Those, your lordships will notice, were the names of the persons who were signatories to the No Rent Manifesto which was supposed to come from the Land League. "Fly the Land Court, 'tis a sham, a fraud; he who acts the traitor in the hour of Ireland's trial shall pay the penalty of his villainy. It is a noble cause you are engaged in. 'Tis a holy crusade against a hell-born class—a class that plundered you and yours for centuries; a class who have grown fat upon the blood of yourselves and your children; a class who, rotting in lust and covered with human gore, stalk through the land, scattering sickness, sorrow, misery, affliction, hunger, want, and desolation in their loathsome path. 'Tis a war of right against might, of justice and liberty against tyranny and oppression, of charity, humanity, and Christianity against selfishness, brutality, and immorality. Stand firm, undaunted, undeterred in your resolve to have the land that gave you birth, and though 60,000 bayonets may bristle around you, and buckshot rain upon you, God is with you, and you cannot be defeated. One more blow, and victory is yours. Hold the rent, hold the harvest, hold the land, and the new year which is about to dawn upon us shall welcome a nation from bondage released. To the Men of Ireland. Office of the Irish World, New York. Men of Ireland, the eyes of the world are on you; stand together; be faithful to your imprisoned chiefs; obey the manifesto, No Rent; prepare for sacrifice; be brave; be prudent; rely on America, and money and sympathy will flow over to you. We will succour the children of the evicted, and honour moral heroes. Landlordism must go. Be true to principle, and redemption is assured. God save Ireland.—Patrick Ford." What I want to know is, is it going to be suggested that Patrick Ford and his organisation and the hands that penned the No Rent Manifesto were not working with the same objects? That has never been repudiated by Patrick Ford. There is not the slightest doubt that it was issued. Your lordships will be satisfied that it was issued with the knowledge of Mr. Biggar, of the Irish Land League, and with the knowledge, and possibly the direct authority, of the Irish leaders.

The Court at this stage adjourned for luncheon.

On resuming, the Attorney-General, continuing, said: Just before I read the manifesto signed Patrick Ford your lordships may have heard the comment, "Who issued it?"

The President: The document purporting to have been issued from Kilmainham is what you call the "No Rent Manifesto"?

The Attorney-General: Yes. I shall be able to prove two telegrams immediately preceding the issue of the "No Rent Manifesto" from Kilmainham. One from "Ford to Egan": "Communicate with Parnell, if possible; consult with your colleagues, and issue manifesto, 'No rent'"; the other was from "Egan to Ford": "Your suggestions approved. Prompt measures are now in progress to procure general strike against rent. Manifesto will be issued without delay. It is the only weapon that now remains in our hands." Now I come to the large amount of money received from America and other places by the Land League, and the comparatively small amount which has been accounted for, and I also have to ask your lordships to consider what has become of the Land League books and papers, meaning those of 1880 and 1881. I read in the trial "O'Donnell v. Walter" the following letter:

"Oct. 18, 1881.

"M. J. Kenny, Esq., M.D., Dublin.

"Dear Sir—Yours received. Mr. O'C—— and Mr. Sheridan will proceed to London to-day. I will go by Liverpool, and bring the books from there to Palace-chambers, and I shall also instruct the men at Liverpool to return to Dublin as you request. Mr. O'Connor wishes you to send him a cheque for £30 on his bankers, Messrs. Ridgway and Co., 2, Waterloo-place, London. This sum is to enable us to pay our way as we go on.—Yours truly,

"H. CAMPBELL."

This document, it will be found, was received in due course at the Land League office. There is no record of the date the books were sent from Dublin to London, no doubt through a fear of the books and documents being discovered. Now, assuming these books and documents to be innocent and to relate only to a constitutional agitation by a political organisation, why should they not be forthcoming? What has become of them? Where are they now? The original of this letter was produced with other documents to the solicitors of the Times by a Land League clerk, who will be called before you and give evidence with regard to that and other documents. I merely refer to that letter at the present time for the purpose of fixing the date at which the books were in Dublin—Oct. 18, 1881. But these were not the only documents which, perhaps more by accident than from any other cause, happened to be also in the possession of the Land League clerk. There were found in his possession and will be produced—and the handwriting upon them in many cases will be proved—two batches of documents relating to part of the work done at the Land League offices on two occasions shortly before the books were removed to London. Those documents will be very material, not only for their contents, but for the purpose of showing the system which was being carried on and the connection between the branches of the Land League and the central office. I only trust that it may be possible to get at the corresponding documents for the earlier months, if they have not been destroyed. Although many of the documents are in themselves not very material, they are all of some importance as showing what was going on. They prove undoubtedly that the National Land League—by which I mean the central office—was paying for the work that was being done by the branches—paying persons who were refusing to work for boycotted people, paying persons who were carrying out the decrees of the Land League and thereby losing their employment, and, what is more important, paying for outrages that were committed. There will be no doubt whatever about the proof of these documents. One of the men closely connected with the Land League chiefs was Mr. John Fergusson, of Glasgow. My learned friend's clients will be able to give him information as to Mr. John Fergusson, of Glasgow. He will be proved to be a high official in the Land League. I will read a letter which I shall be able to prove. On Sept. 28, 1881, just a month before the documents were removed, Timothy Horan, from the Irish Land League office, Castleisland, wrote to J. P. Quinn at the Land League central office. Quinn was an official of the Land League, and Timothy Horan was the local secretary of the Castleisland branch. Timothy Horan is dead, but his handwriting will be proved. The letter ran:

"Sir—I beg to direct your attention to a matter of private character which I attempted to explain to you when I was at the Dublin Convention. The fact is that one of the men from a shot lost the use of his eye. It cost him £4 to go to Cork for medical attendance. Another man received a wound in the thigh, and was laid up for a month. No one knew the patients but the doctor, myself, and the members of the society. I may inform you that the said parties cannot afford to suffer. If it were a public affair a subscription list would be opened at once for them, as they proved to be heroes. One man escaped a shot and got his jaw grazed. Hoping you will at your discretion see your way to making a grant, which you can send through me or the Catholic curate, yours truly, TIMOTHY HORAN."

That letter was endorsed with the grant—the exact amount I think was £6—which was initialled by John Fergusson. I am perfectly aware that the grant is small. It happens that in that particular batch of documents there is only one that we are able to trace directly as being connected with outrages. I am not at all sure that I will not be able by accident to connect with this particular letter the outrage in connection with which the wounding occurred. This was, in all probability, a case in which men had gone out on some moonlighting expedition, and in which some firing back by the police took place, wounds being inflicted. That is the reason why I think it may be possible to trace the outrage. If it be suggested that there was no connection between the Dublin centre of the Land League and the outrage what is the meaning of the words, "I may inform you that the said parties cannot afford to suffer. If it were a public affair a subscription list would be opened at once for them, as they proved to be heroes." In the same batch of papers are a very considerable number of cases of payments to persons who were carrying out the behests of the League, and requests, among others, for persons to be paid because they had declined to work for people in accordance with the orders of the League. There are statements in one of the cases that unless the men are paid they will not be able to get the orders of the League carried out. In all these instances a money grant was made, sometimes for the amount asked, sometimes not so much, and they were all initialled "J. F." by Fergusson, who was then connected with the treasurer's department of the Land League. Your lordships will understand why I say that if all the documents could be produced in the state in which they originally were they might give a very large amount of information as to what was being done during the previous years. It was a purely accidental circumstance that these documents were found—that they happened have been left in the possession of a Land League official. The facts will be proved beyond all question and the circumstances under which they were found. Little important as they may be in themselves, yet, taken in connection with the speeches and what I have already described, they will justify one in asking your lordships to draw a very strong inference as to what was the connection between the Central League and the branches under whose subordinate commands the particular acts of outrage were being perpetrated. I should also mention that the letters to which I have referred do not all come from the same place. Some are from Cork, and others from various districts, signed by different secretaries. They show a system. I must now call your lordships' attention to the speeches and outrages in the county of Cork. There were people in Cork who fought the Land League courageously all along the line. It will be not unimportant to notice the way in which those persons who were bold enough to fight the battle of independence and of law and order against the Land League were treated. There is a man named Peggotty, who lives in Mill-street, who throughout has shown most courageous defiance of the League. He has been shot at more than once; he has been the object of most unbounded denunciation by some leading members of the Land League. There are others—some women among them—who have also fought to maintain their independence, and not to submit to the tyranny of the League. I refer to them because it is perhaps only one out of a hundred who will be found bold enough to run the risk of beggary, or maiming, or death, and these so-called constitutional leaders were perfectly well informed that the county was being organised in the way they desired. They had subdued, practically speaking, the great majority of the population to their will. The Cork speeches run over a very long period. There was a meeting at Dunmanway on April 30, 1880, addressed by M. J. Boyton, who said that a little story had been told at the Rotunda about Mr. Parnell. An American gentleman had sent him $25, "five for bread and twenty for lead." There was also a meeting at Castle Lyons, addressed by various speakers, and another on Oct. 24, at which Mr. Healy spoke. On Aug. 7, 1881, there was a meeting of the Land League at Dunmanway, at which Mr. P. O'Hea, one of the persons named in the charges and allegations, and now a Member of Parliament, a man named O'Neill, of the Cork Land League, and Miss Parnell, were present. O'Neill said that the "time has now come when we must meet landlordism at the sword's point. It is now a question of Land Leaguism against landlordism." Mr. O'Hea, who I am sorry to find is a solicitor, said, "The object of the Land League was passive resistance to the law." Passive resistance! I am not sure that that is a doctrine solicitors are supposed to inculcate. There was a meeting on Oct. 2, 1881, in Cork, at which were present C. S. Parnell, T. P. O'Connor, T. M. Healy, Mr. Redpath, J. R. Hefferman, and Father Eugene Sheehy. Mr. Parnell said, "If any tenant farmer is tempted to make his own bargain behind the backs of his neighbours, let him recollect that the Irish people behind him will see that he does full justice to those placed under him." Father Eugene Sheehy said, "They stood there to say that stay their steps they would not until they had planted the glorious banners of Ireland not only on landlordism but on that Government and alien race it represented. The national idea has become no longer so much 'Down with landlordism,' as 'Down with England's rule in Ireland.'" In the county Cork there were a long series of speeches in the year 1885. I don't desire to deal with them now, but I wish to point out that through the years 1885 and 1886, and right down to the publication of these articles, speeches were being made under the auspices of the National League, which is the direct successor of the Land League, with the same result in violence. I had better, perhaps, repeat here what I said in opening the case of "O'Donnell against Walter," that, so far as I know, no leading representative of the Parnellite party has ever suggested that there was any difference whatever between the Land League and the National League. They were the same organisations, controlled by the same money and the same officers, and acting on entirely the same lines.——The Attorney-General proceeded to direct attention to the outrages which had been committed in Cork. On July 16, 1880, Mr. Samuel Hutchins was returning home in a dog-cart driven by Downey, when he was shot at, but the ball hit Downey, who was mortally wounded. This was one of the cases in which, as Mr. Biggar said, the wrong man was shot. On Jan. 22, 1881, six men broke into the house of Jeremiah Buckley, and asked him if he had paid his rent. On his replying that he had, one of them took a pair of scissors and cut off part of his right ear. On Oct. 3, 1881, Patrick Cleary was fired at and so severely wounded that he died. On Oct. 31, in the same year, Peter Keilaher, who had taken land from Geo. Coulthurst, was shot through the thigh. With regard to county Clare. On Sept. 19 there was a meeting at Ennis at which were present Mr. Parnell, Mr. Finigan, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Healy, and Mr. Carew. Mr. Parnell said, referring to the question whether the farmers should give evidence before the Land Commission, his opinion was that, whatever harm they might do to the cause, they would certainly be able to do it no good. Then he said: "What are you to do with a tenant who bids for a farm from which his neighbour was evicted. (Cries of 'Kill him,' 'Shoot him.') I think that I heard somebody say 'Shoot him.' I wish to point out a better way, a more Christianlike and a more charitable way, which will give the lost sinner an opportunity for repentance. You must shun him in the streets of the town, by leaving him severely alone, by putting him into moral Coventry. Isolate him like the leper of old." The leaving people severely alone, the Attorney-General contended, would not be sufficient to enforce the power of the League unless the ultimate steps of removing the obnoxious persons were taken if it should become necessary. These principles were enlarged upon by other speakers, and over and over again references were made to the treatment of the landgrabber as a leper. On Nov. 12, 1882, Mr. Redmond and Dr. Kenny also made speeches at Ennis. These speeches were sooner or later followed by murders and other outrages, and very soon the ordinary police-force had to be increased from 327 to 600. Between January, 1881, and February, 1882, there were six murders and twelve attempts at assassination: whilst from February, 1882, to November, 1885 (when the Crimes Act had come into force), there were six attempted assassinations. The minor outrages and boycotting were very numerous, and were all traceable to no other cause than that the unfortunate sufferers had given offence to the local branches of the Land League. Having explained many of the worst cases in detail, the learned Attorney-General proceeded: I propose now for the very short period which is at my disposal this afternoon to go back to the story so far as it has been laid before your lordships after the autumn of 1881. In the first place, I have, though I have not been able to confine myself absolutely to the years 1881 and 1882, shown your lordships what was the character of the work that was being done under the Land League and at the instigation of the Land League, and what was the character of the speeches that were delivered at the Land League meetings up till October, 1881, and during the time Mr. Parnell was confined in Kilmainham. As I have already more than once told your lordships, I shall have to refer to the speeches delivered in 1885 and 1886, and the outrages which followed these speeches, and to show that what is stated in "Parnellism and Crime" is true: that the same kind of work was being carried on by the subsequent organisation called the National League. From October, 1881, till May, 1882, Mr. Parnell was in Kilmainham. Your lordships must not suppose that there was no communication with Mr. Parnell during the time he was in Kilmainham. In connection with the document to which I shall have to refer in a very few moments it has been suggested—I do not know whether it may be suggested again—that there was a difficulty in documents being got out of Kilmainham. I think it will appear as a matter of fact that there was not the slightest difficulty in getting documents out of Kilmainham. In the first place there is the "No Rent Manifesto." That document, which was signed by Mr. Parnell, was got out of Kilmainham. It appears by the statement of the followers of Mr. Parnell himself to have been got out by the action of Dr. Kenny, and a testimonial was afterwards promoted and given to Dr. Kenny for the part he had played. But that is by no means all. In the course of the trial "O'Donnell v. Walter" a letter was produced from Mr. Parnell to Mr. O'Donnell which came out of Kilmainham, and which the governor, the officials, and the warders did not see, and if it be in any way subject of dispute we shall bring evidence to show that documents were freely passing from those inside Kilmainham to those outside; nay, more, communications were appearing in the public press. One of the reasons which has been suggested as a ground why you ought to hold that certainly one of the documents to which I am going to refer is a forgery is that it was impossible such a letter could have been got out of Kilmainham; that the governor must have seen it; and that it was impossible for any such letter to have been written. Before I come to that letter I have to tell your lordships as well as I can what was passing in reference to the Land League and its operations in the autumn of 1881 and early in 1882. I have already told you the Ladies' Land League took the place, so far as ordinary organisation was concerned, of the Land League. It had control of the money, and, to a certain extent, of the records of the Land League, and was supposed to carry on its work. There was also started, or in existence, an English branch of the Land League, of which Frank Byrne was secretary. Frank Byrne, a name of which your lordships will hear a good deal, has not been in England, nor in the United Kingdom, so far as I know, since the month of February or March, 1883. Egan, who was the treasurer of the Land League, has also not been in this country since February or March, 1883. Both of these gentlemen have been in America, and in connection with their being in America in close association with them there are several other names to which I shall call your lordships' attention when I come to deal with the American part of the case. What was Egan doing? I think your lordships will have no doubt that Egan in Paris was arranging for the carrying on of the work of the Land League and providing funds for that purpose. He was still the treasurer of the Land League. It will probably be shown that a considerable sum of money was transferred to Paris. But be that as it may, Egan was treasurer, and was carrying on the work as it had been carried on until the time he left Ireland. Egan went to Paris in the early part of 1881. On or about that time Sheridan had been arrested. I shall put it in evidence before your lordships that some documents passed from Egan, and I shall ask your lordships to draw your own conclusions as to what these documents mean.

The President: You have taken two dates with regard to Egan, 1883 and 1881.

The Attorney-General: Yes; 1883 is the time Egan left for America; 1881 is the time he went to Paris. He was back in England for some period between 1881 and 1883, but it was in 1883 that he finally left for America. The reason he left in 1883 was, I believe, because statements were made by informers with regard to the Phœnix Park murders which caused more than one person to leave England, or the place where he was, and to go to America.

Sir Charles Russell: Including Patrick Egan?

The Attorney-General: Including Egan. Now, on Oct. 25, 1881, Egan wrote to James Carey this letter from Paris:

"Oct. 25, 1881.

"Dear Sir—I have by this post sent M. £200. He will give you what you want. When will you undertake to get to work, and give us value for our money?—I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully,

"PATRICK EGAN.

"Jas. Carey, Esq."

I do not know, my lord, if that letter was sent or not by Mr. Egan; if not, the handwriting is a successful forgery. If the letter be genuine "M" refers to Malony. It seems to me impossible to reconcile the contents of the letter with any innocent and honest purpose, with any purpose which would have been expressed in plain language, indicating for what object the money was intended. Be that as it may, there is the letter. It will be placed before your lordships, and if at the end of this case you have to consider what the position of Egan was and for what purpose he could have sent that £200, I shall be able to criticise any suggestion that may be made. Egan undoubtedly was a person closely connected with Carey. I may mention, as having a very direct bearing upon the question of handwriting, other letters which passed about the same time between Egan and Carey will be submitted. They are dated Nov. 9, Nov. 27, and Dec. 20, 1881. There is one important fact in connection with these letters, which I shall mention in the course of my opening. I stated in opening the case of "O'Donnell v. Walter" that these three letters were found in the house of James Carey, and that the body of one of them was in the handwriting of Mr. Campbell. I had no instructions then as to whether Mr. Campbell was in Paris at the time, but it will turn out, on evidence which I shall put before your lordships, that he was in Paris at the time that letter was written, and that Mr. Campbell appears to have acted in that particular case as he did in other cases, as secretary for persons with whom he was connected. I only refer to the matter for the purpose of at once stating before your lordships to what extent we have been able to identify and prove the handwriting. We have got genuine specimens of Mr. Campbell's handwriting at the time. We have got a letter that he undoubtedly wrote to Mr. Quinn respecting Land League books. This letter was written a few weeks before the letter the body of which is in his handwriting. Of course, it is perfectly possible that Egan might not have been acquainted with the antecedents of Carey, and with what his conduct was likely to be. As to what passed between the American and English branches of the League at this time, I may say that there will be some important matters to refer as to what went on on the other side of the Atlantic, and in which some prominent members of the Land League in Ireland were undoubtedly connected. But I pass now at once to the document which will be put in evidence before you, and which has given rise to the suggestion from my learned friend that it is a forgery. The letter is to Egan in Paris, and is as follows:

"9, 1, 82.

"Dear E.—What are these fellows waiting for? This inaction is inexcusable. Our best men are in prison and nothing is being done. Let there be an end of this hesitancy. Prompt action is called for. You undertook to make it hot for old Forster and Co. Let me have some evidence of your power to do so. My health is good—thanks.—Yours very truly,

"CHAS. S. PARNELL."

At the present I am not able to state in whose handwriting the body of that letter is. In all probability before the end of this case your lordships will have an opportunity of forming your judgment as to that. To the particular expressions in it I will not attach any great importance. It does not seem to me to be fair and right to do so. The expression "old Forster and Co." does not of necessity mean any outrage on Mr. Forster himself, because it was an expression that had undoubtedly been used by Mr. Parnell in connection with other matters previously, and referred to what I may call general outrages, which would embarrass Mr. Forster and impede the Government in which he was a representative. It does not seem fair to suggest more than that, and I do not wish to press any particular matter further than it should be pressed. With regard to the knowledge Mr. Parnell had of what Mr. Egan had done, what I have said already shows that Mr. Parnell was thoroughly acquainted with what was going on. This is only one instance in connection with the whole series whereby intimate relations between Mr. Parnell and Mr. Egan are established. Then, again, of course, it relates solely to Mr. Parnell. It has nothing to do with Messrs. Harris, Harrington, and Biggar, and other persons against whom we have made, and against whom we repeat, exactly the same charges which are formulated in the particulars. My lords, there are matters in connection with that letter in connection with certain parts of the handwriting on which it would be improper for me to comment at the present time. The Times newspaper believes it to be a genuine document. They will put before your lordships a full explanation with regard to the letters so far as they are concerned. Every circumstance in connection with the letters will be explained. I am perfectly aware that over and over again in the course of these proceedings the word "forgery" has been used. My lords, all I can say is this—that your lordships will have ample opportunity to investigate them and to examine as to which side the proof lies in that respect. I am not at liberty at the present time, nor should I even if I were, to mention more names to your lordships. In all probability, long before the end of this case all the names of the persons connected with the way in which these letters were obtained, and the circumstances in which they were obtained, will be explained. For reasons which are obvious I shall decline at the present time to make any further statement as to the persons from whom, or the way in which, they were obtained. The sum of money which was paid for the letters will in no way be kept back, for it would be ridiculous to suppose that the Times would obtain such letters without paying for them. If that be anything to throw discredit on the letters that is a matter for your lordships to consider. This I may be allowed to say, that not one penny was promised or any bargain made until the documents had been for months in the hands of the Times, and had been examined by perfectly independent persons, and the handwriting tested by means of undoubtedly genuine specimens of Mr. Parnell's handwriting. But one word more on the subject of this letter to avoid repetition in the future. It is said in connection with these and other letters that some principal features in the handwriting of Mr. Parnell are wanting. Explanations have been given by Mr. Parnell—not altogether consistent explanations—and reasons put forward from which conclusions are drawn that they are forgeries. My lords, with every one of those suggestions if they be repeated we shall have to be ready to deal, and by the production of undoubted specimens we will enable your lordships to judge whether the minute differences of the signature are worthy of much weight, having regard to the presence or absence of those particular features. Your lordships are aware, with regard to this part of the case, I have simply repeated exactly what I stated at the trial of "O'Donnell v. Walter." As to what the letter proves, it proves nothing more, and I have never contended otherwise than this, that there were most intimate relations between Mr. Parnell and Mr. Egan, and most intimate relations between the other gentlemen whose names are mentioned in the particulars. Whatever may be your lordships' ultimate judgment on the whole of this matter you have to deal with the allegations made in "Parnellism and Crime." The summary of those charges are in the particulars and referred to in various passages put down in writing—from which the whole charge is that Mr. Parnell was intimately connected with the men who were carrying on these outrages, and that the force by which he was working was supported by the conspiracy of the Land League, and that without that conspiracy he would not have been successful in effecting one-fourth part of his objects. Of the other circumstances connected with the imprisonment of Mr. Parnell I have little to say. I have to refer to several incidents not referred to in my opening—O'Donnell and Walter—in furtherance of the view I am now pressing on your lordships that there was an intimate relation between Mr. Parnell and those who had been actually organising outrages. That particular part of the story I ask your lordships to allow me to postpone until to-morrow. But I will utilise the brief period of time which remains before the adjournment to intimate to your lordships what had been taking place prior to May, 1882, at which time the principal instances to which I shall refer to-morrow occur. Sheridan, as your lordships have already been told, was arrested in the year 1881. He was released. After he was released, and during the earlier part of 1882, he was going about Ireland disguised as a priest. The evidence put before your lordships will place beyond a doubt that Sheridan was organising outrages in the West of Ireland, and that Boyton was organising outrages, principally in Leinster. And whatever may be your views as to the ease or difficulty with which communications could be made from one side of Kilmainham to the other, I shall be able to satisfy you that Mr. Parnell knew pretty well not only that the outrages were taking place, but knew the persons who had been mainly instrumental in them. I shall state details from which your lordships must come to the conclusion that there was most intimate knowledge on the part of Mr. Parnell of the work of Sheridan and Boyton, and that he knew well what their influence and power was. Davitt at this time was at Portland. I shall show you that before he was released Mr. Parnell and Mr. Dillon had an interview with him at Portland; and that his release was postponed with that object at the request of Mr. Parnell. I shall show, too, that beyond the reference made to Mr. Davitt in "Parnellism and Crime" as to his being connected with Fenianism, Mr. Davitt had no connection with the outrages to which I have been alluding, and took no active part in connection with the organisation of the Land League meetings. At the head of this organisation were Messrs. Parnell, Biggar, Matthew Harris, Brennan, T. Harrington, and others; but, so far as I know, Michael Davitt was not connected with that part of the organisation which had to do with the agrarian agitation in 1881 and 1882. I shall be able to show clearly that Mr. Parnell was intimately acquainted at that time with the way the conspiracy had been worked, with the persons who worked it, and with the effect of the organisation upon the country and upon the poorer members of the organisation in Ireland.

At this point the Court adjourned.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT—OCT. 23.

(Before the RECORDER.)

"MRS. GORDON BAILLIE."—Robert Percival Bodley Frost, 29, and Annie Frost, 29, but stated to be much older, were charged with conspiring to commit various frauds upon London tradesmen.—Mr. Poland and Mr. Mead, instructed by Mr. St. John Wontner, prosecuted on behalf of the Treasury; Mr. Kemp, Q.C., and Mr. Rose Innes appeared for the female defendant; and Mr. Besley and Mr. Partridge defended the other prisoner. Annie Frost stepped into the dock dressed in fashionable costume but without a hat, while Robert was respectably dressed in dark-coloured garments. A man named Gigner, who acted as servant, was indicted with them for conspiracy, but since the adjournment at last sessions he has fallen and broken a leg, and was therefore unable to appear.—Annie Frost, Mr. Poland explained, is the lady who has been figuring lately as "Mrs. Gordon Baillie," and taking an interest in the Scottish crofters, and movements to assist people to emigrate. Her own name was Ann Ogilvie Bruce, and in 1877 she married a musician, named Thomas White, who went to Australia, and is now living there. Afterwards she took the name of "Mrs. Gordon Baillie," and was able in 1885 to deposit £1,290 in order to open an account with Smith, Payne, and Co. In 1887 this account was closed, there being a balance of £1 19s 6d due to the bank. In some way she got acquainted with Robert Frost, whose relatives are respectable and very well off. Occasionally he had considerable sums of money to dispose of, but he got into difficulties through company promoters, and was made bankrupt. The two went to Australia, but returned towards the end of last year. They alleged that they were married, but Mr. Poland stated that no certificate was produced, and the woman's husband was undoubtedly alive in Australia. The female deposited £200 with Smith, Payne, and Co., and reopened her account, but it was very soon exhausted. Taking a house in Eastbourne-terrace, "Mrs. Gordon Baillie"—for her cheques were so signed—took Gigner into their service, and ordered a livery of green cloth for him, for which the tailor was never paid. From Eastbourne-terrace they went to Westminster-chambers, whence they soon removed, without settling with the landlord, to Palmer Lodge, Buckingham-gate. This they rented furnished for £3 10s a week. During their occupation a quantity of the furniture was taken away and pawned, some of it by the female and some of it by the male prisoner, who gave false names and addresses. The allegations made by the prosecution were, that while living at these places, having exhausted the money at the bank, the prisoners ordered goods from tailor, hatter, butcher, florist, spectacle maker, milliner, bookseller, &c., and paid for them by cheque for a sum larger than the amount—receiving the difference from the tradespeople in hard cash—knowing well that when the cheque was presented it would be dishonoured, as was the case.—Mr. Poland was proceeding to prove that the prisoners could not be man and wife, as her husband was still alive, and that therefore they could be indicted for conspiracy, when Mr. Kemp intimated that this would not be necessary, as he was not in a position to prove that a divorce between Mr. and Mrs. White in Australia had actually been effected. He had not gone to the expense of this, because she might have been indicted for conspiracy in conjunction with Gigner.—No witnesses were called for the defence.—Speeches of counsel had not concluded when the Court rose.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

MARYLEBONE.—SINGULAR ACCUSATION AGAINST A LANDLORD.—Geo. Murton, 52, a butler, of 54, Victoria-road, Kilburn, was charged with stealing four watches, a diamond ring, four bracelets, a pearl necklet, and other articles, valued at £30, the property of Hy. E. Warren, a jeweller.—Mr. Sims prosecuted on behalf of the Treasury; and Mr. Freke Palmer, solicitor, defended.—The evidence was that Mr. and Mrs. Warren occupied apartments at the above address. On Wednesday week Mrs. Warren left home shortly before seven o'clock p.m., to meet her husband, and returned with him about an hour later, and met the prisoner (the landlord of the house) with a friend a short distance from the house. Mr. Warren tried the door with his latchkey, but was unable to open it. The bell was pulled, and as no one answered the landlord was sought for. He could not be found, so a policeman was fetched. They all went down the area, and finding the area door open they entered and went upstairs. The doors of prosecutor's rooms, which had been left locked, were found to have been broken open; a parcel was lying on the bed, and a chest of drawers was broken open and the contents strewn about the place. On making an examination it was discovered that the jewellery mentioned in the charge had been abstracted. The parcel on the bed was found to be a clock wrapped in a handkerchief. There was no one in the house when Mrs. Warren left, and no one when she and prosecutor returned. Mrs. Warren left the house to look for the prisoner, and met him up the road, and they returned to the house. The prisoner, in conversation with Mr. Warren, asked what could be the matter, and being told that someone had broken into the place the prisoner went up to his own bed-room, and immediately returned, saying he had missed his clock. Prior to their entering the house Miss Smith, who was the only other lodger in the house, crossed the road from the house of a friend, and she was unable to open the door with her key.—Mr. Palmer, in cross-examination, asked if workmen had not been in the house, and Mrs. Warren replied that there had, but she was away from home the greater part of the time they were there. She had most of the jewellery with her, and the rest was safely locked up in the room, and was safe when she returned.—Re-examined: The prisoner had seen her wearing the jewellery. It was her habit to go and meet her husband.—Police-constable 219 X said he found the back door safely fastened on the inside. The accused had no light with him when he went to his room, and said he had lost his clock. He returned to prosecutor's room, while witness was looking at the clock, and referring to the covering the prisoner said, "That is my handkerchief. I will swear to it." There were marks on the front door on the outside, and on the inside a pin had been put into the lock to prevent its opening. The drawers in prisoner's room were open, and he said he had lost a coat.—Detective-Inspector Morgan, X Division, said he went to the house in question, and had an interview with the prosecutor and the prisoner. Murton stated that he left the house at twenty minutes to eight o'clock by the front door, having previously locked the area door on the inside. He said the clock and a coat which had been given him by Mr. Thornhill, of Bruton-street, Berkeley-square, were the only things he had missed. The thief, he added, had forced and ransacked four rooms, and had attempted a fifth. Asked what tools he had in the house, the prisoner replied that he had a screwdriver. Witness observed that would not have caused the marks, and then Mr. Warren remarked that the defendant had a box of tools, and witness asked to see it. They passed through the back door, which was locked on the inside, and going to a shed in the rear the prisoner took a key from his pocket and unlocked it. Amongst the tools was an iron instrument used for opening packing-cases. On comparing both ends of that instrument with the marks on the street and room doors they corresponded exactly, and in that opinion the prisoner and his son concurred. Witness now produced portions of the woodwork bearing the marks. The accused then remarked that if that were so the thief must have got the instrument from the tool house, committed the robbery, and put the instrument back again. Witness then told the prosecutor that, in his opinion, the story of housebreaking had been concocted by the prisoner, who, in his judgment, should be given into custody.—By the magistrate: The area door had been forced open from the outside. It was possible for the tool-house to be got at from the garden, but would have a high wall to be climbed over.—Other evidence having been given, Mr. Palmer, for the defence, argued that his client was a respectable man, and that there was no case against him.—Mr. De Rutzen said he could not withdraw the case from a jury, and the prisoner would therefore go for trial. He would, however, accept bail for his appearance.—Surety to the amount of £200 was put in.

THE WHITECHAPEL TRAGEDY.

At the Vestry Hall of St. George-in-the-East yesterday, Mr. Wynne Baxter, coroner for East Middlesex, resumed the inquest concerning the death of Elizabeth Stride, who, early on the morning of Sunday, Sept. 30, was found with her throat cut in a yard adjoining the International Working Men's Club, Berner-street, Commercial-road East.

Detective-Inspector Reid deposed that since the last sitting he had found in the books of the Poplar and Stepney Sick Asylum at Bromley an entry recording the death of John Thomas Stride, carpenter, of Poplar, on Oct. 4, 1884.

Walter Stride, constable 385 W, stated that he had seen the photograph of the deceased, and recognised it as that of the woman who was married to his uncle, John Thomas Stride, a carpenter, either in 1872 or 1873. They lived in East India Dock-road the last time he saw them, which was soon after their marriage.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stokes, who shed tears bitterly, said: I live at 5, Charles-street, Tottenham, and am the wife of Joseph Stokes, a brickmaker. I was first married to Mr. Watts, a wine merchant, of Bath. Mrs. Mary Malcolm, of 50, Red Lion-square, Eagle-street, Holborn, who gave evidence early in this inquiry, is my sister. Her testimony is all false. I have not seen her for years, and it is untrue that she allowed me 2s per week for five years.

A juror suggested whether Mrs. Malcolm could have referred to another sister.

Inspector Reid thought not, because Mrs. Malcolm identified the deceased as a person with crippled feet, and Mrs. Stokes had crippled feet.

Mrs. Stokes (excitedly): She knows me well enough, and my crippled feet could not pass away in death, as she suggested might be the case. Her evidence was infamy and lies, and I am sorry that I have a sister who can tell such dreadful falsehoods. She has put me, a poor woman, to terrible trial, and I want to know if she is to be allowed to take my character away in such a cruel manner. She said that I had been the curse of many families.

The Coroner: I think that will do, Mrs. Stokes. Is Mrs. Malcolm present?

Inspector Reid: No, sir, and that is all the evidence I can produce.

The coroner having summed up, the jury returned a verdict of wilful murder against some person or persons unknown.

ANOTHER RUPTURE SUFFERER COMPLETELY CURED BY HARNESS' NEW HERNIA APPLIANCE AND TREATMENT.—Mr. Robert Ford, Cowleigh-road, North Malvern, writes, Oct. 6, 1888: "In May last I placed myself under your treatment for rupture, and after four months' trial of your new appliance I may now safely say that I am completely cured. My advice to those who suffer in a similar way is to place themselves at once under your care. It will always be a very great pleasure to me to answer any inquiries with respect to my case and your treatment." Sufferers may save themselves a lifetime of torture by adopting this the only reliable treatment. Examination free by an experienced and skilful surgeon at Harness' Electropathic Establishment, 52, Oxford-street, London, W. (corner of Rathbone-place).—[ADVT.]

MR. W. H. SMITH AT SALFORD.

The Right Hon. W. H. Smith, M.P., was the principal speaker last night at a great meeting of Conservatives and Liberal Unionists held in the Drill Hall, Salford, a building which will hold between three and four thousand people, and which was crowded. Mr. Edward Hardcastle, M.P., presided.

Mr. SMITH (who was received with much cheering) expressed his pleasure at finding Conservatives and Liberal Unionists standing shoulder to shoulder, animated with the same resolution to maintain the honour and integrity of this country, and to discharge the duties which belong to the inhabitants of a great empire. (Cheers.) Referring to Lord Granville's recent speech at Liverpool, he observed that his lordship had come direct from Hawarden, and spoke, therefore, with almost the voice of the oracle itself. (Laughter.) There seemed one honest conviction running through Lord Granville's speech, and that was that the Government and the Unionist party were altogether in the wrong. Lord Granville referred amongst other things to that great conversion—not the conversion of himself—(laughter)—of Mr. Goschen's, and he explained the success of that conversion by Mr. Goschen's influence in the City and among investors. That was the very sort of man they wanted in the Government. (Cheers.) It might be interesting to state that out of a total of 549 millions sterling over 500 millions had been converted, and now paid 2¾ instead of 3 per cent., the taxpayers getting the benefit of the reduction. (Cheers.) Lord Granville said the first principle of Mr. Gladstone's Irish bill was the unity of the empire. (Laughter.) He looked for the unity of the empire in this bill but failed to find it. "The security and welfare of the whole," they were told, "must be held to be superior to any party." That was what they were contending for. Then came the final condition, which was the most alarming of all. "The measure was to be a final settlement of the Irish question." (Loud laughter.) One argument which had been imported into the discussions on Home Rule was that the measure should be such as would be agreeable to and accepted by Mr. Parnell and his friends. If it were so, then he agreed that it would be a final settlement in the direction of a final separation, until there was a reconquest of Ireland. (Cheers.) It must be borne in mind that the Irish party had not unsaid anything, had retracted nothing. If a man like Mr. Davitt, who was in earnest, made a remarkable speech they were careful never to disown him, because they could not. There might be an advanced guard and a rear guard, but it was one army; there was one general; and they had one object in view. (Hear, hear.) There had been many so-called settlements during the last sixty years. They had read of Catholic Emancipation, of the Tithe Commutation Act, and of the Disestablishment of the Irish Church. He had heard Mr. Gladstone speak of settlements in the House of Commons, but it was no settlement for the agitators, whose interests and livelihood, whose raison d'être was agitation and nothing else. (Cheers.) In 1870 he heard in the House of Commons a speech of Mr. Gladstone's, when he recommended a measure as "closing up for ever and putting an end to the grievances and sufferings accompanying the tenure of land in Ireland." No doubt Mr. Gladstone firmly believed he was closing up for ever the grievances which accompanied the occupation of land in Ireland, and hundreds of men in the House of Commons followed him into the lobby and accepted the measure which the country received as a settlement. If the present proposal was to be a settlement it was contrary to all the experience they had gained of human nature, and especially of the human nature of the agitator with whom they had to deal. The settlement of 1885-6 was to include the settlement of the land question. Lord Spencer and Mr. Morley told people who listened to them at great meetings in different parts of the country that the honour of this country was bound up in the settlement of the land question by the Imperial Parliament, and said that it should not be relegated to a Home Rule Parliament to deal with. The other day Mr. Davitt informed the world that it had been agreed by the Liberal party that the settlement of the question of the land, the terms on which the landlords were to be expropriated—if they were to have any terms at all—were to be left to a Home Rule Parliament. So that we had advanced considerably since 1886. (Hear, hear.) What the Government said to the people in Ireland who condemned and despised the law and interfered with the liberty, security, and lives of other people was that they would coerce those who were the coercers and intimidators of others. (Cheers.) The people of Ireland as a whole, he believed, did not sympathise with crime; but to a very large extent they were intimidated by those who did sympathise with crime, and it was the intention of the Unionist Government to extinguish that intimidation. (Loud cheers.) They would not apologise for enforcing the law, but felt it their bounden duty to administer the law. As Ministers of the Crown they would see that each humble subject of the Queen should be safe in the pursuit of his occupation, in the enjoyment of his little property, and in the discharge of his duty to his family and his country. (Cheers.) Was it not a fact that, up to the past two years, with a few exceptions, the great statesmen on the other side advocated precisely an opposite doctrine from that they advocated now? (Cheers.) Were those statesmen earnest, sincere, well grounded in their old belief that such a union as now existed was necessary for the interests of the country? He believed that they were then profoundly in earnest. (Cheers.) Those Liberal statesmen did believe that rapine was not political, that boycotting was not political, that fraud was not patriotism, that dishonesty was not one of the highest forms of skill in order to bring about the freedom and liberty of the subject. (Cheers.) And now those great Liberal statesmen had gone round. (Laughter and cheers.) What could they think of men who, after the faith almost of a lifetime, turned round and went in an entirely opposite direction? Could they have confidence in their new assurances? If Mr. Gladstone was right in all that he said up to 1885 on this great question, then the Liberals were now supporting what was wickedly wrong. As Addison said, they could not call black white and white black and remain consistent members of society. (Laughter.) As to the Unionists, he believed they would have none of these things. (Cheers.) For Ireland there should be equal liberties, equal security for life and property, equal laws, equal justice, and then they might hope that prosperity would dawn upon a people who had been hitherto the prey of those who had never once shown them the way to industrial prosperity—(cheers)—and who had made no sacrifice of time, property, and energy as Lady Burdett-Coutts and Mr. Burdett-Coutts had at Baltimore in order to raise up an industry and create means for sustaining the people in the difficult position in which they might find themselves. The Unionist Government found it their duty—and they would pursue it remorselessly—to see that no honest man should be interfered with in his vocation, so that the poor man who wished to work should be enabled to work, no man making him afraid; and they would look with confidence to the revival of prosperity in that country. Would a Home Rule Parliament prevent rebellion, and give satisfaction and peace? (Cries of "No.") It could do neither one nor the other. They were convinced that a Home Rule Parliament meant —— (A voice: "A cockpit.") Yes, he might adopt that word as a correct description. What was it the Government offered to Ireland instead? They offered a more than equal share of representation in the Imperial Parliament, and he would say this for the Imperial Parliament, that they had listened to the peculiar wants and necessities of Ireland with a more considerate ear and a greater desire to do what was asked of them than was the case in regard to any other part of the Empire. (Cheers.)

The meeting shortly afterwards separated, and Mr. Smith was accompanied by a torchlight procession to the railway station on his way to Knutsford.

There was successfully launched from the yard of Mr. J. and G. Thomson, at Glasgow, yesterday afternoon, the new double-screw steamer City of Paris, for the Inman and International Company. She is sister-ship to the City of New York, the two being the largest vessels in the world. It is expected that the new ship, whose tonnage is 10,500, will surpass the City of New York in speed. Lady Campbell of Blythswood named the vessel as she left the ways.

The value of the gold exported from Cape Colony and Natal during September was £71,898.

RISE IN THE PRICE OF SALT.—Our Chester correspondent telegraphs: "The successful floating of the Salt Union has given a great impetus to the salt trade in Cheshire. The ruinous prices of the past few years are entirely things of the past. Orders are pouring in so rapidly from all parts of the world—merchants and dealers being anxious, doubtless, to place their contracts before prices further advance—that some of the larger works are for the first time for years working night and day, and the shipments for October will be the heaviest on record. The supply of brine at some works has been unequal to the demand; at others pumping operations go on unceasingly. The large quantity of salt which had been stocked is steadily diminishing, and the expectation is that the whole will be worked off by the end of the month. During the past month prices for all descriptions of salt have had a remarkable upward tendency. Common salt intended for home consumption is quoted at a rise of 6s 6d, while lump salt for exportation has jumped up from 8s to 15s per ton."

FIRE IN THE CITY.—A fire broke out at five o'clock yesterday morning in the workshop of Mr. J. Harvey, office fitter, 57, Redcross-street, and rapidly extended to the adjoining tenements. Notwithstanding the constant efforts of the brigade considerable damage was done to the buildings and their contents, and it was not until seven o'clock that the official "stop" message was given, the conflagration being finally subdued two hours later.

THE RIVIERA.—With a view to the special accommodation of visitors to the Riviera for the winter season, and the comfort and convenience of invalids on the journey to the warmer climate of the South of France, the South-Eastern Railway, conjointly with the International Sleeping-Car Company, the Northern of France, and the Paris, Lyons, and Mediterranean Railway Companies, have again this year concluded arrangements for special services, or "Trains de Luxe," which will leave Charing-cross and Cannon-street Stations only, on Wednesdays and Saturdays, commencing on Saturday, Nov. 3, at 9.40 a.m., to connect with a special steamer to leave Dover at 11.45 a.m. The train from Calais will consist of special carriages—viz., saloon cars, sleeping cars, and a dining-room car, will cross Paris by the Ceinture Railway, and run direct to Marseilles, Cannes, Nice, Monte Carlo, Mentone, &c. On Saturdays passengers for Biarritz, Madrid, Lisbon, &c., can travel by this service. Baggage will be registered through to destination, and through tickets issued. All information as to fares, &c., can be obtained on application at Charing-cross railway station.

MEDICAL ELECTRICITY.—Harness' Electropathic Belt and Treatment. Sufferers from nervous exhaustion, brain fag, sleeplessness, rheumatic affections, liver and kidney diseases, ladies' ailments, &c., should write for pamphlet and copies of testimonials (post free). Consultation free, personally or by letter.—Address Mr. C. B. Harness, Consulting Medical Electrician, 52, Oxford-street, London, W. (corner of Rathbone-place).—[ADVERTISEMENT.]

A USEFUL HINT.—If British housekeepers, instead of purchasing the commonest of common matches, because they are low priced and thought to be cheap, would use none but matches bearing Bryant and May's name, they would not only get the best value for their money, but would enable Bryant and May to pay thousands of pounds more weekly in wages; and in that way the British housekeepers would be doing real good to the working classes of the East-end of London.—[ADVERTISEMENT.]

OUR BABY THE TALK OF THE PARISH.—"My baby, at the age of two months, came all over his head and face in a thick scurf (eczema), which gradually increased until it covered his whole body with the exception of his feet, and for four years he has been in this suffering, during which time I have tried three doctors, besides everything I have from time to time seen advertised, and no nearer being cured than at first; and a great many things I have used have only added to the agony of my poor child. I am thankful to say that I saw your advertisement, as I thought I would try the Cuticura Remedies, having little faith; when to our surprise, on the first application on his face, the water ran out and dropped off his little chin, and I can truthfully say that in less than a week he was better than he has been for four years, and now, at the time of writing this, he has not a sore place upon him. Of late he has been quite the talk of the parish, as every one knows what a sufferer he has been. I cannot express my thankfulness in words, nor can I say anything good enough for the Cuticura Remedies.—W. A. and M. PEACH, 137, Catsfield, near Battle, Sussex." "Gentlemen—I have supplied Mrs. Peach with the Cuticura Remedies for her son, who has suffered from eczema for several years. I am pleased to be able to state that the Cuticura Remedies have been very successful in this case.—W. F. HAROLD, Chemist, Battle, Sussex."—Of all chemists. Send stamp to F. Newbery and Sons, 1, King Edward-street, London, E.C., for "How to Cure Skin Diseases," 64 pages, 300 diseases, 50 illustrations, and 100 testimonials.—[ADVERTISEMENT.]

THE CAMBRIDGESHIRE.

The old order has given place to the new, and with the change of course the Cambridgeshire of 1888 stands out as a most distinct success. The attendance was the largest seen upon Newmarket Heath for many years past, and whereas fears existed once of a bad day, owing to the thick mist that lasted throughout the morning, the afternoon turned out brilliantly fine. This consummation could not have been anticipated, even when the time arrived to leave the town, and the mellow sunshine was all the more welcome for making such a late appearance. As the special trains steamed into Newmarket so did the voyageurs fill the High-street, and, in accordance with the announcement in official circles, the Prince of Wales paid his first visit to headquarters since the Spring, Royalty being also represented by the Duke of Cambridge. The early risers obtained little chance of seeing the Cambridgeshire horses before breakfast, and the trade at the Rooms afterwards was chiefly confined to the backing of Ténébreuse and Mamia, the French contingent, who turned up in great numbers, dividing their favours between the two. The racing was not of much consequence, apart from the big handicap, and the sale of Guy Mannering to Captain Orr-Ewing was the forerunner of his absence from the Water Hall Plate, whereupon Zest secured a walk over. The Plate of £200 looked a good thing for Braw Lass upon recent form, and when Hautbois, who has passed into the hands of the Duc de Gramont, hung out early signals of distress, Mr. Benholm's handsome mare had an easy task to get rid of Fleur de Marie and Tommy Tittlemouse. The Maiden Plate for two-year-olds came next in order, and King Herod was preferred in the market to the Loch Garry filly, despite the report that the latter was little, if anything, inferior to the Ma Belle colt, who had run so well in the Criterion. Mr. Hamar Bass's filly failed to finish in the first three, and King Herod had the winning card in hand the whole of the way. The time had now come round for the preliminaries of the Cambridgeshire, and while the nineteen competitors—one less than last year—were on view in the Birdcage, the scene was simply perfect from a racing point of view. The cheerful rays of the sun had entirely absorbed the raw, damp air of the morning, and the business was much brighter and brisker than on the Cesarewitch day. To turn for a minute to the market, Bismarck had been elevated into absolute favouritism, and, with the supply by no means adequate to the incessant demand, he finally saw the short odds of 3 to 1. The second honours were shared by Ténébreuse and Mamia at 9 to 2, and, with Acme easy at 8 to 1, the best goods of the remainder proved to be Phil, Veracity, and Cactus, of whom the last-named was a general eleventh-hour tip, and touched half the price laid at the calling over of the card overnight. Like Admiral Benbow, he was ridden by an apprentice. Both E. Martin and J. Woodburn declared 3lb overweight for their respective mounts, Phil and Mamia, while the jockeys of Button Park, Danbydale, and Polydor put up 2lb extra. The first pair to undergo paddock criticism were Ténébreuse and Sheen. It cannot be said that the Cesarewitch victress created a favourable impression, as the journey to France and back, coupled with the sharp work of Saturday, had given her a light appearance, added to which she seemed in a somewhat nervous state. The hard ground had affected Sheen, and told a serious tale, I am afraid, upon Mamia, as in no other way is it possible to account for her inability to run within many pounds of the form she betrayed in the Champion Stakes. Although Bismarck, a very wale-walker in front, has a peacocky look, he yielded to none of his rivals in the matter of condition, and the neat little Veracity was as fit as hands could make him. Mamia was en route to the post at least a quarter of an hour before the appointed time of starting, and her example of proceeding past the Stand slowly was copied by several of the remainder. Not so, however, by Bismarck and Gallinule, and the Sussex-trained colt jumped into his bridle in a fashion which immensely pleased those who were anticipating his victory. Acme took matters too quietly for an opinion to be formed of his like or dislike to the hard ground; and yet the fact that he beat all his Cesarewitch opponents saves him from complete disgrace. At the same time, it would be idle to assert that he ran up to the expectations of Sherrard's stable, as when the flying squadron was near enough to be distinguished by colours Acme had hoisted signals of distress. The haze prevented a good view of the race until half the journey was accomplished, and it is sufficient to say that Bismarck had used his speed with such telling effect that from the bushes only Veracity, Cactus, and Belle Mahone were in fair pursuit. Although Danbydale, Sandal, and Button Park could boast of having held forward positions to that point, Mamia was never the equal of Acme. A still worse report has to be given of Ténébreuse, as she was chopped from the fall of the flag, and ran in sore trouble every yard of the way. Descending the bushes hill Veracity and Cactus in turn challenged Bismarck, and when he had to face the collar out of the Abingdon mile bottom he gave a sure indication of distress by throwing his head up. But the others were too tired to clear him until a few yards from the winning post, and the lack of stronger assistance alone lost Cactus the Cambridgeshire, which he would perhaps have won in the very next stride. The shouts were deafening as the pair passed the line somewhat wide apart, and to the excitement in the vicinity of Mr. Clark's box is attributable the fact that the man in charge of the numbers put No. 2 (Ténébreuse) in the frame instead of No. 22. The mistake was instantly corrected, and then there was the usual rush to the paddock to give a cordial reception to the winner, who is the property of one of the oldest and most steadfast supporters of the turf. By winning two events of such importance as the Lincolnshire Handicap and the Cambridgeshire Veracity has now more than wiped out his unbroken series of failures last year, and proved himself, in addition, worth the 2,500 guineas paid for him by Mr. Legh at the end of his juvenile season. He stayed on to the end with more stamina than I gave him credit for, and being a popular horse with the public the bookmakers win much less than might be expected, tempting as it was for them to stand an extra shot against three such warm favourites as Bismarck, Ténébreuse, and Mamia. Amongst the winners upon Veracity by a piece of luck was Lord Randolph Churchill, a dream that 22 was the successful number causing his Lordship to accept "twenty fifties" at almost the last minute. In taking leave of the Cambridgeshire for a time I can only add that Mamia must have retrograded rapidly since the Champion Stakes, as according to this result Zanzibar would have been tailed off with the minimum.

To-morrow's card will embrace nine events, and my selections are—THE TYKE or ZARIBA for the Bretby Welter Handicap, ARISTOS for the New Nursery, DONOVAN for the Dewhurst Plate, KING COLE or ECSTACY for the Plate of 100 Guineas, CARDINAL MAI for the Selling Plate (last five furlongs of the D.M.), NOBLE CHIEFTAIN for the All-Aged Stakes, MONT D'OR or RED PALMER for the High-Weight Handicap, and EMERALD for the Subscription Stakes.

(Winner trained by Arnull.)

Betting—2 to 1 agst King Herod, 5 to 1 agst Loch Garry filly, 5 to 1 agst Wrinkle, 6 to 1 agst Silver Penny, and 10 to 1 agst Prince Peter.

King Herod, in the centre, jumped off in front, and, making all the running, won easily by three lengths; half a length divided the second and third. The Loch Garry filly was fourth, Morglay next, and Silver Penny last.

The CAMBRIDGESHIRE STAKES of 25 sovs each, 15 ft, with 500 added; winners extra; the second received 100 sovs, and the third saved stake; entrance 5 sovs only if declared. New Cambridgeshire Course (last mile and a distance of A.F.) 120 subs, 40 of whom declared.

Lord Cholmondeley's Polydor, 3 yrs, 6st 3lb (car 6st 5lb) (Wall) 0
(Winner trained by Weever.)

Betting—3 to 1 agst Bismarck, 9 to 2 each agst Mamia and Ténébreuse, 8 to 1 agst Acme, 15 to 1 agst Phil, 20 to 1 each agst Veracity and Cactus, 25 to 1 each agst Button Park, Sandal, and Gallinule, 33 to 1 agst Sheen, 40 to 1 agst Candlemas, 50 to 1 each agst Belle Mahone and Polydor, 1000 to 15 agst Danbydale, 100 to 1 each agst Rêve d'Or, Tissaphernes, and Admiral Benbow, and 200 to 1 agst Fullerton. Places—6 to 4 agst Bismarck, 6 to 4 each agst Mamia and Ténébreuse, 2 to 1 agst Acme, 5 to 1 agst Veracity, 100 to 30 agst Cactus, 4 to 1 agst Phil, 5 to 1 agst Button Park, 6 to 1 agst Sandal, 100 to 14 agst Gallinule, 100 to 12 agst Belle Mahone, 10 to 1 each agst Sheen and Candlemas, 100 to 8 each agst Polydor, Danbydale, and Admiral Benbow, and 25 to 1 each agst Rêve d'Or, Tissaphernes, and Fullerton.

The numbers were hoisted in good time, and the lot made their way to the post, which they reached several minutes before the appointed hour. At a quarter to three the white flag was hoisted, and very little delay occurred, the signal to an excellent start being given after one slight failure. Bismarck was the first to break the line, and dashing away at a terrific pace in the centre, made play, followed by Cactus, Danbydale, and Button Park on the right, with Belle Mahone, Veracity, Acme, and Gallinule in the centre, Sandal, Ténébreuse, and Polydor on the left, the rear being brought up by Tissaphernes, who was outpaced from the start. Little alteration of importance occurred as the horses passed the Rowley Mile starting-post, but Button Park and Polydor soon disappeared from the front lot, and as they entered the rails half a mile from the finish Bismarck, going like a lion, was still showing the way, clear of Cactus, Veracity, and Danbydale, with Belle Mahone, Sandal, and Acme side by side next, clear of Polydor, Sheen, and Mamia, who were, in turn, well in advance of Ténébreuse and Phil, while Tissaphernes still brought up the rear, although he was not far behind Button Park and Admiral Benbow. Thus they went towards the Bushes, before reaching which Danbydale, Sandal, Sheen, Polydor, Phil, and Ténébreuse were beaten, and Acme and Mamia represented hopeless chances at the top of the hill. Bismarck continued in front down the hill, and with odds offered on him he was followed by Cactus, Veracity, and Belle Mahone. To these four the issue was confined, and just after entering the Abingdon Mile Bottom Bismarck was caught by Veracity and Cactus, the latter of whom assumed a slight lead. Making the final ascent Bismarck ran on straight and gamely under the whip, but Veracity and Cactus had shaken him off a hundred yards from home, and the pair fought out a desperately exciting battle, Veracity getting the best of it by a head; Cactus defeated Bismarck by two lengths for third place, and the favourite in turn finished about a neck in front of Belle Mahone, who was placed fourth by the judge. Acme was fifth, Mamia sixth, Polydor seventh, Danbydale eighth, Sandal ninth, and Phil tenth; the last three being Button Park, Admiral Benbow, and Tissaphernes. Time by Benson's chronograph 1min 58 3-5sec.

A LIGHT-WEIGHT SELLING PLATE of 105 sovs; weight for age; the winner to be sold for 100 sovs; entrance 3 sovs. Rous Course (5 furlongs).

Capt. Machell's Paget, by Beaudesert, dam by Controversy—Malaeota, 3 yrs, 6st (G. Chaloner) 1
Mr. R. Moncreiff's Dartmouth, 6 yrs, 7st 3lb (car 7st 4lb) (J. Calder) 2
Mr. T. A. J. Evans's Glendalough, 3 yrs, 7st 1lb (Chandley) 3
Mr. J. Ryan's Barskinning, 2 yrs, 5st 1lb (allowed 5lb) (Watts) 0
Mr. R. Sherwood's Old Nobility, aged, 6st 12lb (allowed 5lb) (Panter) 0
Mr. C. Archer's Financier, 4 yrs, 7st 3lb (J. Griffiths) 0
Mr. T. L. Reed's Volscian Queen, 4 yrs, 7st 3lb (Dyer) 0
Mr. S. Nesbitt's Jack a' Dandy, 3 yrs, 7st 1lb (Luke) 0
Mr. A. James's Fiasco, 3 yrs, 7st 1lb (Berry) 0
Mr. Burrell's Chamberlain, 4 yrs, 7st 3lb (J. Woodburn) 0
(Winner trained by Jewitt.)

Betting—7 to 4 agst Dartmouth, 9 to 2 agst Paget, 5 to 1 agst Jack a' Dandy, 6 to 1 agst Glendalough, and 10 to 1 agst the others.

Paget, in the centre, was quickest off the mark, with Jack-a-Dandy, Dartmouth, and Glendalough following in the order named, and so they ran down Bushes Hill, when the favourite took closer order with Paget, but the latter, easily holding his own, won by a length; three parts of a length divided the second and third; Jack-a-Dandy was fourth, Glendalough fifth, Fiasco sixth, and Old Nobility last.

The ROUS NURSERY HANDICAP PLATE of 210 sovs, for two-yr-olds; winners extra; entrance 4 sovs. Rous Course (5 furlongs).

Mr. Roberts's Carnival, by Mask—Moll Davis, 7st 7lb (inc 7lb ex) (S. Loates) 1
Mr. W. A. Jarvis's Needles, 6st 7lb (G. Chaloner) 2

Mr. J. V. Lawrence's Peg Woffington, 6st 1lb (Mullen) 0
Mr. E. Jones's Miss Maud, 6st 6lb (allowed 5lb) (W. Jones) 0
Sir R. Jardine's Cateran, 7st 10lb (Warne) 0
(Winner trained by Golding.)

Betting—7 to 4 agst L'Abbesse de Jouarre, 9 to 2 agst Carnival, 11 to 2 agst Needles, 7 to 1 agst Miss Maud, and 10 to 1 each agst Cateran, Aspen Leaf, Olympus, and Cecil.

Olympus made the running, being attended by the favourite and Needles, with Carnival lying at the head of the others. In this order they ran until, descending into the Abingdon Mile bottom, where the favourite was uncomfortable and Needles assumed the command, but the last named was caught in the last few strides by Carnival, who won a fine race by a head, a length and a half dividing the second and third; Meriden was fourth, Peg Woffington fifth, Cecil sixth, and Aspen Leaf last.

The HOME-BRED POST PRODUCE STAKES of 100 sovs each, h ft, for two-yr-olds; colts, 8st 11lb; fillies, 8st 11lb; one to the post. Criterion Course (6 furlongs).

Duke of Westminster's Rydal, by Bend Or—Windermere, 8st 11lb (T. Cannon) 1
Prince Soltykoff's Unrefined, 8st 11lb (Robinson) 2
(Winner trained by Porter.)

Betting—9 to 4 on Rydal.

Rydal held a slight lead throughout, and won a good race by a neck.

DEWHURST PLATE.—Pioneer, Helvellyn, Maynooth, Danebury, Cool, Benbow, Hazlemere, Eva colt, Polka, Cesar, Duchess of Parma filly, Silver Penny, Gondolier, Honesty, Knight Templar, Litigation, Listen, Melanion, The Turco-phone, Gold, Kinkora.
NEW NURSERY PLATE.—Foam.
BRETBY NURSERY.—Gazelle, Scotch Air.
CHEVELEY STAKES.—Alastor, Duo.
JOCKEY CLUB CUP.—Merry Andrew, I'Anson's sealed nomination.

Before racing commenced at Newmarket yesterday, Guy Mannering was sold to Captain Orr-Ewing, but the price did not transpire.

Consequent upon Bismarck's forward running in the Cambridgeshire yesterday, negotiations for his purchase which had fallen through were reopened during the afternoon, and as the son of Pride of Prussia and Fleuda successfully passed a veterinary examination, he will sail at once for Buenos Ayres.

The objections lodged against Springbeck, on the ground of wrong descriptions, for his races at Thirsk and Gosforth Park, have been overruled.

HUNDRED MILES TRICYCLE RECORD.—Yesterday, Mr. G. P. Mills, of the North Road Club, made a successful attempt to beat the tricycle record for 100 miles on the road.—Messrs. Huber and Williamson, on a tandem tricycle, assisted as pacemakers for 56 miles, and although the roads were somewhat loose, Mills, who rode a machine of his own make, weighing only 35lb., covered the first 50 miles in 3h 12min 50sec, and the distance in 6h 58min 16sec, beating the previous record, made by Mr. Hale, in September last year, by 12min 12sec. Mr. Wilson, President of the North Road Club, looked after the times and distance.

BILLIARDS.

PEALL v. MITCHELL.—Yesterday, at the Aquarium, the match of 3,000 up, spot barred, between Peall and Mitchell was resumed before a moderate attendance. At the outset the scores were—Peall 1,500, Mitchell 1,522. During the day the first-named added to his lead considerably. He played in a brilliant fashion, and compiled 101, 118, and 113, 93, 75, 74, 66, 58, 57, and 52. Mitchell's best breaks were 77, 69, 61, 55, and 53. At the end of the day's play the scores were: Peall, 3,000; Mitchell, 2,214.

THE NAVY.—Her Majesty's screw sloop Wild Swan, 8, Commander Edmund E. Van Koughnet, which was commissioned at Devonport in January, 1885, for service on the Pacific Station, left Valparaiso yesterday for England, to be paid off. At the Admiralty, yesterday, the following appointments were announced: Lieutenants—Eustace William C. Stracey, to the Curlew; John Dodson Daintree, to the Griffon (both to date 23rd inst.) Assistant Paymaster—James Elliot V. Morton, to the Pheasant (to date 30th inst.)

THE PARNELL COMMISSION.—Englishmen and Irishmen are alike deeply interested in the result of the Parnell inquiry, and the paper is daily perused with tremendous eagerness. But though of such importance to the sterner sex there is a subject of yet greater moment to the women of England and Ireland, and that is the all-absorbing one of personal beauty, how to obtain it, and how to retain it. Ladies, however, can always insure a soft, fair, and blooming complexion by the use of Rowland's Kalydor, an emollient milk, which removes freckles, tan, chaps, redness and roughness of the skin, and promotes that healthy purity of complexion which is so much desired by young and old. Sold everywhere in 4s. 6d. and 2s. 3d. bottles.—[ADVERTISEMENT.]

Sealskin Garments and Ladies' Furs at half-price. Alaska sealskin Paletots, £4, £5, and £5 each; sealskin paletots, from £5, half-price. Gents' fur-lined coats, £5 and £6. An immense quantity of boas and all kinds of fur, carriage and hearth rugs, furs for fur-lined cloaks, £3, to sold regardless of cost.—Phillips' City Fur Warehouses, 52, 53, Newgate-st., only address.—[ADVT.]

ELECTRICAL AND PUMILIO-PINE TREATMENT.—Every man and woman suffering from gout, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, indigestion, paralysis, epilepsy, liver complaints, diseased or debility, and any nervous or organic derangement, should send for copy of Johnson's Patent Hygeia Electric Belts, which combine the efficacy of a portable voltaic battery with the hygienic properties of Dr. Dunbar's "Medicated Pumilio Pinol Felt." The Hygeia Belt is the only scientific bona-fide electric belt offered to the public. It is a marvel of efficacy and cheapness.—Write for pamphlet, post free from W. G. Johnson, Medico-Electric Belt, Truss, and Battery Company (Limited), 55, New Bond-street, London, W.—[ADVT.]

WEALTH WITHOUT HEALTH [illegible]

DRURY-LANE.—Augustus Harris, Lessee and Manager.—EVERY EVENING, at 7.30, concluding at 11.5, a new grand spectacular drama, entitled THE ARMADA, a romance of 1588, by Henry Hamilton and Augustus Harris.—Box-office open daily, from ten to six.

THE ARMADA at DRURY-LANE.—Winifred Emery, Edith Bruce, Kate James, Ada Neilson, and Maud Milton; Leonard Boyne, Luigi Lablache, Edward Gardiner, Victor [illegible] F. Dobell, Basil West, W. Cridge, F. Harrison, U. Winter, Fitzharris, W. S. Parkes, H. Denvil, T. Thomas, F. Collings, and Harry Nicholls.

THE ARMADA.—Plymouth Sound. The Harvest Home. The Last Load. The Abduction. Spain. A Street of the Inquisition. The Attempt to Seize the "Vixen." Tilbury Court. The News of the Armada. The Cross at Charing. The View of Westminster Abbey and Holbein's Gate. The Trained Bands. Enrolling the Volunteers. For Hearth and Home.

THE ARMADA.—The Game of Bowls on Plymouth Hoe. Realisation of the Picture by Seymour Lucas, A.R.A., under his kind supervision, and by the special permission of the Publisher. The Fleet in Sight.

THE ARMADA.—The Council of War Aboard the Admiral's Ship. The Fight off Calais. The Fire-ships. The Defeat of the Armada. The Spanish Inquisition. The Auto da Fé. The Rescue. Whitehall. A Royal Reward. The Thanksgiving at St. Paul's. Elizabeth's Triumphal Progress. God Save the Queen. God Save You, My People.

THE ARMADA.—The unanimous praise bestowed upon this historical drama and grand spectacle by the leading press of the country is nightly endorsed by the crowded audiences which fill Drury-lane Theatre at each performance.

THE ARMADA.—Times says: "A great success was achieved, and the fame of the theatre as the home of spectacular displays cannot fail to be increased by this latest addition to their number. Nor does the production lack merit in other directions. The authors of 'The Armada,' inspired by the thoughts which the tercentenary of the great naval conflict suggests, have set themselves to write a play which shall be fresh and interesting, and shall not depend exclusively for success upon mere scenic effect. The times and events which they have chosen for exploitation on the stage are among the most stirring in the whole annals of British history; they supply abundant opportunities for appealing to the patriotic sentiment, and they bristle with romantic and picturesque incident."

THE ARMADA.—Times says: "The great naval display, which can be called no less than a triumph of stage artifice, was received on Saturday with shouts of applause, and if it stood alone would be sufficient to attract the public for many a day. At the fall of the curtain there was loud and prolonged applause."

THE ARMADA.—Daily Telegraph says: "In a scene of general excitement, Mr. Augustus Harris on Saturday night succeeded in launching one of the mightiest, most showy, and costly vessels that have ever been built in the dramatic docks of Drury-lane. The sea-fight between the Armada and the English war-vessels off Calais may be pronounced the most effective historical picture ever realised on the modern stage. The murky gloom of the atmosphere, the lurid light thrown on the opposing vessels, the awful fusillade of firing, the shouting and cheering of the sailors, the marvellous moving of the vessels to give the enemy a broadside, make up a scene so novel and impressive that it will not readily be forgotten. This Armada fight, in its design, its daring, and its execution, will be quoted as one of the boldest achievements ever attempted on the Drury-lane stage. This scene alone will attract all London."

THE ARMADA.—Daily Telegraph says: "In his pictures of the Inquisition Mr. Harris has been careful not to give offence. All was done in scrupulous good taste. In the [illegible] a triumph of stage management and a brilliant display of colour. It is a scene that will linger on the memory. Queen Elizabeth has to pass under a baldachino, to Old St. Paul's, to make thanksgiving for the safety of her country. It is a procession of accurate costume, and those who would understand what Elizabeth's reign was like so far as it outwardly appeared can see it here. The old cathedral dedicated to St. Paul, the Cross, and the citizens appear here just as they were three centuries ago. This will be a picture that will be appreciated alike by the student and the sight-seer. 'The Armada' is one of the most distinctly creditable things that Mr. Harris has ever done. 'The Armada' is a notable advance on anything that has been recently attempted in giving artistic and thoughtful work to a popular stage. Such enterprise must succeed."

THE ARMADA.—Daily News says: "The authors of 'The Armada' have drunk deep of the sentiment of the most stirring and [illegible]. The great battle off Calais is the most striking feature and the scenic climax of the play. The characteristics of the fight, with the huge Spanish and Portuguese galleons and galleasses [illegible] the English ships, amidst the crash of falling spars and the [illegible] in picture [illegible]. 'The Armada' may safely be assumed to be launched upon a long and prosperous career."

THE ARMADA.—Morning Post says: "In 'The Armada' Messrs. Henry Hamilton and Augustus Harris have hit upon a happy idea [illegible]."

THE ARMADA.—Morning Post says: "It is the fight off Calais that most excites the audience [illegible] the great popularity of the new Drury-lane drama."

MR. RUTLAND BARRINGTON as THE DEAN. ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—The Times says: "Mr. Rutland Barrington begins well; maintaining the best traditions of the house in point of business organisation, he displays the no less valuable qualities of courage and enterprise in the selection of his programme. No mouth-mouthed adaptation from the French is put forth at the St. James's as an abstract and brief chronicle of English life. 'The Dean's Daughter' is the product of English brains, breathing in every line an English spirit."

MISS OLGA NETHERSOLE as THE DEAN'S DAUGHTER.—ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—The Times says: "The title-part is entrusted to Miss Olga Nethersole, a young actress who has risen, almost at a bound, to a conspicuous place in her profession."

SHAFTESBURY.—Mr. W. FARREN as ADAM.—Observer says: "No better representative of the part of Old Adam could be desired than Mr. W. Farren." Sportsman says: "Mr. Farren's acting as Adam was perfect." Morning Post says: "The Old Adam of Mr. W. Farren could not be improved."

SHAFTESBURY.—Mr. MACKINTOSH as TOUCHSTONE. Weekly Dispatch says: "Mr. Mackintosh's Touchstone was delightfully and drily humorous." Evening News says: "I have nothing but praise for Mr. Mackintosh's quaintly humorous Touchstone." Evening Post says: "Mr. Mackintosh fully maintains the brilliant traditions of the past."

SHAFTESBURY.—Mr. ARTHUR STIRLING as JAQUES.—The Daily Telegraph says: "Delivered the Seven Ages speech with elocutionary grace and excellent effect." Morning Post says: "Mr. Arthur Stirling's fine elocutionary gifts were displayed in Jaques." Evening Post says: "His rendering of the 'Seven Ages of Man' is a positive luxury to listen to."

SHAFTESBURY.—Mr. SEYMOUR JACKSON as AMIENS.—Weekly Dispatch says: "Mr. Seymour Jackson's singing in the part of Amiens was one of the chief attractions of the evening." Sunday Times says: "Sang Amiens' songs charmingly." Daily News says: "Sings the solos to the beautiful music of Dr. Arne in excellent style."

SHAFTESBURY.—AS YOU LIKE IT, TO-NIGHT, at eight.

SHAFTESBURY.—"'As You Like It,' as given at the Shaftesbury, is to be a memorable Shakespearian revival. Henceforth it will be voted the finest, the most brilliant, the most poetic, of Shakespearian comedies. People who are honest will frankly admit that they never thought there was so much in it. Miss Wallis herself has always had a high opinion of what was in it if only it could be properly brought out. To interpret it as she does needs a wealth of art, and, we fear, not a little money. Just glance down the list of names in the cast. When has London seen before such a combination of notable artists. Once a year, perhaps, at a special benefit performance, but never, as now, in a regular company."—Evening Post.

SHAFTESBURY THEATRE.—Daily News says: "Mr. Lancaster was received with friendly acclamations and cries of"

BEST PIT in LONDON. The acknowledgment was well deserved. At no other theatre, we believe, are the pit folk so comfortably seated or so conveniently placed for seeing and hearing what is going on. The remark might, indeed, almost be extended to the whole internal arrangements of Mr. Phipps's elegant structure."

SHAFTESBURY THEATRE.—AS YOU LIKE IT. Produced under the direction of Mr. J. C. Smith. Entirely new scenery by Henry Emden. Costumes from designs of H. G. Glindoni, executed by J. A. Harrison. Properties by J. Robinson. Wigs by Clarkson. Full chorus. The solos and incidental songs will be sung by Mr. Seymour Jackson. The orchestra under the direction of Mr. G. W. Byng. The new act drop has been painted by Mr. William Telbin. Prices of admission, 1s. to £3 3s.—Box-office now open daily, from ten to five, Shaftesbury Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue. Acting Manager, Mr. W. H. Griffiths.

SHAFTESBURY.—AS YOU LIKE IT.

THE JODRELL THEATRE (late Novelty), Great Queen-street, Long-acre.—Sole Lessee, Mrs. Churchill-Jodrell. Manager, Col. H. J. Sargent.—TO-NIGHT and during week, THE DEMON. M. Lubimoff as The Demon To-Night, Tomorrow Night, and Saturday Afternoon. M. Winograd as The Demon on Friday and Saturday Nights.—Doors open at 7.30; overture at eight. Conductor, Signor Giuseppe Truffi. Box-office open from ten to five. No increase in the prices of admission. No fees. Programmes and cloak rooms free.

PAVILION THEATRE.—"Run of Luck."—TO-NIGHT, and Every Evening, at 7.45 (first time at the East-end), the successful Drury-lane drama, A RUN OF LUCK (by Henry Pettitt and Augustus Harris). Drury-lane scenery and effects. Real hunters, racehorses and hounds. Best minor company in London. Immense success.

MR. WILSON BARRETT on Tour with his London Company. COURT THEATRE, LIVERPOOL, OCT. 22 to 27.

QUARTERLY SALE of TAILORS' CUTTINGS at the ROYAL ARMY CLOTHING DEPOT, PIMLICO.

THE Secretary of State for War is prepared to receive TENDERS for the PURCHASE of TAILORS' CUTTINGS, now lying at the Royal Army Clothing Depot, Grosvenor-road, Pimlico.

These cuttings are produced from new cloth, &c., of good quality, and are carefully assorted, so as to prevent admixture of lower qualities.

The lots may be viewed and forms for tendering obtained at the depot, on application to the Paymaster, from nine to eleven and from two to four o'clock, on the four days previous to the day fixed for the delivery of tenders.

A deposit of £5 will be required upon each form of tender issued. The tenders are to be delivered at the War Office, Pall-mall, S.W., by twelve o'clock noon, on Friday, Nov. 2, 1888, addressed to the Director of Army Contracts, and marked on the outside, "Tender for the Purchase of Tailors' Cuttings, Pimlico."

The Secretary of State for War reserves the right of rejecting any or all of the tenders received.

EVAN COLVILLE NEPEAN, Director of Army Contracts.
War Office, Pall-mall, S.W., Oct. 22, 1888.

ARMY CONTRACTS.

TENDERS will be received by twelve o'clock noon on Friday, Nov. 2, 1888, for the SUPPLY of 50,000 yards BRAID, cotton, white,
250,000 yards BRAID, worsted, blue,
patterns of which can be seen, and forms of tender obtained, at the Commissariat Office, Hulme Barracks, Manchester, and at the Royal Laboratory, Royal Arsenal, Woolwich.

Forms of tender can also be obtained at this office.

EVAN COLVILLE NEPEAN, Director of Army Contracts.
War Office, Pall-mall, S.W., October, 1888.

TENDERS for PRINTING and PUBLISHING a REPORT of PROCEEDINGS of PARLIAMENT.—The last day for receiving tenders for the proposed contract for printing and publishing reports of debates and proceedings of Parliament—particulars of which may be obtained at the Stationery Office, Storey's-gate, S.W., any day between twelve and four—will be Monday, Oct. 29, 1888, at twelve o'clock noon.

The Government subscription will be for not less than 120 copies; and the Controller will be prepared, as the work of the Session progresses, under conditions which may be learnt on inquiry at the Stationery Office, to make payments on account to the contractor.

H.M. Stationery Office, Storey's-gate, S.W., Oct. 16, 1888.

PADDINGTON.—Works Department.—To Gravel Merchants, Farmers, Manure Dealers, Brickmakers, and others.—The Vestry of the Parish of Paddington are prepared to receive TENDERS as under: For the SUPPLY of GRAVEL, at per ton, to be delivered in boats alongside the parish wharves free of expense; for the purchase and reception of slop, road scrapings, sweepings, snow, and garbage, &c., collected from the parish roads; also soft core and hard core, picked from the dust heap, all of which will be deposited in the contractor's boats at the Vestry Depot, Paddington Basin. The contract to be for 12 months, viz., from Lady Day next to Lady Day, 1890, the expenses of preparing the same to be borne by the contractors. Printed forms of tender may be had at the Vestry Hall, and further particulars obtained on application to the Surveyor, between the hours of ten a.m. and four p.m. (Saturdays ten a.m. and one p.m.). No tender will be accepted unless made on one of the printed forms. The tender to be sealed, and delivered at the Vestry Hall, Harrow-road, before three o'clock p.m. on Monday, Nov. 5, 1888, after which no tender will be received. At the same time a £10 Bank of England note (not to be enclosed with the tender) must be lodged with the Vestry Clerk as evidence that the tender is made bona fide, the same to be returned immediately to parties whose tenders are rejected, and in the case of the parties whose tenders are accepted, to be retained until the contract be signed. If the tender be withdrawn after its acceptance by the Vestry the deposit will become forfeited. The Vestry do not bind themselves to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order, FRANK DETHRIDGE, Vestry Clerk.
Vestry Hall, Harrow-road, W., London, Oct. 16, 1888.

SOUTH INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANY.—The South Indian Railway Company is prepared to receive TENDERS for the SUPPLY of LOCOMOTIVE and ENGINEERING STORES, comprising hardware, metals, iron, steel, leather, painters' sundries, indiarubber, fire-box plates, copper pipes, steel tyres, reversing shafts, springs, and boiler tubes. Specifications and forms of tender may be obtained at the company's offices.—Tenders, addressed "To the Chairman and Directors of the South Indian Railway Company," and marked "Tender for Locomotive and Engineering Stores," must be left with the undersigned not later than twelve o'clock noon of Tuesday, Nov. 6, 1888. The company is not bound to accept the lowest or any tender. A charge of 10s. (which will not be returned) will be made for each copy of the specification.

By order,
HENRY W. NOTMAN, Managing Director.
Company's Offices, 55, Gracechurch-street, London, Oct. 22, 1888.

THE WHITE DRAWING ROOM.—A Gentleman writes: "Whatever I do I do thoroughly. I determined to renovate everything in my drawing room with 'Aspinall's White Enamel,' so I had all the furniture and woodwork well pumice-stoned, then painted one coat. When that was hard I had it again pumice-stoned, then another coat of 'Aspinall,' and when that was hard I repeated the pumice-stoning process, and put on a third coat of 'Aspinall,' and the effect is beautiful beyond description: a perfectly hard marble surface, white as snow, and smooth as glass."
ASPINALL'S ENAMEL is sold everywhere, or sent post free in tins, 1s. 6d., and 3s. (or baths, 1s. 9d. and 3s. 6d.), from the Works, Peckham, London. Colour cards, showing over 100 tints, free on application.

A CAMBRIDGE GRADUATE (ex-scholar of long experience and great success), desires PUPILS in Classics and Mathematics.—Address Tutor, Stationer, 65, Church-street, Kensington, W.

SHORTHAND.—27, Chancery-lane.—(PITMAN'S.) METROPOLITAN SCHOOL (Ld.). E. S. Gunn, Principal; B. De Bear, Head Master. A week's membership only if desired. There is not a School in London with more than one instructor

EXCEPT the METROPOLITAN, which has 20 instruction rooms and 20 teachers and readers (men). The effect of this is, that it is the only establishment where adequate private or individual tuition for every pupil and separate practice for writers of all speeds concurrently. Open 10 to 10.

AVOID INFERIOR IMITATIONS.—New schools, and those with cheap fees (very dear for the return made to their pupils), which are a confession and an apology for their want of facilities and experience in producing efficient writers. (Beginners do not often know what facilities a shorthand school should possess.) But sooner or later their students discover this, and are at the additional expense of completing with us. Anything short of practical efficiency is worthless, and means time and money wasted. This school owes its premier position to the fact that it devotes all the energies of its large staff to the one subject, Shorthand.

THEREFORE the METROPOLITAN SCHOOL'S RESULTS are the HIGHEST KNOWN. Soc. of Arts and Pitman's certificates. Its total exceeds that of all other schools in England combined. One thousand certificates recently obtained. Public reporting gold medal competition, all medals awarded. Tuition and practice to completion to pupils' satisfaction for a fixed fee. Prospectus post free.—27, Chancery-lane.

OLDEST and LARGEST SCHOOL. Estd. 1870. (Highest exam. results in the world.) Business men taught any time they can call. Private tuition. No class teaching: separate school for boys. Prospectus post free.—27, Chancery-lane.

REPORTS of MEETINGS, LAW CASES, &c., by B. De Bear. Shorthand writers sent out to hotels, offices, &c. Free registry for clerks and employers. Inspect our list of vacancies, and obtain superior appointments.—27, Chancery-lane.

LADIES.—A large SHORTHAND SCHOOL, with separate teaching staff. Appointments. Ladies, gentlemen, youths, and young men can be immediately placed, employers preferring our practically trained pupils. The City Press says: "This school is the powerful factor for supplying shorthand assistants." Prospectus post free.—27, Chancery-lane.

BEST GIFT for a BOY: This SCHOOL'S COURSE of LESSONS. Tutors say boys knowing shorthand do best at all exams. To enable youths and gentlemen without business experience to take appointments, there is a separate school for TYPE-WRITING and BOOKKEEPING (KNOWLEDGE of BUSINESS rapidly acquired under a Chartered Accountant), Writing, Commercial Correspondence, Office Routine, Business, and Banking, &c., taught practically. Send your son here for business acquirements on leaving school.—Business Training College. Prospectus post free.—27, Chancery-lane.

SHORTHAND (PITMAN'S), Bookkeeping, Type-writing, and all other mercantile accomplishments thoroughly TAUGHT by certificated teachers of highest standing. Terms moderate and inclusive. The most accessible academy in London.—City School of Commerce, 3a, Finsbury-pavement, E.C.

SHORTHAND (PITMAN'S). Lowest fees.—TAYLOR'S SCHOOL of Pitman's Shorthand, Type-writing, and Bookkeeping. Six years Head Master of Metropolitan School. Proficiency guaranteed for fixed fee. 69, Chancery-lane.

LEGAL and GENERAL TYPE-WRITING COMPANY.—TYPE-WRITING, in all its branches, and SHORTHAND carefully and thoroughly taught by an experienced lady teacher.—79, Chancery-lane, Holborn.

WRITING, BOOKKEEPING.—Mr. HOUSTON (from Smith and Stuart) guarantees proficiency in a short course of private LESSONS. Terms moderate. Arithmetic and shorthand. Lessons by post.—Call or write, 75, Chancery-lane.

BOOKKEEPING, WRITING.—SMITH and SMART, 18, Wormwood-street, Bishopsgate-street, City, and 7, New Oxford-street, guarantee proficiency in a few easy, private lessons. Arithmetic and shorthand. Lessons by post. Est. 1840.

THE LONDON ACADEMY of DANCING.—Founded 1861.—CAVENDISH ROOMS, Mortimer-street, Cavendish-square. The most complete and rapid system of instruction and practice. 12 classes every week. Special private tuition and practice. Prospectus, Edward Humphrey, Principal.

LONDON, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 24.

Yesterday the Mediterranean Squadron, including the flagship Alexandra, with the Duke of Edinburgh and Prince George of Wales on board, sailed from Malta for the Piræus to take part in the festivities on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession of King George of Greece.

Prince Bismarck's organ, the North German Gazette, significantly remarks, confirming the anticipations of our Berlin Correspondent, that the condition of affairs in East Africa calls for new measures and new men.

Later intelligence happily reduces greatly the loss of life by the railway disaster near Grassano. Instead of ninety killed and seventy injured, only nineteen bodies have been discovered, though three or four others are known to have died, while those reported to be injured, many of them suffering only from contusions, apparently do not exceed sixty.

At yesterday's sitting of the Parnell Commission the Attorney-General continued his statement on behalf of the Times. The learned gentleman reviewed the operations of the Land League between 1879 and 1882 in the counties of Kerry, Mayo, Cork, and Clare, with a view of showing that the institution of local branches and the holding of meetings at which violent speeches were made invariably resulted in murders and other outrages, as well as in intimidation and boycotting. The heads of the League were cognisant of the acts of their agents, and found the money for carrying on the organisation of crime. Some documents had come into the possession of the Times which would be produced to establish that contention. As to the letters alleged to have been written by Mr. Parnell, every information would be given to the Court as to their source. Impartial persons had had the opportunity of comparing them with undoubtedly genuine autographs of Mr. Parnell, and declared that they were in the same handwriting. The Attorney-General had not concluded his address when the Court adjourned. In the course of the proceedings Mr. Biggar, M.P., intimated that he should appear on his own behalf instead of by counsel.

It is stated that the suggestion that in the civic procession of Nov. 9 there should be a grand parade of Metropolitan Volunteers has been energetically taken up by the Lord Mayor Elect, who has consulted the military authorities on the matter. The Commander-in-Chief is understood to entertain objection to the idea on the grounds that the contemplated procession would be contrary to the Act of Parliament, and would interfere with the military training of the volunteers. In the meantime the movement for raising a large fund with which to improve the equipment of the volunteers in the Metropolitan district is making great progress, and at a meeting of Volunteer commanding officers yesterday the Lord Mayor Elect said he hoped to raise enough to secure £4,000 a year. The meeting was averse to participating in the procession. Correspondence on the subject will be found in another column.

Mr. W. H. Smith addressed a crowded meeting of Conservatives and Unionists at Salford last night. Commenting upon Lord Granville's recent speech at Liverpool, the right hon. gentleman observed that the argument that the adoption of Mr. Gladstone's policy would be a final settlement of the Irish difficulty was utterly delusive. Many times during the last sixty years it had been said of particular measures that they would prove a "final settlement" of that question, and experience had taught them the value of such prophecies. Moreover they had in the present case the avowal of some of the leading agitators that nothing short of Separation would satisfy them.

Our Chester correspondent states that one result of the successful floating of the Salt Union is that the price of common salt for home consumption has trebled, while that for exportation has nearly doubled.

Mr. Wynne Baxter yesterday concluded the inquest concerning the death of Elizabeth Stride, who was found murdered in Berner-street, Whitechapel, early on Sunday morning, the 30th ult. Evidence was given to show that the testimony given at a former stage of the inquiry by a Mrs. Malcolm, to the effect that the deceased was her sister, and the wife of a wine merchant at Bath, was entirely false. The jury returned a verdict of wilful murder against some person or persons unknown.

Robert Percival Bodley Frost and Annie Frost, said to be his wife, better known by the name of "Mrs. Gordon Baillie," were put upon their trial at the Central Criminal Court yesterday, charged with conspiring to commit various frauds upon London tradesmen. The evidence in support of the case for the prosecution was concluded, and no witnesses were called for the defence. Counsel had not finished their speeches to the jury when the Court rose.

Yesterday the Stock Markets were flatter, partly due to the nearness of the settlement. Foreign Government bonds were depressed by lower Bourse prices. American, Canadian, Mexican, and English railways were also lower. Copper shares exhibited weakness, but diamond mines were firm, and Transvaal gold descriptions irregular. Consols (Goschens) declined 1-16 per cent.

VACATION oratory is likely to dwindle to small dimensions now that the meeting of Parliament is so close at hand. There is quiet in the political air, a lull in the oratorical tempest, and, except for Mr. GLADSTONE's forthcoming visit to Birmingham and the Pottery towns, extra-Parliamentary oratory will probably be at a low ebb until the re-opening of the Session next month. It was hardly to be expected that the Government would show its hand before the reassembling of the Houses; therefore the chances of hearing any startling announcement or any practical programme for next Session, when Mr. SMITH speaks, as he did last night at Salford, are recognised as being small. Foreign affairs are felt to be in good hands when they have the attention of Lord SALISBURY; in home matters the most exciting political events of the near future are the promised revelations in the Parnellite trial and the formation of the new County Councils; while the prospect of a great coal strike, and an increased dearness of fuel just as winter is approaching, occasion a good deal more searching of hearts among the bulk of the community than even the question whether Mr. O'BRIEN did or did not have ham sandwiches surreptitiously conveyed to him when languishing in prison. Many important events may transpire when Parliament actually meets; for there is always the unexpected to be counted upon. As far as present indications go, however, the forecasts for next Session are for dulness rather than excessive liveliness, and counts-out are more probable than all-night sittings. The programme of the Ministry is likely to be a modest one, and, that being so, there will be correspondingly less temptation to defeat it by lengthened debates on extraneous subjects of discussion. Despite the early resumption of regular party warfare, however, Mr. SMITH contrived to tell his Salford auditory some truths which need stating and restating; and he put them in a particularly simple and straightforward manner, which did not diminish their force. Fortunately Ireland did not entirely monopolise his attention; there were welcome divergences into the region of foreign affairs, for example; and here it is worth while to quote the exact language of the representative of the Ministry. "With regard to the condition of foreign affairs," Mr. SMITH remarked, in significant terms, "at no period of the history of our Empire were our foreign relations more cordial, our understanding more real and complete, than at the present moment." The Government, however, recognises to the full the absolute necessity of putting our forces in such a state that the voice of this country can be effective when it speaks.

With regard to the present aspect of Irish affairs, Mr. SMITH "re-slew the slain" by an onslaught on Home Rule. "The struggle was a serious one," he maintained; "it was a struggle between the institutions of the country and a small number of persons who had managed to enlist as sympathisers with them a large political party." And, in words which evoked the enthusiasm of his Salford audience, he declared that it was both the duty and the intention of the Government to "extinguish intimidation." The general conclusion at which the Ministry has obviously arrived is that which Mr STANHOPE, among others, has recently enunciated, that the state of Ireland is infinitely better now than it was before the so-called "Coercion" Act was passed, and that the operation of that statute affects only those who commit offences for which they would be also liable to punishment in England or Scotland. A law is a law until it is repealed; but this simple and elementary truth is one that is never dwelt upon by Nationalists, even when they assume the Constitutional rôle, and it is one which the Gladstonians are now positively afraid to mention, for fear lest it should estrange the votes of their Irish allies. Nevertheless, it is necessary every now and then to remind all whom it may concern, and notably Nationalist champions, that a certain Act of Parliament does prescribe certain penalties for such offences as boycotting and intimidation, and that in consequence it is the duty of every good citizen to keep on the windward side of that enactment. Possibly this is "black Toryism," to borrow a picturesque phrase which Mr. MORLEY has recently introduced into politics. As a matter of fact, the old electoral colour of the Conservative party was, in most parts of the country, blue—hence the phrase, a "true-blue Tory"—but in many places it is the Liberals who have a prescriptive claim to don blue favours, while their opponents go about gorgeous in yellow trappings. Why Mr. MORLEY should ascribe black as the real Tory hue is difficult to understand, unless he intends to imply that Toryism is so intrinsically wicked that its colours, like its deeds, must be those of darkness. This, however, is hardly an intelligent view of politics to be taken by a philosophic politician. After all, it is not supremely important to understand what Mr. MORLEY did actually mean when he informed an audience a few nights ago that the "Dissentient Liberals" were really "black Tories." Liberal-Unionism as a creed is quite capable of taking care of itself; every additional epithet flung at its supporters is a fresh proof of its vigour and of the dismay with which it is viewed in the hostile camp. Not the least interesting part of Mr. SMITH's address of yesterday was his reference to the loyal and steady support which had been accorded to the Ministry, since its accession to office, by its Unionist upholders. It is because all descriptions of Unionists have closed their ranks in presence of a threatening danger that the position of Leader of the House of Commons, worthily held up to the present by Mr. SMITH, as well as that of the Ministry itself, has been rendered stable and practically unassailable.

Speaking in a commercial and industrial centre such as Salford, it was natural for Mr. SMITH to refer to the prospects of a revival of trade activity in Ireland, in consequence of the greater security now enjoyed. It is a commonplace of politics that, without order, commerce languishes, and it is impossible to expect men to embark in costly enterprises or to trust their capital in industrial undertakings in a country where "Heaven's first law" is openly disregarded and defied. Now, however, there appears to be a happier day dawning for Ireland as far as material prosperity is concerned. No amount of partisan oratory can obscure the significance of the fact that under the régime of Mr. BALFOUR Irish securities are increasing in value, and that the returns of the banks show a greater saving power among the people. It may, of course, be retorted that material prosperity is not everything, and that under some very tyrannical Governments commerce has flourished. As, however, it has been always conceded that the great need of Ireland is the steady flow of capital to it, and as that is impossible when the foundations of society are shaken, the mere establishment of settled order must in itself be a vast gain. We can pretty accurately gauge the competency of the present leaders of the Irish people really to benefit their clients by applying the practical test which Mr. SMITH suggested. Have they ever brought prosperity to the country? Have they ever made sacrifices to gain employment for starving families, after the manner of Lady BURDETT-COUTTS in relation to the Fisheries? Evidently Mr. SMITH's opinion of the Nationalist leaders is that by their fruits we may know them. After this authoritative pronouncement of the Ministerial views upon the Irish problem, it would be as well for supporters of the Government to leave Ireland alone for a season. The condition of the country is such that she may be fitly regarded as a patient slowly approaching convalescence after a prolonged fever; and repose and quietude are the prescriptions which best suit such a case. There will, after Mr. GLADSTONE's next speeches, be plenty of matter for Unionists to answer; and until that period arrives it might be as well to refrain even from good and true words. Mr. SMITH himself, in his unsparing truth-telling about Ireland and the sources from which Irish agitators gain their strength and resources, did not neglect the larger and sister isle. On the subject of our defences he did not enter into particulars; and it is, therefore, impossible to conjecture whether he simply had in view those proposals for increasing the strength of the Navy which the First Lord lately sketched, or some more drastic scheme, to embrace both our land and sea forces. But he also referred to the success of Mr. GOSCHEN's Conversion scheme, and on this head it is interesting to bear in mind the magnitude of the operation, and the extent to which it has already been carried out. Altogether this latest Ministerial utterance is full of pride in the past and a confidence for the future which are sure to prove contagious.

ONCE more the hunting season is upon us, and three hundred and forty-five packs of various kinds are advertised to take part in it. Of staghounds there are fifteen packs in England and Ireland; of fox-hounds there are one hundred and fifty-five in England, seven in Scotland, and fifteen in Ireland; of harriers there are ninety-six packs in England, five in Scotland, and twenty-three in Ireland; and of beagles there are nineteen in England, Wales, and Ireland combined. Such an army of hunting hounds was never arrayed for the chase in any country, ancient or modern, except merry England; and, when we remember that nearly two hundred packs will be engaged this winter in pursuing the fox alone, it must be confessed that the Duke of BEAUFORT is right when, in his volume "On Hunting," in the "Badminton Library," he speaks of that unsavoury quadruped as "the spoilt darling of the nineteenth century." The "red rascal" of Mr. EGERTON WARBURTON's hunting prolusions in rhyme would long ago have been exterminated had it not been that he is the best quarry in the world to follow across country. Such are the benefits to health and the incitements to exercise supplied by "the chase," that the dangers of the sport would kick the beam if weighed against its enjoyments. There are Masters of Foxhounds, past or present, who are still able to take the field, although sixty years have passed since they were first blooded by some veteran huntsman like the late JEM HILLS, who, we believe, performed that interesting ceremony for the present Duke of BEAUFORT, and for Lord GRANVILLE, when the latter was out hunting with the Heythrop, during the reign of WILLIAM IV. Lord MACCLESFIELD, whose horses were sold last week, gave evidence in this way that his hunting days are over—a circumstance sincerely regretted by those who mark the erect form and elastic step of the noble owner of Shirburn Castle, Oxfordshire, although his eightieth year is not far distant. Another famous Master of Foxhounds, also a great friend of Lord MACCLESFIELD, appears in Mr. GEORGE LANE FOX, who has hunted the Bramham Moor country in Yorkshire for the last forty years, and is one of the finest specimens of an English squire that these islands contain. The sight of his name as Master of the hounds which he took over from the hands of the late Earl of HAREWOOD in 1849, will bring joy to many a Yorkshire heart, as he is regarded in the county of many acres with unparalleled interest and affection. Coming to a slightly younger generation, we find that Lord PORTSMOUTH, whose kennels are at Eggesford, North Devon, has been for thirty years in command of the pack which bears his name, and that the Duke of BEAUFORT has controlled the destinies of the Badminton Hounds for five-and-thirty seasons. Ever since 1839 Mr. W. R. H. POWELL has owned and hunted his own pack of foxhounds, with their kennels at Maesgwynne, in South Wales; and Mr. JOHN CROSIER succeeded his father in the command of the Threlkeld—now the Blencathra—Hounds, in the wildest part of the Lake country, so far back as 1840. There are, indeed, Masters now living who give promise of reigning over their respective packs for as many years as the late Sir TATTON SYKES or Mr. ASSHETON SMITH.

Wherever Captain ANSTRUTHER THOMSON is known the announcement of the retirement into private life of one of the most typical hunting men, and one of the best Masters of hounds that the present century has produced, will be received with profound regret. Turning to the advertisement of the Fife Hounds, we find that a new Master—Colonel J. A. MIDDLETON—will hunt them this year, and that the short-stirruped seat of the celebrated "JACK THOMSON," as he was universally called by his friends, will be seen no more in the field of honour, unless it be as spectator of a sport to which he has actively contributed for the last half-century. In his time Captain ANSTRUTHER THOMSON has been Master of the Atherstone, the Bicester, the Pytchley, and the Fife Hounds, and in each he has left behind him a record of sport which none of his contemporaries can surpass and few can equal. In the "Memoirs of the Pytchley Hunt," written by the late Mr. J. O. NETHERCOTE, we read that Captain ANSTRUTHER THOMSON became Master of that famous pack in 1864, and that he accepted the responsible office at the request of his old friend and brother officer, Major WHYTE MELVILLE. At first Captain THOMSON lived at Pitsford Hall, after which he moved to more convenient hunting quarters at the Rookery, Brixworth. CHARLES PAYNE, the celebrated huntsman, under whose experienced guidance the Pytchley field saw "the best run on record," as Mr. NETHERCOTE calls it—that is to say, the run which took place on November 21st, 1854, and in which they found in a coppice below Mr. GOUGH's house, near North Kilworth, and ran for two hours and twenty-seven minutes over twenty-five miles of country—took service with Sir WATKIN WYNN's hounds in 1864, and Captain ANSTRUTHER THOMSON hunted the Pytchley himself. During the five years of his reign extraordinary sport was shown by him to the large fields which assembled at those crack Pytchley meets, Badby, Naseby Covert, Brampton Wood, Nobottle Wood, Yelvertoft Fieldside, Harleston Heath, and North Kilworth. Never before were the famous Pytchley gorses at Crick, Waterloo, and Misterton so rattled as by "JACK THOMSON" between 1865 and 1869. In 1866, on the 2nd of February, came the great Waterloo run which shares the fame of that from Billesdon Coplow in the same month of 1800, embalmed in one of the best hunting songs in the language. On that memorable February day in 1866 the Pytchley met at Arthingworth, and found in Waterloo gorse. The run lasted for three and a half hours, when the light began to fail, and with it the scent declined also. Throughout the whole of those trying hours, CUSTANCE, the jockey, had the best of it, and Captain THOMSON, riding sixteen stone in the saddle tired out five successive horses, and experienced several falls. It was believed that the fox had been changed two or three times, as no quarry of that size, however gallant—and Mr. ANTHONY TROLLOPE confesses that the the fox is often too gallant for his human pursuers—could have lived before hounds at such a pace and for so long a time. Captain THOMSON began the run on his well-known mare Valeria, which he exchanged for Usurper, lent to him by DICK ROAKE, the first whip. Then, having exhausted Usurper, he got hold of a horse belonging to Mr. W. HAY, and fourthly of one surrendered to him by Mr. DE WINTON. Fifthly, at the very nick of time Captain THOMSON's second horse, Rainbow, turned up, and on him he got the hounds back to Brixworth at ten o'clock at night, and immediately donned his evening dress and set out for the Market Harborough ball.

The ringing cheers which greeted the popular Master of the Pytchley as he entered the ballroom on that memorable night are not likely to fade from his recollection. Standing six feet three inches in his top-boots, and riding more than sixteen stone, Captain THOMSON is still spoken of in the Pytchley country with an affection equal to that with which the names of his famous predecessors, the great Lord ALTHORP and Mr. GEORGE PAYNE, are always received. His best horses in Northamptonshire were the wall-eyed Iris, Valeria, Borderer, Harold, Man of the Age, Wanderer, Hypothec, and, best of all, the dark brown gelding Rainbow, who stood sixteen hands two inches high, and for whom "there was nothing too high or too wide or too strong." When, to the inexpressible regret of the Pytchley field, Captain THOMSON resigned the mastership after the winter of 1868-69, he was painted on the back of Iris by Sir FRANCIS GRANT, and the picture was presented to his wife by the Pytchley Hunt. He was succeeded in the command of this celebrated pack by the present Earl SPENCER, to whom the Prince of WALES paid a visit at Althorp Park in 1863, when his Royal Highness was mounted on Pale Ale. The annals of the Pytchley Hunt show that in 1878 the Empress of AUSTRIA resided at Cottesbrooke Park, and hunted from that snug abode for six weeks. The story still runs that her Imperial Majesty invariably carried a fan in her hand, as well as a whip, and that, when offered a cup of tea at any house which she passed on returning from hunting, it was her custom to ask for a glass of home-brewed English beer. On the day of her departure from Cottesbrooke she gave a prize for a steeplechase which came off at Hopping Hill, after she had entertained at luncheon the Prince and Princess of WALES, the Duchess of TECK, the Duchess of MANCHESTER, and Earl and Countess SPENCER. The Pytchley is now under the command of Mr. H. H. LANGHAM, by whom its famous traditions are ably perpetuated. With few alterations, and those due chiefly to the ceaseless course of Time, the same names of packs, of Masters, of huntsmen, and of whips turn up year after year. Since the last publication of this record, the Duke of RUTLAND has paid the debt of nature, and FRANK GOODALL has made way for JOHN HARVEY as huntsman of the Royal Buckhounds. Almost without exception, however, the same Masters and the same Hunt servants will be found this season at the various meets where they are so well-known.

IT may be said of the London costermongers that, like the poor, they are always with us, and that they are a constant source of vexation of spirit to the parochial authorities. There is, however, this appreciable difference between the street-sellers and the recipients of indoor and outdoor relief, that the former, although normally indigent, are not paupers, and do their best, in the face of many difficulties, to earn an honest livelihood. It is, nevertheless, extremely difficult to eliminate from the parochial mind the idea that there is little to choose between a costermonger and a vagrant, and that the best way towards ameliorating his condition is to improve him off the face of the land altogether. Such an utterly erroneous doctrine would appear to be extremely prevalent in the parish of Bethnal-green, to judge at least from certain proceedings at Worship-street, where, on Monday, the parochial sanitary inspector and street-keeper was summoned by a costermonger for the wrongful detention of his barrow. The case arose out of the desire of the parish to clear the streets of costermongers after eleven o'clock on Sunday mornings. This street traffic has been tolerated for at least five-and-twenty years, but the vestry have tardily awakened to the fact that Sunday trading during church hours is an iniquity and must be put down. Some years ago the Board of Works of the Holborn district, in their zeal for enforcing the due observance of the Sabbath, ventured on the heroic measure of bringing watering-carts into Leather-lane on Sunday morning and drenching the wares of the costermongers with diluted carbolic acid. The proceedings in Bethnal-green seem to be of a somewhat milder nature, the chief mode of coercion employed being to pounce on the costermongers' barrows unawares and sequestrate them at the green-yard. The complaining street-vendor had left his barrow and board unattended while he went to pay a neighbouring publican a small sum in which he was indebted to him. On his return he found, to his dismay, that the street-keeper, like the Assyrian of old, had come down like a wolf on the fold, or rather on the deserted barrow, which that official declined to surrender, and which was solemnly wheeled to the green-yard. Next morning the costermonger proceeded to the area of tribulation and demanded his property. The street-keeper was not "on hand," and the poor costermonger was coolly told that he could not have his barrow until the ensuing Thursday. Thereupon the man very fairly put it to the green-yard people that the continued embargo on his barrow, the use of which enabled him to get his living, was equivalent to a sentence of semi-starvation on himself, his wife, and children; but, according to his statement, the employés of the vestry replied, "Well, let them starve." It is to be hoped that there is some exaggeration in this assertion, for it is almost incredible that such brutal heartlessness should have been exhibited by men who know well enough how hard is the costermonger's life, and to what a large extent he must depend on his barrow or shallow for the means of earning his daily bread.

On the Thursday the complainant again proceeded to the green-yard, when the, to him, exorbitant sum of five shillings was demanded as a "yard fee." It is not surprising to learn that, as the complainant had not been able to go about selling his wares, he could not pay the two half-crowns asked for; so the barrow remained impounded, and the costermonger very justly took out a summons against the street-keeper. This functionary, however, had the high and mighty parish at his back, and the clerk to the vestry came down armed to the teeth with a fine old crusted Act of Parliament, passed in 1817, when the population of London was about a fourth of its present aggregate, under one of the clauses of which the vestry by their officer were empowered to seize and impound derelict goods, charging such fees as they thought fit. When the 57th George III. was solemnly quoted, Mr. MONTAGU WILLIAMS very naturally asked whether it was suggested that a man had no right to leave his barrow for a moment, just as he—the magistrate—had to keep his carriage standing in the street. The vestry clerk made answer that the costermonger had already been summoned for obstruction, and that his barrow would have been returned to him "if he had paid the green-yard fee of two-and-sixpence or five shillings, whatever it was." This truly sublime ignoring of the extortionate tariff of fees at the green-yard naturally elicited from the magistrate the remark that the vestry clerk talked of crowns and half-crowns as though such coins grew in the pockets of the poor. In reality, five shillings might represent the entire profits of a costermonger from early in the morning until late at night. The sanitary inspector and street-keeper affirmed that the complainant did not call for his barrow at the proper time; but the costermonger persisted in declaring that on the Monday morning he waited at the green-yard from ten to half-past eleven o'clock, and that on the Thursday he tendered three shillings and eight-pence in payment of the fee, but that his offer was contumeliously refused. A more lamentable tale was then told by a female street-seller whose barrow was seized at the same time with that of the complainant, the same being still under distringas at the green-yard, as she had no money to pay the fees. This poor woman declared that she had a sick husband and four little children to support, and that she could not procure food for them unless she went out hawking, which she was unable to do without her barrow. These may appear to high and mighty officials and superfine economists very mean and squalid details, but it is necessary that such unpicturesque particulars should be entered into in order that the humane and impartial public may know that the costermongers are a miserably poor class of people, who live literally from hand to mouth; and that there is the thinnest possible line of demarcation between their painful and laborious travail to earn an honest crust on the one hand, and absolute destitution, or the more wretched potentialities of crime, on the other. Needlessly to harry and worry the costermongers amounts to throwing them on the poor-rate or inciting them to get a living in sheer despair by preying dishonestly upon society; and it is not only a gross act of inhumanity but the stupidest of economical blunders to put arbitrary obstacles in the way of these poverty-stricken folk when they strive to earn an honest penny.

Obviously this was the opinion on the whole case entertained by Mr. MONTAGU WILLIAMS, who very properly administered a salutary check to the vestry clerk when, in his sublimely self-complacent manner, he talked of the costermongers setting the parish at defiance and leaving their goods in the street, to the mercy of the world. He might as well have accused them of disparaging the Zodiac or speaking disrespectfully of the Equator; and the magistrate had sharply to remind the representative of Bethnal-green Bumbledom that the female street-seller whose barrow was still impounded had not experienced much of the mercy of the world, seeing that she had a sick husband and four young children crying for bread, that for want of her barrow she could neither buy food nor pay her rent, and that her landlord had consequently put the brokers in. We dare say that the vestry clerk and the vestry of Bethnal-green behind him are all as well-meaning and kind-hearted gentlemen as need be, and that they would be extremely reluctant to be guilty of any act of cruelty or injustice, either to an individual or to a class. Nevertheless, just as to a white settler in the far West "Injuns is pisin," and to the Australian working man the thrifty and industrious Chinaman is an abomination simply because he is willing to work for two-and-sixpence instead of eight shillings a day, so, to the London parochial mind, the costermonger seems a normally objectionable and reprehensible being, chiefly because there is no roof to the shop which he keeps, and because he has no stake, so to speak, in the parish, and will never be elected a member of the vestry or the Board of Guardians. As regards the Bethnal-green case the magistrate made an order for the immediate restoration to the complainant of his long-impounded barrow; and he also advised the vestry clerk to give up the barrow of the female street-seller, who had not as yet taken out a summons; whereupon the parochial official, much to his credit, at once undertook to act on the magisterial suggestion. The public have unfortunately no guarantee of a surcease in the practice of worrying the costermongers, which may be called a sporadic form of persecution, breaking out as it does now in one part of the Metropolis and now in another. The fantastic tricks which are played one Sunday at Bethnal-green may be re-enacted a few Sabbaths afterwards at Hammersmith, at Camberwell, or at Camden-town. It is in any case bordering on the intolerable that a musty Act of GEORGE III. should continue to be used as an engine for the oppression of the costermongers. That Act was passed full twelve years before the establishment of the metropolitan police, and when parish constables and street-keepers were in the day-time practically the only officers who could control the traffic or preserve order in the thoroughfares. We do not for one moment wish to blink the fact that the costermongers are occasionally given to be troublesome; but their control should be left to the police, and in cases where they really cause an obstruction, or have been guilty of other misconduct, they should be summoned by the police, and suitably dealt with. At present a costermonger is at the mercy both of the police-constable and of the parochial official. That he should be punished if he infringes the law is expedient enough; but it is perfectly monstrous that, for a trifling offence under an antiquated Act of Parliament, the parish should be warranted in seizing his absolute means of livelihood, and refusing to give him back his property until he has paid an exorbitant fee.

The Queen has been pleased to approve of the appointment of Mr. Moir F. Stormont Darling to be Solicitor-General for Scotland.

Her Majesty has been pleased to approve the appointment of Mr. Gurudas Banerjee, Pleader of the High Court at Calcutta, to be a Judge of that Court.

The Court.

BALMORAL, OCT. 23.

Yesterday morning the Queen went out, attended by the Hon. Ethel Cadogan. Her Majesty in the afternoon drove out with her Royal Highness Princess Beatrice.

Major-General Sir John M'Neill, K.C.B., V.C., arrived at the Castle.

The Right Hon. C. T. Ritchie and Sir John M'Neill had the honour of dining with the Queen and the Royal family.

TO-DAY'S ARRANGEMENTS.

Brewers and Allied Trades' National Exhibition, Agricultural Hall (third day).
Brewers' Congress, Agricultural Hall (second day).
Metropolitan Beer and Wine Trade Protection Society, the Holborn Restaurant.
National Cat Show, Crystal Palace (last day).
Laboratory Club, the Holborn Restaurant.
Reopening of the Royal Courts of Justice.—Michaelmas Sittings.
Newmarket Races: Dewhurst Plate.
Football—Sussex v. London, at Brighton; Hull v. Maoris, at Hull; University v East Sheen, at Oxford.

The Queen has been pleased to approve of the appointment of Mr. Nicholas Herbert to be an Assistant General Inspector under the Local Government Board, in the place of Major Lutley Jordan, who has resigned.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has been pleased to appoint Colonel Robert N. Fitzhardinge Kingscote, C.B., Receiver-General of the Duchy of Cornwall, vice the Right Hon. Sir John Rose, Bart., G.C.M.G., deceased.

The Prince of Wales travelled to Newmarket yesterday at noon to witness the contest for the Cambridgeshire Stakes. His Royal Highness is staying at the Jockey Club Rooms. In the company of the Prince on the grand stand were, among others, Lord Zetland, Lord Howe, the Hon. T. W. Fitzwilliam, Lord Hartington, Lord Randolph Churchill, Lord Arthur Somerset, Lord Calthorpe, Mr. J. Lowther, Sir John Astley, Lady Cardigan, Lady Gerard, and the Duchess of Montrose, who is entertaining at Sefton Lodge Lord William Paulett, Sir John Willoughby, and others. Lord Hartington is receiving a select party of racing friends at his house in the High-street; and Lord Randolph Churchill is the guest of Lord and Lady Gerard at Moulton Paddocks.

Earl Compton has consented to become a Vice-President of the Leaseholds Enfranchisement Association.

Yesterday the Earl of Dartmouth opened a new Eye Infirmary at Wolverhampton, which has been built at a cost of about £10,000.

Last evening the Lord Chancellor arrived in town from Pendruccombe, his place in Cornwall, in order to receive the new Lord Mayor and the judges and Queen's counsel to-day at the House of Lords.

Lord and Lady Sudeley, accompanied by the Hon. Miss Eva Hanbury Tracy and Madame Brogrie, arrived at their Welsh seat, Gregynog, Montgomeryshire, last evening.

The Lord Mayor asks us to state, in reply to certain comments of the Indépendance Belge, that in a private conversation with M. Harry, of that journal, in Brussels—a conversation which he never dreamt was to be published, as M. Harry did not take a single note in his presence—he said, "Londres est et sera toujours le refuge du crime de l'Angleterre et en partie du Continent." He never used the word "dépotoir" (which has been translated into "cesspool"), and in fact did not know the word, for which he looked in vain in the French dictionary on seeing it in the newspapers.

On Tuesday next the Bishop of Ripon, the president, will deliver the opening address at the annual diocesan conference at Leeds.

Sir W. Dowell, Sir R. Vesey Hamilton, and Sir Frederick Richards, the admirals who are engaged upon the special commission employed in drawing up a report upon the results of the recent naval manœuvres, are meeting almost daily at the Admiralty. The reports of the commanding officers of the squadrons and ships engaged, and of the umpires, have been considered, but it will be another month before the report of the commission will be ready for presentation to Parliament.

Sir Barnes Peacock, one of the Lords Justices of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, has been suffering from weak health lately, and has been ordered abroad for change.

To-morrow will be the thirty-fourth anniversary of the battle of Balaclava. The following officers, who rode in the charge of the Light Brigade, still survive—General Alex. Low, C.B., Lieutenant-Colonel R. Portal, Major Thomas Hutton, Captain Lord Hylton, and Captain G. W. Hunt, who rode with the 4th Hussars; Colonel William Mussenden, Major Edward Phillips, Major Clement W. Heneage, V.C., Major George C. Clowes, Captain D. H. Clutterbuck, and Captain J. A. Pickworth, who rode with the 8th Hussars; Lieutenant-General Sir Rogers Palmer, Bart., Colonel H. Astley Trevelyan, and Captain Rourke Teevan, who were with the 11th Hussars; Lieutenant-Colonel Arthur Tremayne, Major Edward L. Jarvis, Major T. G. Johnson, and Captain P. Shawe Smith, who rode with the 13th Light Dragoons; Lieutenant-General Robert White, C.B., Major Lord Tredegar, Sir William Gordon, Bart., Sir George Wombwell, Bart., Major W. W. Graham, Major John Brown, and Major J. Berryman, V.C., who were with the 17th Lancers. The first-named officer—General Low—is the senior survivor, and is now Colonel of the regiment in which he rode as a captain.

The Mediterranean Squadron, consisting of the flagship Alexandra, with the Duke of Edinburgh and Prince George of Wales on board, the ironclads Benbow, Edinburgh, Téméraire, and Sultan, and the cruiser Carysfort, sailed from Malta yesterday for the Piræus in order to be present at the approaching festivities in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession of King George. The despatch vessel Surprise will leave to-day for the same destination, with the Duchess of Edinburgh on board.

Her Majesty's staghounds resumed hunting in seasonable weather, yesterday, the meet being held at the Royal Hotel, near Ascot Heath.

The executors of the late Miss Louisa M'Kellar, of Argyll Lodge, Clapham Park, have apportioned a sum of £150 from the residue of her estate to the Royal Westminster Ophthalmic Hospital, and the late Lord Northwick has left a legacy of £100 to the same institution.

THE NEW VICEROY OF INDIA.—The Marquis and Marchioness of Lansdowne will leave London for India on Nov. 17. They will travel from Charing-cross to Brindisi, and on the 19th embark on board the P. and O. steamer Sutlej.

THE ROYAL VISIT TO CHESHIRE.—Yesterday morning Prince Albert Victor of Wales and his host, Lord Egerton of Tatton, hunted with the North Cheshire hounds, which met in the locality. The house party present included Earl Amherst, the Hon. A. Keppel, the Hon. H. Portman, Mr. Holford, and Mr. Bruce Wentworth. There was a hoar frost during the night, but a bright sun soon dispersed it, and there was a brilliant hunting day.

DEATH OF JUDGE GIFFARD.—Mr. J. W. de Longueville Giffard, judge of the Exeter County-court, and brother of the Lord Chancellor, died yesterday at his residence near Exeter. He was appointed judge of the Huddersfield circuit in March, 1875, and was transferred to Exeter a few years ago.

PARIS DAY BY DAY.

[BY SPECIAL WIRE.]

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

PARIS, TUESDAY NIGHT.

Days follow and resemble each other. We have enjoyed more than an unbroken week of perfect autumn weather, and there is no sign of a change. The favourite promenades are crowded every afternoon, and all is life and animation. The detachments of sandwich-men attired in various fantastic costumes have resumed their perambulations, a sure symptom that Paris is supposed to have filled once more. Of course a good many of those fortunate people who have chateaux and broad acres in the provinces, and who only come up to the metropolis on pleasure bent, are still conspicuous by their absence, and many a Senator and Deputy of sporting tastes must regret that his Parliamentary avocations have torn him from leafy wood and sequestered glade in this delightful weather; but the great bulk of the regular dwellers by the banks of the Seine have returned to their homes in town. Houses have been furbished up, scaffoldings removed, and the sound of the hammer is heard no more in so many nooks and corners of the more ornamental streets. Meanwhile the Exhibition works are progressing apace. Another lengthy structure has risen on the Quai d'Orsay. The Esplanade des Invalides is now one mass of masonry, and the Eiffel Tower is visibly soaring upwards. Never for many seasons past has so much been attempted, so much done, in the way of renovation of pavement and cleansing of walls. Preparations have been made on all sides for next year's world show, and when the spring comes round the peoples in their thousands will be expected to flock hither and admire, in spite of decrees and income-taxes and other resources for raising the revenue.

M. de Freycinet is well pleased with the reception he has met with at Nice. He was cheered by thousands on his arrival, and at a banquet which he gave last evening to the military and civil authorities he was warmly complimented on his activity by General Jappy, who said that the army at first disliked the idea of being under the command of a civilian, but that since this civilian had given such evidence of his capacity all officers and men ardently desired to retain him long at their head. M. de Freycinet, in replying to this compliment, expressed his confidence in the Fifteenth Army Corps, which was entrusted with the defence of the Alpine districts, and added that Savoy and Nice, which had been last to enter the French family, ought to be treated with special favour. M. de Freycinet was to spend to-day at Mentone, proceeding to-morrow with General Ferron, his predecessor at the War Office, to inspect new forts and strategical roads, and returning to Nice on Friday.

The controversy to which the appointment of General de Miribel to the command of the Sixth Army Corps has given rise continues with unabated vigour. It probably led General Fevrier, who has just retired from that important post, to address an emphatic warning to the officers who had met to do him honour on the eve of his departure from Chalons-sur-Marne. In drinking the health of the Sixth Corps, the gallant general reminded the officers that they formed the vanguard of the army, and should always maintain the discipline and traditions which had made it strong and valiant. He added very emphatically: "Above all, beware of that evil thing for us which is called politics. Do not emerge from that noble correctness of attitude which is your rôle. Beware, oh, beware of political babblers! They are destructive by nature: they lead men's minds astray, and I cannot warn you too much against listening to them." These words, uttered in a kind and fatherly manner by the old general, were received with loud and prolonged applause, which was renewed when General Fevrier exhorted his hearers to continue under the command of General de Miribel what they had been under his own—namely, brave, zealous, and disciplined. He concluded: "Farewell, or rather au revoir! If the hour of danger strikes I shall be wherever honour calls me. I drink to your health and that of your comrades in the army. I drink to the successes of the French army, to the greatness of our country." As General Fevrier is one of the most distinguished and respected officers in the army his words cannot fail to produce a strong impression.

To-day the debate on the estimates was resumed, but in the early part of the sitting there were so few Deputies that it looked as if the House would be compelled to adjourn until the Chamber was sufficiently provided with legislators. M. Floquet and M. Peytral, the Minister of Finance, again kept each other in countenance on the Ministerial bench, while M. d'Aillières brought the attack on the Republic and its institutions which he had begun yesterday to a close. Among the various speakers who followed, Baron de Soubeyran strongly criticised the income-tax project, while M. Wickersheimer declared his surprise that such a scheme had not been put into force long ago. M. Jules Roche, the reporter of the committee, was the last on the list of to-day's orators. In the course of his speech he expressed a hope that at the moment when "a coalition was being formed in Europe to stifle liberty" the Budget debate would not prove a fresh source of division among Frenchmen. The situation, bad as it was, undoubtedly was the result of fatality. Everything had conspired against them, even nature, which had damaged the vine, one of the most fruitful sources of revenue. Mr. Jules Roche concluded by exhorting the Chamber to vote the estimates with the utmost possible despatch. The House adjourned until Thursday.

Various reminiscences of illustrious people are conjured up by the recent death of the Dowager Duchess of Hamilton, Princess Mary of Baden. The Princess who was born on Oct. 11, 1817, was married at the age of twenty-six to the Duke of Hamilton, who was one of the personal friends of Louis Napoleon, and who, when the Prince President became Emperor, purchased a magnificent mansion in the Faubourg Saint Germain. The Duchess of Hamilton was one of the most welcome of the guests at the Tuileries, and, while shunning to a considerable extent the more gorgeous gatherings at the Imperial Court, she was an assiduous attendant at the Empress's little teas and at the family réunions at St. Cloud. When her husband, the Duke of Hamilton, died suddenly on coming out of the Maison Dorée on the Boulevards, in 1863, the Duchess retired altogether from the brilliant life of the Court. There were various reasons why the Duke and Duchess of Hamilton were personæ gratissimæ at the Tuileries in the dazzling days of the Imperial régime. The Duke was, it is true, a trusty friend of Louis Napoleon's, but his wife was the daughter of the Emperor's favourite aunt. The Dowager Duchess of Hamilton who has just died was, in fact, one of the children of Stéphanie Louise Adrienne, Vicomtesse de Beauharnais, who was the adopted daughter of Napoleon the First, and in April, 1806, married the Grand Duke of Baden. On the death of Queen Hortense, in 1837, it was the Grand Duchess Stéphanie who watched with maternal solicitude over young Louis Napoleon, of whose filial familiarity towards his aunt an amusing anecdote is told by the Vicomte de Beauchesne, who knew the Grand Duchess well. Prince Louis, his aunt, and the Vicomte were playing whist one evening, when the Prince, who was losing, was preparing to leave the room without paying the Grand Duchess. "I call you to witness," said the Duchess to M. de Beauchesne, "that he is going away in my debt." "Never mind, aunt," returned the Prince; "you shall get your money when I am Emperor." At this the Duchess remarked to the Vicomte, "Prince Louis is always joking," little thinking at the time that her nephew was destined to repay her with interest. It was the Grand Duchess Stéphanie who represented Queen Josephine of Sweden and Norway at the baptism of the young Prince Imperial who was killed in Zululand. Cardinal Patrizzi acted as sponsor on the part of Pope Pius the Ninth at the same christening. The Dowager Duchess of Hamilton who has just died, although not residing in the French capital, was a great benefactress to its poor. Her grandson, Prince Louis of Monaco, whose mother, Lady Mary Victoria Douglas Hamilton, was married to Count Festetics, of Vienna, after having been divorced from Prince Albert of Monaco, is now completing his studies in the College Stanislaus, the famous establishment of the Jesuits in Paris. He was a great favourite with his grandmother, and frequently spent his holidays with her in Baden.

The marriage of Mdlle. Marcelle Boulanger with Captain Driant is to take place next Tuesday at the Church St. Pierre de Chaillot, in the Champs Elysées quarter. A fortnight after the wedding Captain Driant will return to his regiment in Tunis with his bride. Mdlle. Boulanger is already well acquainted with the country, where she spent two years while her father commanded the troops in the Regency. It was, indeed, at Tunis that the General and his family made the acquaintance of Captain Driant. On taking the command of the army of occupation General Boulanger had need of an extra aide-de-camp. He applied for one to the authorities at home, and a list of officers was sent to him. One was particularly recommended by the Elysée, another was the relative of a high functionary, and so forth. Alone on the list the name of Lieutenant Driant stood, unsupported by any special interest. It is characteristic of the General that he immediately sent for the young officer, and after a long conversation, appointed him on the spot to the vacant post. The kindly feeling between the two men gradually developed into real affection. General Boulanger had a difficult part to play in Tunis, and he was ably and devotedly assisted by his subordinate. When he returned to Paris the General brought his aide-de-camp with him, and, when he became Minister of War, he chose M. Driant for his private secretary. Promotion soon came; the lieutenant was raised to the rank of captain, and, when his chief was nominated to the command of the Thirteenth Corps, he followed him to Clermont-Ferrand. On the memorable departure from the Gare-de-Lyon, he sat by the General's side on the engine. Afterwards he returned to his regiment, the 4th Zouaves, in Tunis. Unlike the majority of French marriages, this is a genuine love match. After his departure for Tunis, the young captain kept up a close correspondence with the General, and repeatedly begged him to give his consent. At last a favourable answer was returned. Mdlle. Marcelle Boulanger is the younger of the General's two daughters. She is pretty and accomplished, is still in her teens, and has more than once given proof of coolness and courage under trying circumstances when her father has been exposed to hostile demonstrations and harsh treatment.

Less fortunate than Brebant, or the Maison's Vachette, which, although converted into a bouillon, has escaped permanent effacement as a building and landmark, the Café Felix, which stood close to the Saint-Lazare Station, has now disappeared for ever. The place was frequently used by the passengers by the Newhaven and Dieppe line, by people who went periodically to the races, by bookmakers, jockeys, and grooms, by actors and others who had suburban villas in the Versailles or Saint Germain direction, and by travellers on the Western of France generally; but it has likewise been identified in a remarkable manner with the rise of the Third Republic, and will therefore merit the attention of the future historiographers of Paris. It was situated under the colonnades of the Gare-Saint-Lazare, at the corner of the Rue d'Amsterdam, but not a stone of it is now left standing. On the fall of the Empire, and when the National Assembly sat at Versailles, the Café Félix used to be a veritable Parliamentary house of call. In going to or coming from the City of All the Glories deputies and politicians of every shade met and mingled together. Gambetta's followers had their headquarters there, among them frequently being M. Coquelin, the actor. Ministries were made and unmade, and high State appointments were often bestowed on its cigarette-smoking and domino-playing habitués, among the luckiest of whom have been M. Tirman, who became Governor-General of Algeria; M. Constans, late Resident in Annam; M. Rouvier, who has been once Prime Minister; and M. Barrère, ex-Communist, journalist, and diplomat, whose connection with Egyptian affairs is well known. Gambetta himself used also to put in an appearance at the Café Félix, and was generally to be seen in a cosy corner of the establishment where he was free from the gaze of outsiders. After the death of the Tribune the Gambettists were less assiduous in their attendance in the famous political rendezvous; but it was, nevertheless, a favourite meeting-place of Opportunist publicists. Despite the foundation of a number of clubs, the Paris cafés have not, after all, lost so many of their political, literary, and artistic frequenters as is popularly supposed. The Café de la Paix, the Café Riche, the Café de Londres, and the Grand can still boast on various occasions, as a recent commentator on café life in Paris has pointed out, of having among their frequenters many notabilities in politics, art, literature, and particularly finance. General Boulanger and his friends have conferred quite a modern celebrity on Durand's Restaurant, opposite the Madeleine, and on the Café Riche, and possibly the places which the triply-elected Deputy used to occupy in these establishments may be exhibited or described to posterity, just as is the spot where the First Bonaparte played chess in the Café de la Regence, opposite the Théatre Français. Encrusted in the marble of a table in this café is a silver tablet to commemorate the fact that General Bonaparte, the Commander-in-Chief of the Army of Italy, was wont to sit there. Robespierre also frequented the same place, and so did many of the wild spirits of the Great Revolution.

There was another good attendance at Chantilly to-day. The following were the results of the various events: Prix de Boran—Perle Rose, 1; Aglaé, 2; Isolina colt, 3. Won by a neck; a length between second and third. Prix de Blaison—Chateau d'If, 1; Frisco, 2; Carolus, 3. Won by a length; half a length separated second and third. Prix de la Masselhère—Illusion II., 1; Lavinie, 2; Reine Blanche, 3. Won by a length; a head between second and third. Prix de Commelles—Folie, 1; Saladin, 2; Sergent-Major, 3. Won by a length and a half; two lengths separated second and third. Prix de Luzarches—Melbourne, 1; Empire, 2. Won by a neck. Prix d'Ermenonville—Parbleu, 1; Sautereile, 2; Firmin, 3. Won by half a length; a neck between second and third.

On the Bourse to-day the last quotations were: Three per Cents., 82f 42½c (a fall of 7½c); Four and a Half per Cents., 105f 70c (no change); Italians, 96f 57½c (a fall of 10c); Turks, 15f 50c (a fall of 10c); Spanish Exteriors, 73f 50c; Egyptian Unified, 422f 50c; Preference, 500f; Ottoman Bank, 530f 62c. Suez Canal shares closed at 2,230f, and Rio Tinto at 620f. Home funds continue weak, and there was a fall in most of the foreign stocks, including Russians and Hungarians. Spanish Exteriors have fallen 40c, Egyptian Unified 1f 25c, and Suez Canal shares 7f 50c. The French Funds were influenced by the speeches delivered yesterday in the Chamber, in which the Reactionaries represented the financial situation of France as simply deplorable. On the Petite Bourse to-night the closing prices were: Italians, 96f 67c; Egyptian Unified, 422f 50c; Ottoman Bank, 530f 25c; and Rio Tinto, 621f 25c.

THE CAT SHOW.

The enthusiastic promoters and fanciers of the National Cat Show are indeed to be congratulated on their twentieth gathering at the Crystal Palace. It is just twenty years ago since that artistic and sympathetic lover of all animals, Mr. Harrison Weir, "took up" the cat, and pointed out that it was not a thing to be reviled and thrown stones at; that it was even more than "harmless and necessary"; and that, with culture and attention to breeding, feeding, habits, and what may be termed grooming, the cat was a beautiful, graceful, and highly-intelligent creature, and Mr. Weir's labours, like those of his brother, Mr. Jenner Weir, and such authorities as Messrs. George Billett and Mr. A. A. Clarke, have been amply rewarded, for the 500 cats at the Palace are really superb specimens of miniature tigers. The points to be noted in the present exhibition are that it is far and away the largest collection ever brought together, that the various breeds have been carefully cultivated, that cats "points," such as frills, tufts, brushes, and so forth, are receiving close attention, that "blue" is the new colour approved of by the authorities, and, in short, that cat-culture is taking rank as both a science and a fine art. It would be a long task to enumerate the merits of the various feline heroes and heroines, but especial attention must be called to Mrs. Lee's Siamese "Meo" (126), winner of the special prize for the best short-haired cat in the exhibition. "Meo" is coloured like a well-bred pug dog with black snout, and is hardly as beautiful to look at as Mr. Clarke's "Miss Whitey" (202), winner of many medals and prizes, and who now stands as the best long-haired she-cat in this show, but then cat fanciers are mysterious people, and often what looks the ugliest is really the best because of its rarity or its preservation of essential characteristics. The gold medal for the best long-haired he-cat is carried off by Mr. Ellerton's "blue" Hector (188), and other special prizes have been awarded to Mr. Fowler, Mr. E. B. Lankford, Mr. Breeden, Mr. L. Robertson, Mr. Lockwood, Mrs. Vyvyan, Mrs. Carr, Mrs. Tanner, and Miss Gresham. In perfect fairness the handsome Emu Egg Challenge Vase, presented by Mr. A. A. Clarke, to be won three times in succession, fell to the donor, than whom no more enthusiastic cat-lover exists, and the judging all round gave complete satisfaction. As another example of the genially earnest and, indeed, Egyptian spirit of these ardent "Catologists," we have a special prize offered by a reverend member of the Cat Club for the best white Persian Tom, and the prize is "In Memory of Fluff," which is pretty and pathetic. In the interests of such visitors as are unable to come to the Palace until late in the afternoon, it might be suggested to the management that the Cat Gallery is in sore need of better lighting, for visitors may have eyes for cats without absolutely possessing cats' eyes that can see in the dark. Taking it all round it is a highly interesting collection.

THE NEW WIMBLEDON.—Yesterday Captain St. John Mildmay, secretary of the National Rifle Association, visited Brighton in order to inspect the several sites in the environs of the town which have been recommended as suitable for the annual prize meeting of volunteers. The Mayor (Mr. E. Martin) met Captain Mildmay at the railway station, and the party of inspection also included Colonel Tamplin, commanding the 1st Sussex Rifles, Captain H. Tester, hon. colonel of the 1st Sussex Artillery, and Captain Edwards.

NATIONAL LIBERAL FEDERATION.—The time allotted by the National Liberal Federation for the appointment of delegates to the annual meetings on Nov. 5, 6, and 7, at Birmingham, has expired, and upwards of 3,200 representatives have been nominated to attend, being 1,000 in excess of those present at the Nottingham conference last year. The arrangements for the various meetings are being completed, and full information will be supplied to delegates in the course of a few days.

THE DISPUTE IN MANITOBA.

[REUTER'S TELEGRAM.]

TORONTO, OCT. 23.

To-day's telegrams from Winnipeg state that the excitement caused by the Red River Railway dispute continues intense, but that no disturbance of order is yet reported. The Red River line has been completed as far as the edge of the Canadian Pacific Company's property, but the operations were then suspended in order to await a legal decision as to the right of the Canadian Pacific Railway to block the way. The latter company retains a large force on the spot, mostly armed, in order to guard the crossing. The Lieutenant-Governor has warned Mr. Greenway, the Premier, against resorting to unlawful measures. The Manitoban Ministry, however, maintain a firm attitude, and talk of appealing to England, and, if necessary, to petition the Queen that Manitoba be made a Crown Colony. The development of the situation is awaited with much anxiety, as the people of Winnipeg express themselves determined to go through with the affair whatever the decision of the Court may be. Offers of assistance are arriving from outside towns, and the talk of annexation to the United States is being revived. The troops are confined to barracks in case of emergency.

THE VATICAN.

[REUTER'S TELEGRAM.]

ROME, Oct. 23.—The Osservatore Romano publishes a letter from the Pope to Cardinal Lavigerie in which his Holiness speaks in terms of praise and encouragement of the latter's crusade against the slave trade in Africa, and places at his disposal the sum of 300,000f in aid of his undertaking. The same journal gives a formal denial to the report that Lord Salisbury had sent a note to the Pope informing his Holiness that the British Government found it impossible to send a Chargé d'Affaires to the Vatican.

AMERICAN MARKETS.

[REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Stocks opened a fraction lower, but a generally strong tone ensued. In the afternoon, however, the market again relapsed, and closed generally weak. Money easy. Petroleum strong. Flour quiet. Sugar easy. Tin dull. Iron quiet, but steady.

PRICES FOR FUTURE DELIVERY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Wheat opened dull, ¼c lower. Speculation has again been the ruling force of the market. Prices have given way slightly on some realising by bulls and receiving little support from shippers. The closing is barely steady, unchanged, to ¼c lower.

Sales, futures, 952,000 bushels; spot, 19,000 bushels. Receipts, 140,000 bushels; same day last year, 376,723 bushels. Clearances, 20,000 bushels.

To-day	109½	110¾	112⅜	113½	—	117¼
Yesterday	109⅞	110⅞	112½	113⅞	—	117⅜

Corn opened rather lower, business being done in December at 50¼. The market has, however, declined further, owing to the continued free movement from the interior and to operators unloading on near deliveries. The close is weak, ¼ to 1¼c decline.

Sales, futures, 656,000 bushels; spot, 178,000 bushels. Receipts, 320,000 bushels; same day last year, 264,037. Clearances, 220,000 bushels.

	Oct.	Nov.	Dec.	Jan.
To-day	49¼	49⅞	50¼	49⅞
Yesterday	—	50⅜	51⅛	—

Lard opened steady, but gave way later in the day, and became irregular on heavier receipts of hogs at the West, and with a small cash trade the close is weak, 3 to 17 points decline.

	Oct.	Nov.	Dec.	Jan.	Feb.
To-day	9.10	9.08	8.50	8.50	—
Yesterday	9.25	8.85	8.56	8.55	8.56

Coffee opened at 20 points decline, with business in December at 12 90 and April 12 75. The market continues very nervous, and subject to the first strong influence either way. The receipt of stronger cables from Europe strengthened the values considerably, the close being firmer, unchanged to 15 points advance.

Sales, 63,700 bags.

	Oct.	Nov.	Dec.	Jan.	Feb.	Mar.	April.	May.	June.	July.
To-day—	14.00	14.30	13.30	13.20	13.20	13.15	13.15	13.15	13.15	13.15

Petroleum Pipe Line Certificates opened at 87, and have ruled steady, closing at 87⅞.

Sales, 2,715,000 barrels; pipe-line runs, 56,000 barrels; shipment from regions, 99,000 barrels.

Copper a weaker market, November nominally 17 35.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Wheat opened weaker, at ⅛c under yesterday's closing, and a heavy trade has again been put through, owing to shorts continuing to cover heavily and speculators selling. The close is weak, ⅛c to 1⅛c decline.

Receipts, 470,000 bushels; same day last year, 692,326 bushels.

	Oct.	Nov.	Dec.	May.
To-day	112¼	112⅞	114	113¾
Yesterday	114⅛	114½	115⅞	115½

Corn at the first call was weaker, ⅛c lower, and owing to the heavy receipts has declined, and closes heavy, ⅛c to 1⅛c lower.

THE BATTLE OF TRAFALGAR.—The members of the Royal Naval Club of 1765 held their customary dinner to commemorate the anniversary of the Battle of Trafalgar (Oct. 21, 1805) and the Battle of Camperdown (Oct. 11, 1797), at Willis's Rooms, St. James's, yesterday evening. Admiral Sir R. Vesey Hamilton, K.C.B., was president, General Sir Lothian Nicholson, K.C.B., R.E., being the guest.

LORD MAYOR'S SHOW.

PROPOSED PARADE OF VOLUNTEERS.

On Monday, Mr. Alderman Whitehead, in pursuance of the object which we yesterday indicated, privately waited at the Horse Guards on Major-General Gipps, K.C.B., commanding the Home District, and requested the military authorities to allow the Metropolitan volunteers, or such corps of them as were willing, to take part in the annual civic procession on Lord Mayor's Day. It was explained that a number of battalions, provided permission was granted, were not indisposed to co-operate on the occasion by marching in the civic procession, and that it was hoped the novelty of the demonstration might help towards the successful completion of a fund which was to be raised in the City to provide for the better equipment of the volunteers. The Major-General Commanding referred Mr. Alderman Whitehead to the Duke of Cambridge, as Commander-in-Chief, who was subsequently seen. His Royal Highness is understood to have held out little hope that he may be induced to accede to the proposal. The objections of the Commander-in-Chief to the participation of the volunteers in the time-honoured pageant are said to be twofold—first, because the Act of Parliament precluded their being used as a military force to assist the police or in quelling disorder; and, secondly, because, being a trained military body, it was not likely to add to their esprit de corps to be displayed as part of "a holiday show." It was further observed that a somewhat similar application for troops to be allowed to march in the Lord Mayor's procession was made in 1883, on the return of the army from Egypt, but that request was also refused, and on the ground that it was held to be unwise to impart anything of a military element to the civic show. With reference to the squadron of cavalry that has always ridden in the procession of late years, the men, it was stated, were ordered out solely to assist the police in preventing the people from blocking the Lord Mayor's carriage in their eagerness to see him.

Against these objections of the military authorities it has been urged that the volunteers have on more than one occasion been used in civic and state displays, both to assist the police and military, by acting as guards of honour, and in public processions. The circumstances under which they acted in these capacities are neither remote nor obscure. As the matter stands at the present moment, although the opinion entertained at the War Office and Horse Guards is not so favourable as could be wished by the friends of the proposal, still no absolute refusal has yet been given to the request of the Lord Mayor Elect. Indeed, it is still hoped that his Royal Highness the Commander-in-Chief may be able to waive such objections as he now entertains towards the plans of Mr. Alderman Whitehead, provided the volunteers regard them as favourably as there is good reason to believe they do.

Yesterday afternoon, with the sanction of Major-General Gipps, K.C.B., a meeting of Metropolitan volunteer commanding officers was held at the headquarters of the Queen's Westminster to consider the proposals of the Lord Mayor-Elect regarding the raising of a fund to assist in securing greater efficiency among the volunteers of the London district. There were over thirty officers present, including Colonel Laurie, of the 3rd London, who occupied the chair; Colonel Routledge, 2nd V.B. Royal Fusiliers; Colonel du Plat Taylor, Post Office Volunteers; Colonel Howard Vincent, M.P., Queen's Westminster; Lord Edward Clinton, 1st London; Colonel Wylde, 2nd Middlesex; Colonel Villiers, 1st Surrey; Colonel Bristowe, 2nd West Kent; Sir William Charley, 11th Middlesex; Colonel Cantlon, 2nd London; Colonel Brown, 17th Middlesex; Major Percy Hewitt, Cyclist Corps, and others.

The Lord Mayor-Elect, who attended, explained his proposals. He said that he hoped to be able to raise a sum of over £100,000, which he wished to see invested so as to secure an annual payment of at least £4,000 a year among the volunteers of the Metropolitan district. The object of this sum was to enable the volunteer force to do that which most of them were quite unable to do at present owing to the insufficiency of the capitation grant, namely, to obtain a better equipment. Great coats, valises, transport, and other things were needed in many of the corps, and it was quite impossible that they could take the field at a moment's notice without these requisites.

A discussion ensued, in which most of the officers took part. It was observed that there were forty-four volunteer corps in the Metropolitan district, including artillery and engineers, and that the fund which it was desirable to raise should produce an income allowing of at least £100 a year to each battalion. With that amount it was confidently predicted the Metropolitan volunteers could be put in a most effective condition, ready to turn out and do real campaigning at a moment's notice. No objection was heard to the suggestion of the volunteers taking part in the procession, but at the same time two or three of the officers present intimated that personally they did not wish to be identified with anything like a street pageant; otherwise there was no hostility expressed in regard to the force parading, but, on the contrary, a willingness was evinced to take part in any movement likely to benefit the various corps. A resolution was thereafter unanimously passed: "That, whilst thanking the Lord Mayor-Elect for his patriotic spirit in endeavouring to signalise his Mayoralty by trying to raise a fund to assist the volunteers to perfect their equipment, the want of which is very much felt, it is regretted that it is not thought desirable to form a part of the procession on Nov. 9 next for military reasons." The Lord Mayor-Elect having thanked the meeting, it afterwards broke up. The officers expressed an earnest wish that, whether they were allowed to take part or not with their corps in the procession, a successful effort might still be made in the City to raise the proposed fund.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE DAILY TELEGRAPH."

SIR—I had penned an answer to the letter of Mr. Harris, which you publish this morning, and which was placed in my hands on the 18th inst. But I had not forwarded it to him, nor had I made it public, because it appeared to me that it would be well not to do so until the permission of her Majesty's Secretary of State for War had been first obtained for the proposed parade of volunteers.

But, since Mr. Harris's letter has been published, I think it well to forward you the reply which I have now sent.

You will observe that we do not, as stated by you, intend that the sum saved by the elimination of the "circus element" shall be applied to the Volunteer Fund. Our decision has all along been to give it for the benefit of the poor; and our contribution to the Volunteer Fund is quite distinct.—I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully,

JAMES WHITEHEAD, Lord Mayor Elect.
Highfield House, Catford Bridge,
Kent, S.E., Oct. 23.

Highfield House, Catford Bridge, Kent, S.E.,
Oct. 19, 1888.

DEAR MR. HARRIS—Your well-known success in gauging the instincts of the public makes your opinion respecting our decision for Lord Mayor's Day very valuable and gratifying to the sheriffs and myself.

Our sole object has been to render the state entry of the Lord Mayor upon his high and important duties more harmonious with the solemnity of the occasion and with modern sentiment; but we feel that the principle at stake must not be obscured or endangered by any unworthy imputations of personal advantage, and under no circumstances can we withdraw from the obligation we have voluntarily entered into for the benefit of the poor.

This being clearly understood, I may say frankly that to my mind your suggestion—which I understand to be that a parade of our citizen-soldiers should follow or precede the civic procession—is an admirable one, and I think I see in it something far higher than mere pageant. It seems to contain the germ of something not spectacular merely, not civic merely, but national; and, if developed in a spirit corresponding to its importance, it may mark a new era in the history of our defensive forces.

The public generally have not, I fear, fully realised their obligation to our volunteer army. It is notorious that public subscriptions towards their equipment are miserably small, and that hundreds of officers leave the service because they are mulct in expenses which ought to be borne either by Parliament or the public. And there is reason for believing that if the volunteers were better supported their numbers, both officers and men, would grow rapidly and their efficiency increase. It appears to me that, by the incorporation to a greater extent than hitherto of these modern "train-bands" with our civic processions, we should emphasise their character of "citizen-soldiers," and assist the public to realise more than it now does how largely we depend upon them for our defence.

But I feel that, if this proposed new departure is adopted, it would be incomplete unless it were accompanied by an energetic effort to induce the great banking, financial, and mercantile community of London to join in forming a substantial fund for the permanent aid of the metropolitan corps.

Such useful national movements as this our great Corporation delights to honour, and any scheme for increasing the strength and efficiency of our citizen army will, I am sure, receive their cordial approval, as did the "train-bands" in former times.

I may add that my colleagues, the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex, Mr. Alderman Gray and Mr. A. J. Newton, heartily concur in the views I have expressed. They will each subscribe £100, and I shall be pleased to contribute £200 myself towards the proposed fund. And if it is thought desirable, I will gladly take charge of it at the Mansion House after Nov. 9.—I am, dear Mr. Harris, yours faithfully,

JAMES WHITEHEAD, Lord Mayor Elect.
Augustus Harris, Esq.

Oct. 23, 1888.

My dear Mr. Harris—Referring to your public-spirited letter which appears in The Daily Telegraph this morning, I am desired by Colonel Sir Alfred Kirby, J.P., ex-Sheriff, to say that he will be pleased, if permitted by the authorities, to send a detachment, not more than 300 strong, of his corps (the Tower Hamlets Battalion of the Fortress and Railway Forces, Royal Engineers), preceded by its three bands and accompanied by two general service wagons, fully horsed and attended by a mounted party, to form part of a volunteer escort for his brother Fanmakers (the Lord Mayor Elect and Mr. Sheriff Newton) in the time-honoured civic procession on the 9th November proximo.

I am also desired by Sir Alfred Kirby to add that on two former similar occasions the regiment has taken part in the Lord Mayor's Show, and that on both occasions the volunteers were enthusiastically greeted by the spectators, and received the encomiums of the Press for their smart and soldier-like appearance.—Believe me, my dear Mr. Harris, yours very truly,

T. DAVIES SEWELL (late 4th Battalion the Royal Fusiliers, City of London Regiment), Major Tower Hamlets Battalion F. and R.F., R.E.
Augustus Harris, Esq.

THE EUROPEAN SITUATION.

[TELEGRAM FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

VIENNA, OCT. 23.

According to tidings from Warsaw, the Russian troops quartered on the frontier have recently been going through reconnoitering manœuvres. At Tomaszov they were carried on by a body of cavalry, with twenty-four officers, two generals, and a colonel. At another point of the frontier, Krylow, as also at Dohlobyczow, a large number of staff officers have lately been busy with reconnoitering work. This intelligence, together with the news given by the semi-official Fremdenblatt, that another division of Russian troops is on the march from the interior of the country to the western frontier, does not tend to inspire confidence pending the Austrophile outpourings of the Russian press. Moreover, there is always some enfant terrible amongst the Russian newspapers that fails to act upon the mot d'ordre from headquarters, and betrays the spirit that lurks beneath. In this instance it is the Dnevnik of Warsaw, a journal of great influence, that sounds the discordant note. It writes thus: "Concentration of Austrian troops in Galicia makes no more impression on Russia than did the warlike toasts of the Austro-German-Italian allies. The statesmen of Austria Hungary are much mistaken if they imagine that Russia will agree to divide the Balkan Peninsula with Austria."

It is announced from Constantinople that a concession has been sanctioned by Imperial Iradé for the construction of a railway from Jaffa to Jerusalem.

GERMAN COURT AND POLITICS.

[TELEGRAM FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

BERLIN, OCT. 23.

It is reported that the Kaiser is expected at Friedricksruh on Sunday, and that he will proceed to Hamburg on Monday morning with Prince Bismarck. Count von Moltke and several of the Ministers and representatives of the Federal States are also expected to attend his Majesty at the ceremony of the 29th inst.

The Berliner Tageblatt says there is no truth in the revived rumours of a coming marriage between Prince Alexander of Battenberg and Princess Victoria. In the best informed circles it is asserted that the death of the Emperor Frederick put an end irrevocably to this question.

An approaching scandal seems to be foreshadowed in a telegram from Munich which has reached the same journal. It is stated therein that the people of Wurtemberg are furious with their King on account of the favour, backed up by large sums of money, which his Majesty is said to have bestowed on certain Americans. These gentlemen received a luxuriously furnished house in Stuttgard from the King, and in its gorgeous salons they are reported to have held spiritual séances, and to have summoned the spirits of his Majesty's ancestors into the Royal presence. The King, who is an invalid, leads a retired life; and, as the heir has no male issue, the people, who are mostly Protestant, are in dread lest the succession should pass to the Roman Catholic branch of the family.

The semi-officially inspired provincial German press are foreshadowing now the near possibility of the conclusion of a plan for common action in East Africa between Great Britain and Germany. From this it is easy to infer that such is the desire of the German Government. In referring to the speech of Dr. Peters, the chairman of the German East African Company, the North German Gazette fully confirms all I have said of the opinion held here in high places about that society and its agents. "In view," says Prince Bismarck's organ, "of the events of the last few weeks, which are not even yet fully known, the address can only have an historic value. The present condition of affairs in East Africa, in fact, calls for new measures and new men." It is to be hoped the British public will not be deceived by the enthusiasts of the German Emin Pasha expedition.

THE RAILWAY ACCIDENT IN ITALY.

[REUTER'S TELEGRAM.]

ROME, OCT. 23 (10.50 A.M.)

The latest intelligence concerning the railway accident near Grassano, last Saturday morning, considerably reduces the magnitude of the disaster. From the information received by the Minister of Public Works and the Administration of the Mediterranean Railway it appears that the first accounts, stating that there were ninety killed and seventy injured, were greatly exaggerated, inasmuch as only nineteen dead bodies have been found up to the present, while the injured number fifty-five, some of whom only received contusions. It is thought possible, however, that the number of injured may prove to be greater than at present stated; but according to the official reports it is not very probable that more dead bodies will be discovered.

The exaggerated version at first received is believed to be due to the fact that ninety coffins were forwarded to the scene of the disaster.

ROME, OCT. 23.

Telegrams received here this evening announce that in addition to the nineteen dead bodies which have been extricated from the wrecked train a lady, hitherto unidentified, and two Belgian monks, from the monastery of Pietra Santa at Naples, were also killed, and that two persons have died of their injuries in the hospital. The fate of some of the passengers who were seriously injured, and left by the first available train with the object of reaching their homes, is not yet known.

The Italian railway companies give notice that, in consequence of an obstruction on the line between Ancona and Foggia (the direct route viâ Bologna to Brindisi), the Indian Mail Service, which leaves Victoria Station every Friday at eight p.m., will, until further notice, be worked to Brindisi by the Genoa, Rome, Caserta, and Foggia route. The accident that occurred near Potenza, on Saturday morning last, in no way affects the running of the Indian Mail train, as the scene of the occurrence is on one of the branch lines further south.

THE COAL STRIKE.

Several thousand miners employed on the day shift whose notices have expired came out yesterday at some of the largest collieries in the South Yorkshire districts. A large number of miners whose notices expire to-day and to-morrow are also preparing to adopt the same course. The large proprietors are very firm in their determination to resist the demand for 10 per cent. increase of wages, and the men, generally, appear to be equally determined to obtain it. A few proprietors, whose output is small and for land sale only, have conceded the advance, but this affects but few men. The price of certain qualities of house coal has increased from 30 to 40 per cent. since the beginning of the month. At many collieries preparations are being made for setting them down, all the top men having received notices, and in cases where houses occupied by the miners are the property of the colliery owners the occupants have received notice to quit. In others it is announced that the collieries will be kept open.

ELECTION INTELLIGENCE.

MERTHYR TYDVIL.—Yesterday morning Mr. William Pritchard Morgan and Mr. Richard Ffoulkes Griffiths, barrister-at-law, of London, were nominated for this constituency. Both candidates are Gladstonian Liberals. They were cheered by their supporters as they left the town clerk's office. The polling will take place on Friday, the votes being counted the same night.

EDINBURGH AND ST. ANDREWS UNIVERSITIES.—Mr. Moir T. Stormont Darling, who has been appointed Solicitor-General for Scotland, has agreed to contest the vacancy in the Parliamentary representation of Edinburgh and St. Andrews Universities as a Unionist.

DEWSBURY.—Last night at a great meeting of Gladstonian Liberals, held in the Industrial Hall, Dewsbury, Mr. Mark Oldroyd was adopted as the Gladstonian candidate for Dewsbury at the forthcoming election, which will be occasioned by the intended resignation, through illness, of Sir John Simon, M.P. Mr. Oldroyd, who is a Congregationalist and at the present time Mayor of Dewsbury, addressed the meeting, and explained his views, expressing himself a warm supporter of Mr. Gladstone's Irish policy. The Conservative candidate is not yet announced.

SHEARD'S DANCE ANNUAL for 1889, which is undoubtedly by far the best collection of dance music issued this year. "Its deliciously dreamy waltzes, among which we may mention 'The Silver Wedding,' by Felix Burns, and its lively lancers and quadrilles, of which 'Who's That a-Callin'' by Isidore Bonheur, are striking examples, easily obtain for it its pre-eminent and enviable position among its numerous rivals for public esteem."—Review.

A WONDERFUL MEDICINE.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

ARE admitted by thousands to be worth above a Guinea a Box for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as Wind and Pain in the Stomach, Sick Headache, Giddiness, Fulness and Swelling after Meals, Dizziness and Drowsiness, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Loss of Appetite, Shortness of Breath, Costiveness, Scurvy, Blotches on the Skin, Disturbed Sleep, Frightful Dreams, and all Nervous and Trembling Sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in 20 minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these pills and they will be acknowledged to be WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal Beecham's Pills for removing any obstruction or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box, they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like magic, and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action, with the rosebud of health, the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are facts admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated is, Beecham's Pills have the largest sale of any Patent Medicine in the world.
Full directions are given with each box. Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers in the United Kingdom.
Prepared only, and sold wholesale and retail, by the Proprietor, T. Beecham, Chemist, St. Helens, in boxes at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each. Sent post free from the Proprietor for 15 or 36 stamps.
